Camp Fire Girls Celebrate "Indian Year" During 18th Anniversary of Founding

THE 210,000 Camp Fire Girls will this year celebrate Indian Year as their 1930 project. The Camp Fire Girls are observing their eighteenth birthday as a national organization, and this year will be devoted to acquainting the American people with the deep debt which we owe to the Indians, the original Americans.

"Lamentably little is known of the American Indian by the people of this country," said Lester F. Scott, Executive Secretary of the Camp Fire Girls. "Our groups have for years made a study of the habits of the Indians, which study has culminated in our birthday project.

"The Indian woman," continued Mr. Scott, "utilized the idea of beauty in the kitchen hundreds of years before her twentieth century sisters discovered it. She made many of her kitchen utensils and dyed them in brilliant hues. Her baskets are world famous. She had the background of woods, prairies and deserts for her kitchen walls, completing a color scheme of unrivaled beauty.

"Incidentally, in many tribes she held a very high position. The Iroquois Indians in New York State had the first league of nations and, so far as we know, the first woman's suffrage. So highly did they regard their women that their government was distinctly a matriarchy.

"The characteristics of the Indian are admirable. He is absolutely truthful unless his white brothers have taught him to lie. He never whines. He is loyal, frank and honest. He is straightforward.

"The Indian's faculties are sharpened by listening to the voices of the woods and the winds. He understands woodcraft, the signs of the weather, the habits of plant and animal life. He glorifies health and walks erect. He is happy. The Indian woman glorifies work and elevates it to a ritual, enriching it with symbols and rites.

"We of the Camp Fire Girls' organization feel that these qualities deserve emulation by our young people, and that is why we have set aside this year as 'Indian Year'."

One of the chief requirements for the attainment of a special birthday honor is that the girl who secures it must have a thorough knowledge of the history and culture of the tribe which inhabited the section of the country where she lives. Each Indian tribe differed in language, customs and laws. She must also make a handcraft article, using Indian symbols in its decoration. The lines and color schemes of these articles will differ widely because of the diversity in Indian symbolism. The Indians in the eastern part of the United States had a symbolism full of curves and graceful lines. Because they lived in the forest they chose their symbols from plants and the leaves of the trees. The symbolism of the Navajos and Hopi Indians, on the other hand, was angular and geometric because the rocks gave them their inspiration for color and line.

In each group each girl who fulfils the requirements in Indian lore will receive a special birthday honor, which consists of the right to wear the Thunder Bird and other symbols. The Thunder Bird is chosen as a symbol because it is known to practically all Indian tribes, though used in different forms. Above it and below it are two thought symbols. The upper thought symbol is to be painted blue, the Thunder Bird red and the lower thought symbol white, making the red, white and blue, thus indicating the Indian as a citizen of the United States.

ACCUSED FREED, WITNESS HELD

A queen prang of the law developed Tuesday when a farmer responsible for the arrest of a supposed woman pickpocket in Baltimore was locked up as a State's witness while the suspect was freed in bail.

Unable to post bond for his appearance as a witness, James Roberts, fifty, a farmer near Chestertown, Md., was ordered held in jail. He charged Rosa Mitchell, forty, a gypsy of the 600 block East Pratt street, stole his purse containing $22 while pretending to tell his fortune.

She pleaded for a jury trial and was released in $250 bail.

Roberts quoted the woman as saying, as she touched the pocket containing his wallet:

"Oh, you have stomach trouble."

Her nimble fingers worked swiftly, the farmer said, as he gazed intently at a coin she had asked him to place in his hand.

Discovering his loss a few minutes later, Roberts called police, who arrested the woman. She was charged with obstructing free passage.

Grasshopper's Enemy

Grasshopper mice were so named back in 1833 in North Dakota because their fondness for grasshoppers was noted.

Company Opposes Bay Ferry Service

The Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co. at a hearing Monday before an assistant finance director of the Interstate Commerce Commission, opposed the application of the Chesapeake Beach Railroad Company for authority to extend its line approximately sixteen miles across the Chesapeake Bay to Cambridge, Md., by the establishment of ferry service from its eastern terminus at Chesapeake Beach.

Philip E. Perlman, attorney for the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Company, filed a petition with the commission to intervene in the case. The petition points out that the proposal would interfere with the Claiborne company's service. It also denied that "the present and future public convenience and necessity require the establishment of the proposed ferry.

Mr. Fox told the examiner that it was proposed to put two ferries in service with a capacity for ninety-five cars and 1,800 passengers. The vessels, he said, would cost approximately $350,000 and the time across the bay would be cut to an hour.

The Railroad claimed that motorists from Washington to the Eastern Shore would save considerable in distance. Mr. Perlman said that would depend upon the destination.

COAL SPELLS GOLD

Thornley Martin, Green Hall Apts. Baltimore, Md., Carl A. Buchele, 2012 Mt. Royal Terrace, Baltimore and Mrs. F. L. Wade, Box 50, Glen Burnie, Md., submitted the Slogans which have just been awarded 6th, 10th and 11th Prize in the Nationwide Coal Slogan Prize Contest staged by the National Retail Coal Merchants Association. Their wealth producing words were "Cold Time is Coal Time," "Warmath without Worry" and "Tons of Comfort".

Herbert Moeller, struggling student instructor of the University of Illinois, came under the tape ahead of the entire field, his acrostical slogan "Coal-Comfort of American Life", being placed first of the 172,670 slogans by the seven nationally known judges, chairmaned by Dr. Julius Klein. Thirty eight other winners come from 25 states and one from Canada.

PROHIBITION OFFICE IS OPENED AT SALISBURY

Windsor is working with several other agents, including Henry Thompson, who until last Friday was connected with the prohibition office in Wilmington.

The branch office will be responsible for prohibition enforcement in the nine Eastern Shore counties of Maryland.

Until today the Eastern Shore enforcement work was under the office of George A. Hill, prohibition director for Delaware, with offices in Wilmington.
