VOL. 90. CHESTERTOWN, MARYLAND., SATURDAY, AUGUST 23, 1930 NO. 17

"Did you ever fall in love with words" asks the Literary Digest. Why, yes, we have to confess an irresistible fondness for such words as "inclosed find check in payment of what I owe you."

Elizabeth Jerns, 58, of Washington, D. C. was so "poor" that she took to tending a furnace at $10 a month. The woman died recently and stocks and bonds amounting to $30,000 were found in her trunk.

When you hear some people brag that their folks came over on the Mayflower just remind them that our immigration laws wtre very slack then.

The surest method of arriving at a knowledge of God's eternal purposes about us is to be found in the right use of the present moment.—F. W. Faber.

Now that General Motors is selling radios in addition to all its other products it might as well put on razor blades, tooth-paste and a good reliable hair grower so as to make its line complete.

Unearths Church Boundry Stone

While clearing away a quantity of bushes and undergrowth on the property surrounding the ancient home of the sexton of I. U. parish, the Rev. Dr. Sewell S. Hepbron, the rector emeritus of the parish discovered an old boundry stone, which he believes discloses the real reason for naming the parish I. U.

For many years the real reason for naming the parish, I. U., which was founded in 1760 has been a mooted question, notwithstanding the fact that Dr. Hepburn claimed though without positive proof that the parish was named for the original owner of the property which now forms what is known as I. U. parish, comprising the church grounds and property surrounding the sexton's home.

Upon examining the old boundry stone which marks a division line on the property, Dr. Hepburn and A. N. Stavely, a member of the vestry on Sunday discovered the initials "I. U." Determined to trace the origin of the boundry stone Dr. Hepburn searched the records in the Chestertown court house, where he secured this most valuable historical information: The property was originally in the possession of John N. Usilton, who sold it to Cornelia Ricaud. She sold it to Evan Lynch, for whom the village of Lynch, which still stands near the parish is believed to have been named, and Lynch in turn sold it to John N. Gemmill from whom it passed at sheriff's sale to the vestry and wardens of I. U. parish in 1877, Joseph Gilpin being sheriff of Kent county at the time. Dr. Hepburn believes that the initials appearing on the old boundry stone are those of the original owner, John Usilton, the I being old English for J. It is said that the vestry of the church paid $300 for the property, the money being raised by the ladies of the parish who conducted a restaurant at the old Worton county fair during the year 1877.

Dr. Hepburn is so firmly convinced of the authenticity of the old boundary stone that he proposes to have it mounted on a cement pedestal and placed in its original position on the boundry line for the benefit of posterity.

Full Skirt Uniform of United States Soldiers

A United States sergeant of marines presides over the island of Tutuila, where he is a veritable sultan and his army is made up of a group of natives who are regularly enlisted into the service. The uniform is strikingly different from that of any other unit of the American armed forces. The full uniform for state occasions consists of a turban of bright red muslin, a sash made of the same material and color as the turban, a lava lava or skirt of blue muslin, and a white cotton undershirt. The turban and the shirt are put on first, after which the lava lava, which is about 30 inches by 60 inches, is rolled around the body at the waist, turn after turn being wrapped on so that the bottom of the skirt is about 12 inches from the ground. After this is properly adjusted, the red sash, which is about eight feet long, is rolled into place. All this is spotlessly laundered and stiffly starched and must be put on carefully.

Original "Pancake"?

Historians tell us that the first "baked bread" was made when some mush, probably consisting of ground wild barley and water, was accidentally spilled on a hot stone, which was protecting the fire in front of a cave. When the food was scraped from the stone it consisted of a pancake with a brown crust. Its improved taste and health-giving qualities over raw food undoubtedly led to experimentation with fire.

Monarch's Three Crowns

The king of England has three crowns: King Edward the Confessor's crown, the imperial state crown and the imperial crown of India. The first crown was made for the coronation of Charles II in 1662. The imperial state crown of India owes its origin to the law which forbids the crown of England being taken out of England. When George V was crowned in Delhi a new crown had to be made.
