THE MODERN FUNERAL

The methods and systems in vogue a few years ago and still adhered to by many, are no longer applicable in this age and generation. A better understanding of the duties of the funeral director has changed the old order. One of the most difficult problems confronting the modern funeral director will be solved when the public realizes that SERVICE is the principal, and in fact, only commodity which we have to offer.

The casket and funeral appertinances are negligible or practically so, requiring little or no experience and, in the matter of expense, consist only with the cost of production.

SERVICE is the main consideration—the care and disposition of the body of the one that has Passed on, knowledge and ability and a readiness to relieve the burden of those who are left to mourn.

EDITORS ARE HUMAN

When a questionable situation arises in a town, it is quite the fashion to remark that the newspapers ought to say something about that.

The average citizen feels quite certain he could run a newspaper better than the editor does, and if he were publisher of that sheet, he'd show 'em, you can bet. As a matter of fact, if he has horse sense, he would do just as the editor—put the soft pedal on family rows, church squabbles, scandals not involving major priniciples, and such matters of ultimately minor importance as will adjust themselves with the passing of time.

The newspaper critic ought not to expect the newspaper man to advocate or attack any proposition which he himself lacks the courage to support or assail over his own signature. The editor is willing, even eager, to push any project in the public interest, but is not willing to pull chestnuts from the fire for individuals or minorities.

PARTIAL ECLIPSE VISIBLE APRIL 28

Kent County will have an unusual opportunity, April 28, if the skies are clear, to view a partial eclipse of the sun.

Dr. J. Carlton Wolf, Sc. D., director of the Maryland Academy of Science, and astronomical expert, said that the moon will advance its shadow first over the rim of the sun at four minutes past 2 P. M.

By 4.25 P. M., the shadow will have passed across the sun. At the maximum of eclipse, at 3,25 P. M., the sun will be nearly half covered by shadow as seen here.

Dr. Wolf said:

"This section will not be more darkened than if a cloud had passed over the sun, but it will be an interesting and unusual sight. The last eclipse of this was visible in Pairs during the war.

"This on, starting to become visible out beyond Honolulu in the Pacific, will move rapidly northward. Becoming visible in United States just north of San Francisco, its path will move over California, the northwest portion of Nevada, the southeastern tip of Oregon, most of northern Montana, then into Canada, and finally over Labador.

"Although the eclipse will not strictly be total anywhere, as it is a central or annual eclipse, meaning that a ring of the sun will show around the moon's shadow, it will be nearly total over the states I have mentioned.

"The farther south we are, the less nearly total it will be. In New York, for instance, it will be 54 per cent, and only 49 per cent on the Eastern Shore.

"The eclipse moves over the sun rapidly, and even where it will be total, the totality will last only a couple of seconds.

"As the Maryland watcher views the sky April 28, if we are lucky to have a clear afternoon, he will see the curving shadow attack the sun from the lower right-hand tip, then move in and up, until practically half the sun is covered, and then upward and outward until the shadows disappear again."
