Mrs. Virginia Johnson, aged 71, of Millington, died in a private hospital in Wilmington Tuesday night following a lingering illness. She was a native of Millington, but had more recently lived in Chestertown on Mt. Vernon avenue, with her grand-daughter, Miss Helen Tyler. For several months she had been a patient in Delaware Hospital.

Mrs. Johnson was a member of an old Eastern Shore family which migrated from England and established the Mallalieu Mills near Millington, which supplied blankets to the soldiers during the Civil War. Mrs. Johnson is survived by four brothers, Clifton Mallalieu, of New York; Wood Mallalieu, of Buffalo; George Mallalieu, of Jersey City, and Willian Mallalieu, of Wilmington. One daughter, Mrs. Julia Tyler, of Cumberland, also survives.

The funeral took place in Millington Wednesday, Rev. C. L. Atwater officiating.

Mrs. Margaretta Moore Gooding died Tuesday, at the home of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Sallie B. Gooding with whom she made her home at Clayton. She was the daughter of the late Nathaniel Moore and Mary Wier Moore and the wife of the late James D. Gooding. She was born in Philadelphia and spent many years living in Wilmington and 27 years in Galena. She was 92 years of age. She is survived by six grand children, all of Clayton. Funeral services were held at her late home in Clayton on Thursday, at 1 o'clock, with Rev. C. W. Spry officiating, interment at Galena Cemetery.

George R. Beaver died at his home in Catonsville Monday, aged 73. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Laura M., and the following children: Mrs. Walter Hare, Baltimore, Mrs. Ada Gies and Richard D. Beaver, of Catonsville, Jesse O. Beaver, Chestertown. The funeral took place from the home of Jesse O. Beaver on High street, Chestertown, Rev. G. E. Lowman, of Baltimore, and Dr. E. A. Sexsmith officiating, interment in Chester Cemetery. The bearers were William H. Cooper, Sr., William H. Cooper, Jr., Samuel E. Cooper, Donald Ross, Geo. T. Cooper and W. R. Nickerson; C L. Dodd, undertaker.

Joseph Warram passed away at Easton Hospital Friday evening in his 60th year. Mr. Warram was a most respected resident of Betterton having lived there most of his life. As an occupation he followed painting for which he was known over the Eastern Shore. He was a member of the Baltimore Seventh Day Adventist Church. The choir from Rock Hall assisted by choir from Betterton rendered his favorite song, I Am Coming Home.

He is survived by his widow, Emma Lavina (nee) Newcomb; one daughter, Mrs. Jacob F. Oberholtzer, of Baltimore, and four sons, Ernest Newcomb Warram, of Philadelphia; Jessie Stevens Warram, of Baltimore, Joseph Carlton Warram, of Betterton, Leonard W. Warram, of Clerendon, Va.; two brothers, William H. Warram, of Washington, D. C., Thos. P. Warram, of Betterton; one sister, Mrs. Richard Harrison, of Baltimore.

Funeral service was held from his late home on Monday afternoon at 2 P. M., interment Still Pond Cemetery, Elder A. J. Clark, of Baltimore, officiated; B. R. Fellows, undertaker. Pall bearers were Ernest N. Warram, Jesse L. Warram, J. Carlton Warram, Leonard W. Warram, Morris Messick, Jacob F. Hoberholtzer.

Elmira Rowe, wife of James H. Rowe passed quietly away at 6 P. M. on Thursday, November 20th. Mrs. Rowe was 72 years old and had been married for forty-nine years. She was allowed an active life up till within a week of her death.

She was a native of Talbot county and her maiden name was Townsend. she spent her early married life in Baltimore and has been a resident of the Fifth District for the past twenty-one years. She leaves a widower, a son-in-law, D. R. Downey, and four grandchildren: Mary Adelaide, Daniel R., Arthur J., and Charlotte Julia Downey. Also Mrs. John Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Eugent Coppsey, Mrs. Florence Norris, nieces, and Clifford Horseman, Charles Thomas, John Thomas, nephews, all of Baltimore.
