

LOCAL NOTES.....

Fifteen Frigidaires were sold by Geo. W. Baldwin, the Chestertown agent, last week in the special sale week campaign.

"Lindy" a horse owned by Julian Loller, Fairlee, now of Southampton, Bucks county, Pa., was sold to Wm. G. Merion, of Justa Farms, Southampton, for $500 cash.

Last Monday night was Farmers' Night at the Chestertown Rotary Club. L. A. Burroughs, of the Delmar-Va Eastern Shore Association gave a talk on "Marketing Products."

One of the largest tillages of asparagus on the Eastern Shore is on the farm of Roger Williams, of near Galena, where 70 acres, some of which will be cut for the first time this year, are expected to yield the owner a handsome profit. It is said that more acres are being grown in asparagus this year than at any time in the history of the county.

Sheriff J. T. Hadaway arrested Stewart Johnson, colored, on a charge of stealing poultry from Wm. Patrick in Chestertown in 1927. Johnson had eluded police and had gone to Wilmington. He will be tried at the April term of the Circuit Court which convened last Monday.

Major Frank B. Hines, commander of the Chestertown Medical Detachment of the Maryland National Guard, has announced that the detachment will go to Camp Albert C. Ritchie, at Cascade, Md., for two weeks from July 6 to July 20.

Officials of the Chester River Yacht and Country Clubs have begun preparations for an unusually active season during the coming Summer and are arranging a program of outdoor sports. The golf course which was sown to grass plants last Fall by experts from the south is being made ready for the golfing season and also for the first annual tournament of the Eastern Shore Golf League, composed of teams representing clubs of Dover and Rehoboth, Del., and Salisbury and Chestertown on the Eastern Shore.

A recommendation that Grace Church, Kennedyville, Westminster Church, Kent County, the Odessa Church, Odessa, and Gundy Memorial Church, Stockton, Md., be grouped together as one charge under the Rev. John Humphries, minister at large, was adopted at the recent meeting of the Presbytery in Wilmington the past week.

The Delmarva Eastern Shore Association has appointed Marion deK. Smith, Jr., of this town a delegate to represent the association at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States which will be held in Washington, on April 30 to May 3.

The quarterly statements of the six banks in the town and county for the quarter ended March 31st, showed total resources amounting to $5,780,000. Savings deposits to the credit of the people of the county amount to $3,660,000, with loans and discounts of $3,328,000, the largest for several years, due largely to assisting farmers in financing their agricultural activities. Surplus and undivided profits amount to $375,000.

When the Hunt Circus gives its initial performance at Pikesville this week behind the hot dog stand of the show will be John "Toots" Hadaway, Chestertown boy, who will have charge of that concession with Geo. Brinsfield, of Crumpton, during the show season. Hadaway left Tuesday for the winter quarters of the circus at Pikesville. Hadaway has been for the past year or more the fireman stationed at the fire house of the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company for night duty. He is the son of T. C. Hadaway, of near town.

As mentioned in the News last week H. Clay Brown had presented to the Chester River Yacht and Country Club a model of the Island Blossom, the famous Chesapeake Bay racing canoe, which holds the record of having won more races than any other similar craft on the Eastern Shore, and which is now an "honorary member" of the club with moorings in Chestertown harbor.

Watermen throughout the county are anticipating an unusual run of crabs during the season which will open about May 1. Crabs did not reach the headwaters of the bay and tributaries until last September and they remained over the Winter. Throughout the oyster season tongers brought up large numbers from the mud almost every day.

UNDERTAKING PARLOR

Ground was broken Wednesday for a new and up-to-date undertaking parlor on High street by Charles L. Dodd. The old shop which has been located directly on the street will be removed and the new building will be erected in the rear of the lot. S. Clifton Coleman is contractor.

PRODUCTS WEEK

With airplanes soaring overhead, Baltimore Products Week opens officially next Monday at noon with Mayor William F. Broening broadcasting his proclamation on which will be the signal for 250 store windows downtown Baltimore to drop the curtains and reveal an exhibition of the city's industries.

Marylanders from every section of the State, it was announced today, have signified their intention of visiting Baltimore during the industrial display, which will continue from Monday until the following Saturday evening.

In a letter addressed to Chambers of Commerce and civic organizations in cities and towns outside of Baltimore, Ralph H. Hudson, president of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, urged business men to visit the city while the exhibition is in progress. Pointing out that the display would not be only interesting entertainment, Mr. Hudson asserted that "it will undoubtedly be of commercial and educational value to the business man in our surrounding trade territories."

The display of Baltimore-manufactured products will be concentrated in the downtown shopping district. Everything from production of airplanes to milk will be included in the store windows, emphasizing the diversity of the manufacturing interests in the State's metropolis.

The Maryland State Dairymen's Association, with the Baltimore Dairy Council, is planning one of the most interesting exhibits of the week, according to the Association of Commerce officials. With a background of farm buildings, a mechanical life-size Guernsey cow will cavort in the window of the May Company, Howard and Lexington streets. Modern equipment, including electrical milking machines and refrigerators, will be included in the display. In an adjoining window, the distribution of milk after it reaches the dairies will be depicted. The State Dairymen's Association has planned the former exhibit while the Dairy Council has arranged for the latter.

Baltimore Products Week, which is sponsored by the Baltimore Association of Commerce, is being actively handled by a committee of citizens anxious for the city's own residents, the State, and the country to "Know Baltimore Better."

COUPLE MARRIED AFTER ELOPEMENT

Deciding to elope rather than wait for their wedding scheduled for April 24, in Philadelphia, Mildred Woodruff, 1711 North Rodney St., Wilmington, and Elwood T. Payne, 23, of Philadelphia, were married at Chestertown, early Saturday morning after the elopement. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. F. Corkran, after a wedding license had been obtained from clerk of the court.

Mr. Payne went to Wilmington on Friday night and plans were formulated between him and his fiancée for an elopement. They called friends and told them of the plans and with their assistance left at 11 for Elkton. They arrived there at 11:30 but found that the offices had closed at 4 in the afternoon and that it was impossible to secure a marriage license.

Undaunted, a motor trip was made to Chestertown and the would-be bride and groom arrived there at 1:30 a. m. Thomas Dixon, deputy clerk of the court was aroused from his bed and obtained the license for the couple at the court house. The Rev. Mr. Corkran was summoned and just as the clock was striking 2 a. m. the ceremony was performed.

Mr. Payne has been employed at the du Pont experimental station, while her husband is employed in a Philadelphia printing house. The couple will take a wedding trip to Atlantic City.
