Another View Of The Wheat Price

To the Editor,
Kent News,
Chestertown, Md.
Dear Sir:

Two atricles which appeared in last week's issue of the Kent News, entitled, "Looks Like 90 Cent Wheat" and "Why are these facts," have aroused me to make inquiry of you as to the sourse of your information contained in these articles?

Both articles seem to take it for granted that the present Agricultural Marketing Act and the Federal Farm Board are responsible for present economic conditions and present prices.

As I have studied the Agricultural Marketing Act, I cannot find where the Federal Farm Board has any direct power to buy or market any agricultural commodity.

On the other hand, I do find that the Federal Farm Board is what we might term a "Building Commission." Congress told it to "promote, build and strengthen co-operative Marketing Associations." It has no money to give away. It may loan money at definite interest rates, which money the farmers' co-operatives must pay back. The Board has no power to do business with any individual farmer. A local co-operative association composed of individual farmers is the smallest unit recognized.

The enemies of co-operation and co-operative movements are prone to throw bricks at this piece of legislation and at the Federal Farm Board, and the two articles referred to in your paper seem to be a sample of the bricks being thrown, but no doubt unintentional on your part.

It is a tremendous and staggering task that the Farm Board has undertaken. Its members should have the help and encouragement of everyone and especially those who live on farms and in the villages and towns and who are dependent upon agriculture for their daily bread and butter.

This applies to the local merchants, bankers, professional men, editors, laborers, etc. When the farmer has no money to spend, when he has exhausted his credit, can't meet his bills and bank obligations, when he lapses his insurance and makes his old clothes, shoes and automobile last for another year or two, Who's hurt? When he has to do without some things that we have come to think of as necessities, doesn't it react all they way down the line?

So, why rock the boat Why lower the morale of a group that is struggling for equality with finance, industry, commerce, labor, etc.?

I haven't heard anyone crying paternalism and favoritism when the protective tariff was passed or the immigration law enacted. The bankers and business men were glad to have the Federal Reserve Act, the shipbuilding industry a $250,000,000 subsidy, etc., etc.

Yet when the farmer, through a 12-year fight of the Farm Bureau organization gets a piece of legislation that will put him in a position to help himself, the anvil chorus and the brick barrage begins.

Even this piece of legislation will not give him the artifical protection the other groups are now enjoying at the hands of a bountiful government. The farmer should have, and I predict will eventually get the "Debenture Plan" or the "Equalization Fee Plan," simply reversing the tariff for the goods (surplus) the farmer must sell in the world market.

The Farm Board has not failed. It takes time to build, but, it has already promoted and has incorporated national marketing organizations for grain, cotton, wool and livestock but that doesn't complete the job. The regional, state and local co-ops, with their necessary handling facilities and the man power to operate them, must be built. Fine progress is being made. Already the wool machinery in this state is functioning. The grain machine is building. Our part, if this is going to work, is to join and market our products through our local co-operative. Don't be impatient. The enemies of co-operation will tell you the Federal Farm Board has failed. Remember, Rome was not built in a day. The machine is being built.

In conclusion, may thank you for your patience and for the space this letter will occupy. I know it is not your intention to be destructive. My guess of $1.25 or $1.50 or even $1.75 wheat is just as good as some one elses 90 cent guess.

The job of building this marketing machine won't be completed in time this year to handle all of the crops we will produce. But let us all keep our faces uplifted and have faith in this great country of ours to do that which will give an equal opportunity to all classes. Let's Boost—Not Knock. Yours very truly,

E. THOS. MASSEY.

Atlanta Battle Painting

In the Cyclodrama in Grant park, Atlanta, hangs the only remaining painting of the Civil war battle, "The Battle of Atlanta." This weighs 18,000 pounds, measures 40 feet in height and 400 feet in circumference. At one time it was sold for $1,000, but $500,000 would not buy it now, according to a local authority. One hundred thousand persons view it annually.

Kent Nurses Make Report For May

Typhoid And Diphtheria Cases Reported

With one case each of typhoid fever and diphtheria reported during May the citizens of Kent who recall former epidemics of both diseases appreciate the immediate action taken by State and County health agents to check the spread of these great menaces to public health.

When a case of communicable disease is reported every precaution is taken to prevent the outbreak of further cases. Members of the family are given typhoid vaccine in the case of an outbreak of typhoid and the family have a case of diphtheria is given anti-toxin. The nurses visit the home and give instruction as to the care of patient so as to protect the household. The medical care is always in charge of the family physician who can count on the cooperation of the health service in the County as he may require it. If the patient is a school child his classroom is visited and all students examined. Any child with suspicious symptoms is excluded. During the period of incubation the classroom is carefully watched until all danger is passed.

On May 1 "Child Health Day" movies were held in two of the white schools and in other schools short programs were put on. The colored schools also observed the day with movies, folk dancing, drills, games, races, etc.

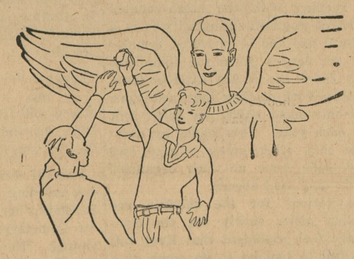

During the month the temporary hospital was unusually active having operations performed on eleven children and one adult for the removal of tonsils and adenoids. All patients were discharged in good condition.

At the T. B. Clinic held in the Health Center, May 5th, Dr. O'Neill examined five white patients and three colored patients.

At a pre-school clinic for the benefit of children entering school in the Fall which extended over a period of five days 55 white and 39 colored children were examined. When children are found to be in need of corrections parents are urged to take their children to their family doctor for treatment in order that the children may enter their class in September with as fine a physical condition as possible. The healthy child is most likely to make successful grades and everything should be done to start him on his school life without handicap of any sort.

The census of the County was increased by eighteen births during the month of May. Of these six were white and twelve colored. Three of the colored babies were delivered by midwives. In such cases the mother and infant is visited by the county nurse as many times as the nurse finds advisable.
