PRIN. HAWKINS RESIGNS

Prof. Earl T. Hawkins, principal of Chesapeake High School, for the past two years, has tendered his resignation to the Cecil County School Board. He has accepted the appointment of principal of Belair High School, where he was assistant principal before coming to Cecil County.

ANNUAL STYLE SHOW

The annual style show staged at Chestertown High School here by the combined women's and girls' economic clubs of Kent County featured the exhibition of dresses none of which cost over two dollars.

Club women who appeared in these costumes were Mesdames Jane Chaires, Charles B. Ford, Hugh H. Hartman, George Carroll, George Cooper, Linwood A. Sutton, Clarence Thompson, Frank Moore, James Bigelow, Romie Skirven, Frank Skirven, John White, Florence Christopher, T. H. M. Bramble, Elmer Thomas, William Wheeler, Ida Willis, D. W. Ingersoll, Charles Ashley, William G. Smyth and Howard Hadaway.

Other club women present attired in home-made gowns of inexpensive make were Misses Edith Hartman, Fannie Hartman, Mary Nicholson and Louise Travers.

Mrs. Evelyn Tobey, of this county, instructor in women's work at Columbia University, addressed the gathering on "Dressing for Smartness."

CLIMATE HERE BEST IN U. S.

Kent County climate is among the best in the United States, a third edition of "Our Climate" just issued by the weather bureau and it is of exceptional interest to Kent counties.

It says the climate "when considered all the year round, is one of the best in the entire United States. Comparative data, which we show by charts, supports this claim.

"Winters are mild, although characterized by weather that does lack invigorating qualities. "Zero" weather only 13 times in 55 years, and the lowest recorded during this 55-year period was 7 degrees below zero.

"The seasonal changes are well marked. Summers are warm, as in other good agricultural sections of the United States. They are, however, usually tempered by cool spells that originate in more Northern latitudes, frequently in the Hudson Bay Region of Canada. Spring and autumn are both delightful seasons.

"The geographic position with reference to the usual storm paths is decidedly favorable for a uniform and abundant supply of moisture for all purposes. The annual precipitation averages 41.25 inches, and its distribution through the year is almost ideal.

"The sun shines during some portion of the day on about 321 days in the year, on the average. "Winter Sunshine" is nearly double the amount which occurs over a large portion of the Lower Lake Region. Yet days with 100 per cent. of sunshine are rather rare at any season of the year and a typical day is one on which the sky is partly covered with clouds.

"The 'growing season,' or frost-free period, averaging about 195 days.

"Severe storms are infrequent, prolonged droughts are of rare occurrence and there is almost a total freedom from tornadoes."

REDUCING STATE TAXES

Why should nearly all the State, County and City taxes be collected from farms, homes and industries?

Why should not a larger part of these revenues to carry on local government be collected from crimes, luxuries, follies and extravagances?

In some states there is a regular system of raising part of the local revenue from occupations, sports, amusements, etc.

Is there not a suggestion in the following editorial paragraph from the Los Angeles Times?

"It is thought that the government revenue from tobacco in Poland will this year reach $150,000,000. As the total budget of the country is only about $350,000,000 it will be seen that the country will pull nearly half of its expense money out of the smoke. If governments formed the habit of levying taxes upon all vices the virtuous would presently have no assessments to pay."

ADMINISTERING FARM RELIEF

Although Congress has passed, and the President has signed, a bill that is expected to lift some of the burdens from agriculture, and give it greater earning power, it looks as if the biggest job is yet to be done. That is the administering of relief. If the farmers all over the land were organized and had their interests pooled, it would not be such a difficult job to apply what is supposed to be the statutory remedy for existing ills.

But the farmers are not organized, at least not in the sense referred to. It is true that they have their organizations. The Grange, for example, is made up of farmers, with state and county subdivisions, as well as a national organization. There are also farm bureaus and co-operative buying and selling organizations. But the great mass of agriculturists are "on their own." They are doing the best they can to raise all of the produce they can and are exerting every bit of energy at their command in an effort to sell out each year, and at the very best rates. With many it is a competitive business.

The average farmer is handicapped. Unless he is a good salesman, as well as a good cultivator of the soil, and has time and opportunity to keep in touch with the market, he is at a disadvantage, as he is also if he does not keep up with modern methods of farming. And generally he is skeptical about any new combination marketing proposition. The result is that many do their own selling.

The government's present problem, according to Representative Oliver, Alabama, who has made a study of the subject, is to get the farmers to realize the importance of organized agriculture. Unless this is done the farm board, created under the new law, will be unable to function efficiently. It seems necessary, therefore, if the tiller of the soil is to benefit by the new law, he must adapt himself to such organization plans as the board may suggest. Individuals who do not may have difficulty in obtaining help if they find they need it.

It seems to be the job of the Federal Farm Board and the Secretary of Agriculture to use their plenary powers in providing some plan that will impress the farmers with the necessity for attaching themselves to an organization, so that the needs of each particular group can be studied and adjusted. Consequently, the farmer has much to do himself, and in the doing of it he must work along with others, if he is to derive any benefit from the law that has been enacted in his behalf.—Every Evening.
