POWER SPEED USEFULNESS

WE have seen many tractors in our experience, but never before anything that comes even close to approaching the new Case Model "C" Tractor.

Here you have every advantage to make tractor farming still more profitable. You have power to pull 2-3 plow bottoms, a small to medium size thresher with all attachments, or other machines of like capacity. You have compactness and light weight. The tractor stands only 48 inches high, weighs but a trifle more than two draft horses. You have three forward speeds, 2⅓, 3⅓ and 4½ miles an hour.

Because of these advantages, there is practically no limit to the versatility of the Model "C". You can use it for more different kinds of work—more days in the year. You can take it into the field when a heavier machine would be useless. You can speed up every farm operation. Not least in importance, you can get into corners and tight places, because the tractor turns short and with far more ease than is customary.

Never before have you been able to get a tractor with this combination of power, light weight, size, speed and ease of handling. By all means, come in and look it over.

Plows, Harrows and many other tillage tools.

KENNEDYVILLE WINS TITLE

Errors by the Galena infield in the first two innings threw away the second and last chance of the Kent county club to annex the championship of the Chesapeake Bay League. For the second time hard-hitting Kennedyville batsmen swatted their way to a 9-8 victory in the three-game series.

Seven runs crossed the plate in those innings and despite the heroic effort of Earle Coleman, visiting hurler, who pitched one of the best games of his career, two tallies were chalked up in the fifth frame and the the title won.

Galena threatened to tie up the argument in the eighth when three runs were scored after a like number had been garnered in the first inning when N. Coleman singled, followed by a bingle by Lockwood to short and a double by Bill Johnson, who galloped home when F. Coleman rapped a single.

The home club spree opened when Grant hit a liner to third, which was fumbled by Coleman. Archibald sent another to short and Johnson missed a double play by bungling the throw. Grant came home on a clean single by Williams. Two more runs were tallied when Bill Loller doubled over second base. In the second frame Grant and Archibald landed on third and second base after Coleman at the hot corner had missed a nice double play on the second single. Smith poled to a three-bagger over the right-field line and came home when Hurlock chalked up the first home run of the tilt. The second clout arrived in the sixth inning when Peacock, of Galena, drove F. Coleman in ahead of him.

Cliffe made the most sepectacular stop of the series in the eighth inning when, on a run, he pulled down Clendaniel's liner. In the seventh Lynn Archibald made a running stop of Earle Coleman's liner and his throw beat the runner to first by a hair's breadth. The line-up:

Kennedyville—Grant, c.; Archibald, 3b; Hurlock, cf; Willis, 2b; Loller, p; Tobin, 1b; H. Crew, rf; Oliffe, lf; Smith, ss; J. Crew, rf.

Galena—H. Coleman, 3b; Clendaniel, 1b; Lockwood, 2b; Johnson, ss; F. Coleman, rf; Peacock, c; Hadley, cf; Woodall, lf; E. Coleman, p.

First Washing Machine Got Inventor "In Bad"

Therill E. Raisin of Glory, Maryland, who is credited by Country Home with being the first man to experiment with a washing machine, occupies no place in the ranks of men who emancipated women and lightened their burdens. Entirely to the contrary, such was the womanly scorn that Therill aroused in his sister Emily by his interference with the sacred Monday morning washtub rites, that at the age of sixty he had to leave his home forever under the suspicion of being not quite mentally sound.

The would-be inventor, says the article, had such an aversion to work that he hated to see others toiling, and wash day brought him particularly keen pangs. Mr. Raisin took a discarded butter churn, filled it with water, soap and several pairs of overalls and induced a colored man named Benjamin to operate it.

The idea was superb, the execution all wrong. The overalls and churn were wreckage in no time at all and there was such a furore about it that Therill moved out. "Go ahead and rub your hands off on your derned washboard," he said, in parting. "I ain't saying you can't get clothes clean on a washboard, but one of these days you're going to have washing machines and then you'll think of me."

KENT'S STARLING PROBLEM ACUTE

Mr. Clarence Cottam of the United States Biological Survey has spent several days in the County with County Agent McVean, considering ways and means of controling of the Starlings, which are being blamed for considerable damage to cherry, pea and corn crops.

Normally, the Starling is a beneficial bird, since its feeding habits indicate that it subsists very largely on harmful insects, such as cut-worm, wire-worm, grasshoppers, weed seeds wild fruit, etc. It is usually only when the Starling population exceeds the natural food supply that the bird gets into mischeif by attacking farm crops The Starling, due to its tendency to onngregate in large flocks, often receives blame fordamage done, of which the Starling is not guilty. The large flocks of black appearing birds reveal the presence of some five or six species, including red wing black birds purple grackle, cow birds, crow black birds, English sparrows, etc.

Aside from occasional damage to crops, the Starling is unpopular because he is so aggressive that he drives away more desirable birds.

In the event that Starlings are still damaging late canning corn or other crops, an effective deterrent is the use of black powder in a shot gun. Black powder is more effective than smokeless. Frequent shooting into the flock attacking crops will usually scare them away within a few days. Also shooting into the flock as it aproaches its roosting place often diverts the flock to its normal roosting place in the woods where they may find their natural foods.

The Starling, is a nomad apparently migrating from place to place to place, especially after the young approach maturity. If it were not for this habit of migrating, the farmer could control the Starling population by destroying some of the birds that live over winter in the out buildings and under the eaves of buildings.

If next summer the Starlings seem too abundant, it is hoped that a representative of the Biological Survey may come to Chestertown to aid in reducing the Starling population to the point where it may subsist on its natural foods. Let us not forget that Starlings in a community, when the population is not so great are very beneficial to the farmer through the reduction of many serious insect pests.

Mr. Cottam reports that the Biologicals Survey has examined over 2600 stomachs of Starlings, as a means of revealing their food habits, It is found that the Starlings' diet, under normal conditions, is beneficial to the farmer rather than harmful. Mr. Cottam's presence in Kent county is due to the urgent request of the County Agent for help in control of the Starling when it began its serious attacks on a number of cornfields in the County.

Apparestly much of the damage blamed on the Starling, is due to the red wing black bird since the female and the young are easily mistaken for the Starling.
