"Meet The Prince" Next Tues. & Wed.

"Meet The Prince," the Kent County Health Association benefit show, is to be presented on next Tuesday and Wednesday nights, November 18 and 19, at the Old Lyceum Theatre. The show is being staged by the well known Wheeler Producing Comedy, which is a guarantee of high class entertainment, and it is safe to predict that large houses will witness the performances. The proceeds are to go towards carrying on the work of the Health Association throughout the county, and the much needed support of the community is solicited.

The little folks are to be seen in an artistic novelty, entitled. "TheBouquet," in which Mary Emma Chaires sings a solo with the following children appearing as balloon dancers; Shirley Fox, Catherine Bringman, Betty, Lewis, Fredericka Metcalfe, Betty Strong, Marion Aldridge, Martha Speicher, Betty Barnes, Elizabeth Baldwin, Grace McVane, Gerland Beaver, Miriam Newcomb, Catherine Strong, Grace Valliant, Miriam Sewell, Frances Kreeger, Alice Derringer, Rosalie Bonnett, Margaret Ann Turner, Ruth McVane, Maude Sutton. Kewpies: Harriett Ann Legg, Jackie Sweetman, Betty Blackway, Jean Hill, Mary Ann Russell, Anna Ruth Emerson. Bouquet Girls: Betty Beck, Mary Jean Strong. Eleanor Russell, Sara Speicher, Jean Cooper, Margaret Ann Dukes, Helen Strong.

In the well balanced cast James Guthrie appears as the artist eratic domineering Father; Marie Bryan and Jewell as Gernice and Gertrude, his daughters, and James Nicklin as Charles, his son. Mrs. G. H. Dana appears as Marion Haste, financee of Charles; D. B. Ford, Jr., as Tom, in love with Gernice; Mrs. Harry Fowler as Tillie, the Dutch serving maid; Mrs. H. J. Wheeler as Arabella, the sister of Erastus; Frank Fowler, as James Tweedles, the missionary; Phillip Sewell, as Jennings; William Smythe, as Finnerty, the policeman, and H. J. Wheeler, as Shaver.

The action of the play is interspersed with many attractive and catchy musical numbers and dances, including "The Society Girls," Mary Simpers, Dorothy Woodall, Kathryn Beck, Ann Welch, Henrietta Newman, Dorothy Bartley, Kathryn Guessford, Evelyn Bran, Louise Simpers, Charlotte Holloway, Lucie Bell, Dorothy Johnson. "Country Boys and Girls," Mary Joe Wheatley, Anna Lewis, Miriam Ford, Margaret Anthony, Elizabeth Westcott, Deborah Brown, Carolyn Jewell, Virginia Barnes. Reserved seats for both performances can be secured at Stam's Drug Store, on and after Saturday, Nov. 15th.

J. T. KIBLER HEADS LEGION

J. Thomas Kibler was elected Post Commander of the Frank M. Jarman Post 36 American Legion at the annual banquet and meeting of that body held in the Voshell House here Tuesday night. The election of Mr. Kibler marked the third time he has headed the local post since its organization following the World War.

Other officers elected were: Vice-Commanders, Trew Durding and Geo. Clendaniel; Adjutant, Errol S. Fox; Treasurer, G. Allan Jarman; Sergeant at Arms, Kirk Chisolmn; Historian, Roland Corey.

Rolph Townshend, the retiring Post Commander, acted as toastmaster at the banquet. The speakers were George Henderson, Commander of the State Department of the American Legion and A. L. MacGee, Adjutant of the State Department, who also took part in the dedication ceremonies for the new Chester River bridge earlier in the day.

The County Commissioners at their meeting Thursday decided to cancel all wharf charges on tomatoes shipped from county wharves during 1930.

GRAND OPENING

The J. W. Crook Store room on High street has been greatly improved and enlarged and new and attractive display windows installed. The re-modeled store will be opened to the public on Friday evening, Nov. 14th, at 8 P. M. Music was to be a feature. Mr. Owens has succeeded Mr. Willetts and Mr. Moffett and wife are in charge of the meats. Read their adv. in this issue.

WHEN NEWLY ELECTED OFFICERS SWEAR IN

The newly elected officials in Kent county will all soon take office with the exception of the County Treasurer, whose term does not expire until June 1st, 1931. The Register of Wills and State's Attorney and the County Commissioners, and Judges of Orphans' Court usually swear in before Clerk of the Court, who delivers to them their Commissions signed by the Governor.

The other officer, Clerk of the Court is sworn in by Judge Wickes. In the case of the County Treasurer the term has to run with the fiscal year of the county, and to give time for the complete collection of all unpaid taxes, which will require months.

Ordinarily the Commissions of officials arrive around the latter part of November or early in December.

BASKET BALL GAMES SOON

It is very likely that Jimmy Foxx, of the World's Champion Athletics and Jake Flowers, Brooklyn second sacker, willperform for the All Star combination. The latter has accepted an invitation to appear and Jimmy Foxx recently returned from a Western tour with an All Star nine, indicated last season, when he played here, that he would be more than glad to return.

Such former Washington cage luminaries as Gimp Carrington, Lew Jacobs, Jimmy Chapman and Dutch Dumschott will lend their support to the All Stars. Tom Kibler, veteran of many a court campaign, and mentor of the Flying Pentagon will stand ready to take the floor against his charges. W. P. "Chief" Beatty, former University of Maryland star and coach here for two seasons will also appear with the All Star team.

Eighteen basketball games are on the cage schedule for Washington College as announced by Graduate Manager Fred W. Dumschott.

Although the Washington quintet will more than likely open its season on December 5 with an All Star combination the first tilt carded by the management is set for December 13 with the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy as the visiting team to the local court.

Nine games with Maryland rivals are on the schedule. After a lapse of several seasons Washington will again encounter the University of Maryland at College Park. St. John's is the only recognized Maryland college that does not appear on the schedule.

The schedule is as follows:

Dec. 13	Osteopathy	Home
Dec. 18	St. Joseph's	Home
Jan. 1	Princeton	Evergreen
Jan. 7	Drexel	Away
Jan. 8	St. Joseph's	Away

Majestic Beauty Is New Chester Bridge

Opened Armistice Day With Appropriate Ceremonies Tablets Unveiled To All Soldiers Of Kent And Queen Anne's—2,000 Line New Bridge—Old Bridge Being Demolished.

No one could ask for a more beautiful day than that which dawned on Armistice Day and the dedication of the elegant new concrete bridge spanning the Chester river went off with flying colors. Kent and Queen Anne's citizens vied in friendly contest in paying homage to the big improvement.

Captain J. Thomas Kibler, former commander of Frank M. Jarman Post of Chestertown, and holder of the Distinguished Service Medal, won in service overseas was in charge of the ceremonies, assisted by Rolph Townshend, commander of Frank M. Jarman Post; C. Lee Gill, former commander of Frank M. Jarman Post, Edward Covell, commander of the Jeff Davis Post, Centreville. A military parade headed by Major Frank B. Hines, commander of the Chestertown Medical Detachment of the Maryland National Guard, as marshal formed at Washington College at 10 A. M., and marched to the bridge, where at 10.30 two suitably inscribed tablets, one placed at the Kent and the other at the Queen Anne's end of the span, were unveiled, which marked the memorializing of the bridge to the ex-service men of the two counties. Captain G. Allan Jarman, father of the dead soldier after whom the local Legion post is named, was the originator of the idea to dedicate the new bridge to the war dead and the consent of the State Roads Commission was secured for that purpose.

At 11 A. M. the entire assemblage stood in silence for one minute according to proclamation of the Board of Town Commissioners as a tribute to the war dead, following which the procession moved to the Queen Anne's end of the structure, where the dedicatory address was delivered by Brigadier General Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of Maryland. He spoke not in favor of war nor of peace but for preparedness. Chief Engineer Willar, of the Roads Commission spoke.. Following the addresses, two little girls, Frederica Nan Metcalfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Browne Metcalfe, of Chestertown, and Grace Holton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Layton Holton, of Centreville, parted a white ribbon stretched across the Queen Anne's end ofthe bridge, and the procession moved for the first time passed over the handsome structure.

In the line of march were American Legion units form several Shore counties, the Elkton Fife and Drum Corps, the Chestertown Medical Detachment of the Maryland National Guard, each of which was headed by officers in uniform. Following in automobiles were officials of the State Roads Commission, with Major H. D. Williar, chief engineer, and Austin F. Shure, engineer of preliminary surveys, George Henderson, commander, and Arthur L. Magee, State adjutant of the American Legion, Company K, of Centreville, Colonel D. John Markley, commander of the Maryland National Guard and prominent civilians.

The firm who built the Memorial Bridge has the contract to remove the old structure. Some of the material will be sold and some given to any who will take it away. What to do with the old piles is the greatest problems. The contract require all of them to be pulled up and even those broken off to be taken out.

The contract for the bridge was let to Spencer, White and Prentis Oct. 1, 1929, for $247,745. It is built of reinforced concrete piles with girders of concrete. The bacule draw was built and set by the American Bascule Bridge Co., of Pensacola, Fla., for $30,000, and the electric wiring and equipment were furnished by the Electro Mechanical Co., of Baltimore, at a bid of $7,747. The draw is 14 feet above water level at low tide and 12 feet at high tide. The Raymond Concrete Pile Co., drove the 256 piles.

The new bridge will be a distinct attraction to the Chestertown waterfront. William C. Brown will be the superintendent.

Sherman Chalmers directed the local work for the firm building the draw.

J. P. Gooch was the superintendent in charge of the bridge construction for the Spencer, White and Prentis Company and had as his assistant, Arthur Bonnett.

The State Engineers in charge were Benjamin LeSuer, Fred A. Fetter and W. E. Amick.

From the time that the work on constructing the huge concrete piles was started at Kibler's Wharf here until the opening of the span to public travel, less than two whole days were lost in the construction process because of bad weather.

Appromimately 100 men were employed constantly during the building of the structure and this town reaped much benefit. One colored laborer, Daniel Baker, lost his life when he fell overboard in the latter part of June and was drowned.

While an automobile from the Maryland State Roads Commission was officially the first car to pass over the new span other local people vied for that honor. While automobiles of the construction forces had used the bridge previously Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Beck, daughter, Katherine. and Fred A. Fetter State engineer in charge of the work, were the first to use the span. W. Irving Walker, of Queen Anne's, was one of the early users of the span, coming to Chestertown over the new structure early on Tuesday morning. He was accompanied back to Queen Anne's, over the the new bridge, by Eben F. Perkins, of Chestertown.

The bridge will be open to travel from now on.

The new bridge is being completed at a cost of $400,000, including equipment and electric lighting. It is 1,460 feet long from abutment to abutment, with concrete approaches. It contains a 20-foot driveway and a five-foot concrete walk for pedestrians. It also contains a 60-foot bascule draw, electrically operated, and is lighted by 28 London and four Florentine electric globes, besides a number of red and green navigation lights, which present a beautiful spectacle at night. This draw can be opened in one minute.

Crabbing parties from Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, as well as from many sections of the Delmarva Peninsula who have been coming to Chestertown each Summer to enjoy the crabbing from the old Chester river bridge will not be permitted to crab from the new concrete bridge because of the height of the structure from the river.

H. D. Orem & Son are making a decided improvement to their property on Cross street. The whole front is being transformed and the interior renovated and changed into an up-to-date place of business.

Mrs. Carson Greenwood has purchased of John Jarvis and wife the residence in Still Pond heretofore known as the Bacon house for $1500.

Sheriff Hadaway took the seven prisoners to House of Correction and penitentiary last week leaving 16 in jail. This will be quite a big start for Sheriff Vickers.

Dr. Frank W. Smith, the newly-elected Register of Wills for Kent County, will likely name Miss Miriam Smith, daughter of Owen C. Smith, as his deputy.

Washington College Plays Well

The seventh defeat in as many starts was chalked up against the Washington College football team last Saturday when the Eastern Shoremen bowed to Lebanon Valley 32 to 0. The grid contest was staged on the Bethlehem Steel Field in Lebanon, Pa., before a capacity crowd.

Reversing the tacties of recent games the Washington eleven played its worst in the first half and in the 3rd and 4th periods battled to stand still. No score was registered against the locals in the third quarter and Lebanon's one touchdown in the final period was gained only after a desperate battle.

Washington College will play Susquehanna here this afternoon.
