LOCAL NOTES.....

White numerals and letters on a red background will be the color scheme for the 1931 Maryland automobile license plates.

A stable on the Klinefelter's farm in Queen Anne's, tenanted by Harry Tucker was burned Wednesday evening, together with three tons of hay and lot of harness. The fire started in the hay loft and was well underway when discovered. The Chestertown Fire Company were called but too late to save the stable.

Dr. Paul E. Titsworth gave a fine talk at the Rotary Club last Monday night relating some of his experiences while abroad. Elsewhere in the NEWS today is his account of his trip to see the Passion Play.

A. Sydney Turner, secretary of the Rotary Club here, has received a French flag and an Italian flag from the Rotary Clubs of Paris and Rome in return for American flags presented those organizations by Dr. Paul B. Titsworth, former president of the local club, on his recent tour of Europe.

Charles Cahall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cahall, of near Starr, was painfully injured Sunday afternoon when a cow kicked him, striking him over the right eye, causing a severe wound. The lad was engaged in milking the cow when the accident occurred.

William T. Willis, of Cambridge, Md., a recent graduate of Washington College has been appointed instructor in Chestertown High School and took up his new duties Monday. In view of the disagreement between Superintendent of Schools Louis C Robinson and the Kent County School Board, of which L. Bates Russell is president, regarding the appointment of a princial, Owen C. Blades, vice-president, is continuing as acting principal as he did last year following the death of Principal Mark Creasy. W. J. Stenger, appointed by the board and rejected by the superintendent, continues as an instructor. Over 100 pupils graduated from elementary schools last June entered high schools of the county Monday.

Membership Drive Not Successful

The Ways and Means Committee of the Public Health Association of Kent County has sent out, within the past few months, 1,400 letters to Kent citizens in an endeavor to increase the membership of the County Health Association. To date but few have responded, $38.00 have been received and this amount represents less than thirty members as one or moer contributed on the basis of a $5.00 membership.

The annual membership of the Association is $1.00. The fiscal year of the Association begins June 1.

Some confusion regarding the membership drive resulted in people believing the drive had something to do with the Kent and Queen Anne's Hospital campaign. The Health Association has no connection with the hospital-to-be other than to lend its support and interest to the project.

Work covered by the Health Association includes the holding of clinics in Chestertown and throughout the county, the maintenance, jointly with the State, of the Health Center, and the furtherance of protective and preventive health measures for the entire community. Funds are raised by occasional bakes, plays and similar activities and by the payment of the annual membership dues.

A clinic will be held at the health center here by physicians of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association at ten o'clock on September 15, it was announced today. A similar clinic will be held at Centreville at one o'clock the same day.

Salvation Army's Birth

The Salvation army, which was first known as the East London mission, and later as the Christian mission, was founded in 1865. In 1878 the name the Salvation army was adopted.

Kent Drought Committee Meets

The committee, composed of S. Scott Beck, Fred. G. Usilton, L. A. Sutton, E. Thomas Massey and J. D. McVean, appointed to study ways and means of alleviating the efforts of the drought, organized with L. A. Sutton as chairman, Fred. G. Usilton, vice-chairman, J. D. McVean, secretary.

The Kent situation was carefully canvassed. The need for large quantities of hay to be shipped in for the maintenance of production of dairy cows, especially through the months of October, November and December, and also to carry all classes of livestock through the winter is very apparent. The need for action to buy this hay before prices advance materially is evident. The need for the reduced freight rates (50%) on feed stuffs shipped in to feed the drought stricken livestock is great.

The committee recommended to the State Drought Committee that the reduced freight rate be arranged at once. Federal action to prevent profiteering would seem to be timely. Federal appropriation by Congress when it convenes (since no Federal funds may be used for emergency purposes under the law) may be needed for relief of those unable to secure further credit. An Agricultural Credit Corporation, if it can be financed, would aid materially. The American Red Cross has a fund of $5,000,000 which can be used to relieve the destitute. The committee realizes that the effects of the drought will be more keenly felt during the winter months and next summer than it is at present, especially if the drought continues and thus prevents, very largely, grass seeding for pasture and hay, wheat, barley, rye or winter oats seeding for grain, hay or feed crops.

A series of six meetings is being held throughout the county to determine present and future need for (hay and grain) feed stuffs to be shipped in. Doubtless the need for feed stuffs, as revealed at these meetings, may influence the granting of the reduced frieigh rates.

A number of residents of Washington avenue appeared before the Board of Town Commissioners for the purpose of devising a financial plan for building concrete curbs and gutters both along sides of the avenue as a part of the improvement to the driveway which the State Roads Commission will begin this week. It is estimated that the completion of the road bed not to be improved by the State Roads Commission together with laying the curbs and gutter will cost $10,000.

Various plans were discussed for financing the improvement, and the board took the matter under consideration. It is contended by those interested in the improvement that it will cost much less to do the work in conjunction with the work of widening the driveway, than it would cost to do it under an independent contract, and it is held to be a very necessary improvement because Washington avenue is the main thoroughfare over which northern traffic enters the town.

COLLEGE OPENS NEXT WEEK

Recently the lists of schools teachers for Kent county were announced. These men and women who will instruct our youth have before them great opportunities and possibilities and deserve the entire support of every parent in the county. The worth of a school teacher cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. Inspirational character building leaves its indelible imprint in the personalty of pupils and to one's last fleeting breath, one never forgets the teachers one had in youth. School teaching has changed through the years. Teachers are now faced with the problem of imparting highly technical knowledge in a scientific manner to youths who already know more than their parents did at a much older age, but yet having time to impart vital truths of honesty, truth, ambition, zeal, work and spirituality. Each year new facts are added to the curriculum. The teacher must be constantly alert to the new welling tides of knowledge, yet always cling to the wisdom of the ages. Parents and teachers alike should take stock of their programs for the coming session and resolve to make this the banner year in Kent school history.

The closing exercises of the annual Freshman Week activities at Washington College and at the same time the first religious service of the forthcoming academic year will be addressed by Dr. Robert L. Kirby, former president of Earlham College in Indiana and now executive secretary of the Council of Church Boards of Education and secretary of the Association of American Colleges. He is one of teh outstanding educational statesmen of the day and the general public has been invited to hear him, it was announced today by Dr. Frederick G. Livingood, director of Freshman Week. Dr. Kelly will speak at a college vesper service at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, September 21.

Freshman Week, which will open at 1 o'clock September 16, is an annual college activity at the Chestertown institution conducted with a view of initiating the incoming student into the mechanical side of college life and the workings of college organizations generally, to acquaint him with the ideals of the Eastern Shore college, to introduce him to his fellow-freshmen before upperclassmen arrive on the scene, to bridge the gap between his high school days when he has had things thought out for him and college life where he will become his own master and must think and decide for himself and to help him tide over the period between leaving home and family and living the college life and to aid him in acclimating himself to changed conditions and surroundings, said Dr. Livingood.

Every hour of the day will be devoted to some interesting activity and at night a series of receptions and entertainments will be given by college orgaizations and student groups. Addresses will be made by college officials and by student organization heads in order to acquaint freshmen with all phases of college life and with the workings of each college department and student activity. There will also be academic tests in important subjects, physical training periods, campus problem discussions and library discussion groups, interspersed throughout the week's program. In order to take part in the week's activities upperclassmen who are heads of important college organizations will return to Chestertown for Freshman Week. Dr. William R. Howell, registrar of the college, announced today that a large number of applications for admission to the college is being received from high school graduates of the Eastern Shore and elsewhere.

Shoremen Will Start Practice Monday

More than 30 gridiron aspirants will answer the call of Coach Tom Kibler, of Washington College, next Monday to begin a training that will continue until the University of Maryland game at College Park.

The opening date for the fall training is a week later than usual, but the local mentor has been sooner. However, prospective gridders have been urged by Kibler to do a little preliminary training at home prior to coming here for intensive work.

Prospects are no better and no worse than last year, and an interesting schedule is arranged.
