AT LAST

A man decided he and his son would take a drive in their new car. As they entered the car, the father said to the boy: "Now, if you see a motor cycle cop coming behind us, you tell Papa."

They settled down to driving and the car crept up to 30 miles, 35, 40, 45, 50, 55 and finally to 60 miles an hour. Suddenly the little boy cried: "Papa, the man you were expecting is here."—Pacific Power and Light Bulletin.

The Superpirate

Captain Kidd—What's this I hear about your reforming and quitting the high seas?

Sir Henry Morgan—Reform nothing! True, I have abandoned the seas, but I have invested my money in a number of apartment buildings and a chain of delicatessen stores.

As Advertised

Installment Collector—See here, you're several installments behind on your piano.

Purchaser—Well, the company advertises, "Pay as you play."

Collector—What's that got to do with it?

Purchaser—I play very poorly.

A Success Story

"Busy" was the word from the inner office when Mr. Salesman called.

Nothing daunted, he wrote across is card: "That's why I am calling. I haven't any time to waste on loafers," and sent it in again.

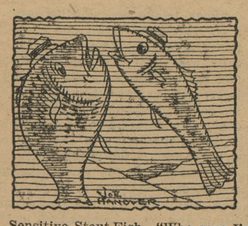

This time he got in.

Oh, Well—

Broker—I have bought you 500 shares of common stock, madam.

Mrs. Fitzwalter—Well, I don't want them. What on earth would my friends say if they knew I'd got anything common?

FISH SCALES

Sensitive Stout Fish—"Who says I'm too heavy? I've just weighed myself and I'm no heavier than I ought to be.

Jocular Thin Fish—Then your scales are wrong!

Adam Never Heard It

Whatever trouble Adam had,
No man in days of yore
Could say when Adam told a joke,
"I've heard that one before."

Need of Training

"Is that man a trained singer?"

"I shouldn't say so," answered Miss Cayenne. "He is vocally expert, but personally he still needs a lot of training to keep him from being classified as a wild man."—Washington Star.

Promptly Settled

"Now, Albert," said the teacher, "if you had four apples, and your little sister asked for half of them, how many would you have left?"

"Four," responded Albert, without a moment's hesitation.

Some Discrepancy

She—Time separates the best of friends.

He—It sure does. Thirteen years ago we were seventeen. Now you are twenty-one and I am thirty.

Lots of Worries

Tonks—It's not the cost of the car that worries the average motorist. It's the upkeep.

Banks—And sometimes the turnover.

Beauty Costs

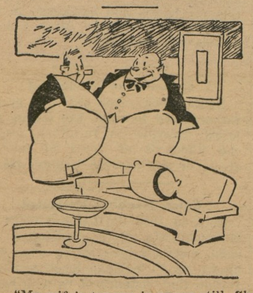

"How long you been married, Joe?"

"Six months."

"How's things?"

"I've found out that a permanent wave ain't so permanent."

MUST FEEL RELIEVED

"My wife's tongue is never still. She talked her head off this morning."

"How relieved you must feel."

Easier to Handle

"You hit your husband with a chair? Pray tell me why you did it, Mabel."

"I did it," sighed the lady fair,
"Because I could not lift the table."

Thorough Workers

Voice From Upstairs—Haven't you two finished hanging that mistletoe yet?

Sweet Thing—Yes, mamma, but we're just testing it.

Uncle Eben

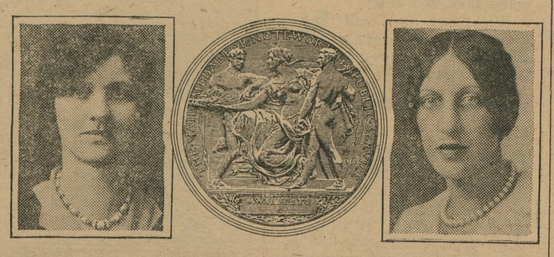

"De trouble 'bout a loafer," said Uncle Eben, "is dat he ain' satisfied to loaf by hisself. He always wants a lot o' folks to quit work an' keep him company."—Washington Star.

VAIL MEDALS ARE AWARDED CHIEF OPERATOR AND CLERK

Telephone Employees Honored for Saving Life and Giving Information on Attempted Burglary

Mrs. Vera C. MacMillan, chief operator, and Miss Marian Boyd, clerk, with Vail Medal, center, which each will receive.

Vail Medals for noteworthy public service will be presented to Mrs. Vera C. MacMillan, night chief operator, Winchester, Va., and Miss Marian Boyd, clerk in the Washington telephone business office, John C. Koons, vice-president of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Companies, announces.

Mrs. MacMillan will receive a medal for her resourcefulness in helping to apprehend a burglar who was attempting to rob a safe in a local creamery. While working the switchboard as an operator about 2 A. M., January 20, 1929, she attempted to answer a signal appearing on the switchboard. Receiving no response, she listened in on the line and heard what was apparently the sound of a hammer pounding steel. Quickly grasping the situation, she called the Police Department, told them of her suspicions, and a police officer, after listening in on the line, went with other officers to the creamery in which the telephone was located and surprising the burglar, attempted to place him under arrest. The burglar in trying to escape was killed by one of the officers

Miss Boyd, while bathing with several companions at South River Beach, Maryland, June 30 of last year, saw three small girls playing in the water near the shore. Suddenly screams were heard and the bathers rushing to the spot from which the alarm had come, found that the children had stepped from a ledge of the beach into deep water. One of them was rescued by a young man of the party, while Miss Boyd swam to the rescue of the other two. She grasped one of the girls and attempted unsuccessfully to reach the other who sank below the surface. Swimming against the outgoing tide she reached the shore with the girl she had rescued. Then with her companions she rushed back into the water and began diving to locate the girl who sank. After an hour's fruitless search, she collapsed from shock and exhaustion.

The citation covering these Vail Medal awards, Mr. Koons states, in the case of Mrs. MacMillan reads: "By her prompt and intelligent action and use of the facilities of the company, performed a valuable service in protecting a community from crime."

The other citation reads: "By this combination of courage, presence of mind, and ability to act effectively, Miss Boyd risked her own life to save the life of one person and in an attempt to save that of another."

Vail Medal awards are made annually as a memorial to Theodore N. Vail, late president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Mr. Vail was long recognized as one of the world's great business leaders, and it was to his conspicuous service in the telephone field that were largely due the expansion of the Bell System and the development of the art of telephony.

Under the terms of the establishment, bronze, silver, and gold medals are awarded to members of the Bell Telephone organization throughout the United States for acts or services which conspicuously illustrate Mr. Vail's ideals in public service.
