SHORE MEN IN BALTO. COURTS

Ernest Horstman, of Cambridge, Md., became embroiled with the Baltimore police Saturday.

According to police, Horstman, who is 27 years old, was arrested with two other men at Washington Boulevard and Scott street by Patrolmen Ulysses Harden and Edward Twele. He was accused of the unauthorized use of an automobile said to belong to James Brewer, of Cambridge, Md.

Horstman was searched and a loaded revolver was taken from his hip pocket, police say. This drew an additional charge of carrying a deadly weapon.

With two charges against him, he was taken to the police station only to find himself already accused of disturbing the peace in the 900 block Washington Boulevard and assaulting and attempting to shoot his wife. Police said Mrs Oliva Horstman, who lives in the 900 block Washington Boulevard, had been at the station ahead of him, declaring that he had broken in the door of her residence and attempted to shoot her.

He was held on all four charges for a hearing before Magistrate John T. Tormallan at the Southern Police Court.
