BANKS INSTALL BURGLAR ALARM

The Chestertown Bank of Maryland, the Third National Bank, the Millington Gank, the Church Hill Bank and the Sudlersville Bank are now having installed the latest type of burglar alarm for their bank buildings.

It is a sound wave burglar alarm system designed and manufactured by the O. B. McClintock Co., of Minneapolis.

The outstanding feature of the system isthe remarkable manner in which it makes the system sensitive to the noise as well asto the contact attendant upon any possible form of burglarious attack. It practically equips the vaults with Ears, Nerves and a loud voice.

These so-called ears of the vault are really supersensitive sound wave instruments installed within the vault which by automatic time control, are electrically active during the nighttime. The time control also provides for the continuous activity of the protection during the daytime on Sundays or holidays, when the bank is not open for business.

The sound wave protection is controlled by very finely tuned instruments which, during active hours, cause an instant alarm at the slightest noise made upon the vault structure or within the vault. The tap of a tool or the snap of a cutting torch upon the vault wall or door will instantly start the alarm. On the other hand, no amount of noise made in the surrounding room, no rthe rumbling of a train, or the vibration of the heavy building—such as caused by heavy trucks or streetcars will sound the alarm.

The sound wave protects the vault at every minute pin-point of space and the vault door is also equipped with special electrical thermostatic contacts which start the alarm when any one of them is reached by around 150 degrees of heat.

The alarm is given by the sounding of a large gong on the outside of the building. Thi sgong, together with the control instruments, ringing mechanism and ringing battery, is installed in a heavy steel housing as completely electrically protected as in the vault itself, so that it is not possible to get at the gong to prevent the ringing of the alarm.

The connection between the vault and the outside gong is by means of an electrical multiple—wire cable carrying a number of open and closed circuits. Any attempt to cut this cable inevitably trips the alarm.

Inasmuch as all the control instruments of the system are located within the vault, once the timer within the vault has made the electrical protection complete for the night, it becomes completely self-protective. From then on until the next morning no one, not even the banker himself or the expert who installs the system can get into the vault in any possible manner without setting off the alarm.

The history of such alarm systems has proved that in case of an attempted burglary, the sounding of the alarm drives the burglars away without an instant's delay. In fact they never even stop to pick up tools or clothing. The alarm does not depend upon police or others to back up its authority. Its primary effect is upon the burglar himself.

Definite steps were taken looking to the erection of a Community Center for Chestertown by a committee of the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company headed by P. Medford Brooks. The committee began the task of selecting a suitable location from among a number of available sites conveniently situated in the town, among which are what is known as the Rockwell building at the corner of Cross and Park Row and a lot on Cross Street, near the Pennsylvania Railroad station.

AVIATION INSTRUCTION

Doctor Paul E. Titsworth, president of Washington College, at Chestertown, Maryland, announced today that a system of aviation instruction would be established in Washington College.

He further stated that the instruction would be given by the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service of Baltimore, which is known as the world's oldest flying organization and is operating nationally, covering every phase of the aeronautical industry.

The course of instruction will cover airport management, airplane motors, rigging, construction, meteorology, navigation, theory of flight, air commerce regulations and commercial aviation. The object of the course is to qualify men and women for the U. S. Department of Commerce examinations and positions in the aircraft industry.

The course will be given Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings and will be open to the public as well as students at Washington College. Lt. L. M. Rawlins, the instructor, will fly back and forth from Baltimore to conduct the course.

There will be an open meeting Wednesday night at the College, where motion pictures will be shown, covering airplane activities, and addresses will be made by Lt. L. M. Rawlins, Major W. D. Tipton and G. E. Woods, on commercial aviotion throughout the United States.

The judges were Assistant Superintendent of Schools, John Shilling of Delaware; Major W. S. Short, principal of Wesley Collegiate Institute, Dover, and the Rev. J. Harry Wright. of Chestertown.

Friday night the Washington College team went to Myerstown, Pa., to engage Albright College in a return debate on the same subject. Those making the trip were J. The Kent Musical Society have accepted an invitation to present their fine Lenten Concert and Cantata in Easton on Sunday afternoon, March 30. The affair will be sponsored by the Euterpean Society of Easton. This is a ladies' choral club of wide reputation. This is a most commendable spirit of good-will among singers of Easton Shore towns.

A Great Concert By Musical Society

Music lovers in this and various other counties were given a treat last Sunday afternoon in William Smith Hall, Washington College, when the Kent County Musical Society gave a sacred concert under the direction of Mrs. Cleveland S. Smith and Dr. Walter Rockwood Ferris, of Easton. Mrs. Smith conducted the first part of the program consisting of sacred selections of which were greatly enjoyed and well rendered. The second part comprised the rendition of the Lenten Cantata, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace."

Dr. Walter Rockwood Ferris, of New York and Easton, former director of the Orange County Oratorio Society of New York, was the guest director for the cantata and visiting soloists were Elwood Wagner, a baritone of Cambridge, Mrs. Roy Schmidt, of Price and F. J. Morgan, of Easton. Mrs. Fred G. Usilton, of Chestertown sang a soprano solo and Wilbur Hubbard a tenor solo. In the tableaux Misses Virginia Hughes and Mary Ann Cowman, of Easton appeared. Misses Louise Russell presided at the piano and the Washington College orchestra played during the program, lead by Prof. Y. G. Livingood.

William R. Phipps, supervisor of elementary schools in Talbot county, arranged the tableaux most successfully.

An impressive feature of the program was the rendition of "The Old Rugged Cross," by a double quartette composed of the college boys. Rammond Moffett took the solo part finely. This rendition also brought out the splendid work of Mrs. Smith as a director.

Another great triumph for fine music and its appreciation by a splendid audience was marked up by this society and its inspired leader. It was a compliment to all concerned and the college and town should take a pardonable pride in having given the public such a magnificent presentation.

PARENTS' DAY APRIL 3

"Parents' Day" at Washington College has been set for Thursday, April 3 and will coincide with the meeting between the lacrosse team of the local institution and that of the Oxford-Cambridge combination from England.

Plans now being formed at Washington College call for a special assembly on Thursday morning to which all parents of students at the Paul E. Titsworth, president of local school will be invited. Dr. Washington College, will deliver an address of welcome and in all probability a father of one of the students will respond.

The observation of "Parents' Day" has become an annual custom at the local college since Dr. Titsworth has been in the presidency.

FIELD DAY DATES

Monday, May 19, has been announced by Superintendent Louis C. Robinson as the date for the annual Field Day for the white schools of Kent County. The games, under the direction of the Playground Athletic League of Maryland, will be held on the Washington College athletic field.

VERDICT OF $900

The News last week published an account of the Burris trial but omitted the verdict of $900.

The case of Mrs. Charlotte A. Schultz vs. Thomas J. Buris for damages incident to personal injuries in an automobile accident last October, was brought up in Elkton court last week with John D. Urie, Scott Beck, Joshua Clayton, G. Reynolds Ash, Esqs., defending Mr. Burris.

Testimony brought out that Mrs. Shultz sustained a fractured skull and permanent injuries to her hearing and sight, as well as her nerves.

After deliberating for two hours and thirty-five minutes, the jury returned a decision for $900 for Mrs. Shultz. There are three other cases to be tried.

H. D. Orem and Son have recently improved their machinery headquarters with repairs to weather boarding and a fresh coat of paint which indicates that this firm is ready for spring business. See advertisement in this issue of their tractors, plows, manure spreaders; etc.

"Dollar Day" in Chestertown was a great success. Merchants report big sales and the public were delighted at the many bargains.

ONE YEAR TO BUILD CHESAPEAKE BAY BRIDGE

"We can build the Chesapeake Bay bridge in one year," says Engineer Arthur Fertel, of the Raymond Construction Co.

Mr. Fertel made a fine talk before the Chestertown Rotary Club last Monday evening and the above was in answer to the question of how long will it take to build the Chesapeake Bay Bridge.

Mr. Fertel said the subject of his talk would be found in the 24th and 25th verses of the 7th Chapter of Matthews.

The Raymond Co. expect to finish their job of furnishing and driving piles for the Chester River bridge in about three weeks. The speaker said that the 70 foot concrete piles that his company were placing on this job cost about $350 each.

Mr. Claude Truslow, of the Truslow Poultry Farm will be the guest speaker at the Rotary Club next Monday evening.

COUNTY BOARDS TO MEET IN KENT

Because Kent County has recently completed the most extensive program of good roads ever carried through by a Maryland county, the Association of County Commissioners of the Eastern Shore has decided to hold its semi-annual convention here so that county officials may make a thorough study of the million-dollar project just finished.

Among the topics listed for discussion is a proposed plan to substitute surface-bound for concrete roads in some of the county programs. Especial attention, it is said, will be given the slag roads in which Kent county excels.

President Samuel J. Johnson, T. Ringgold Jones and Charles D. Wood of the Kent County board of commissioners, together with County Engineer Gilbert B. Taylor and Treasurer Clarence Newsome, will act as a reception committee. Herbert E. Perkins is attorney to the board.

The last meting was held at Snow Hill on October 7, 1929. The meeting here will be held in Kent County courthouse Thursday, April 17. The address of welcome will be given by Herbert E. Perkins, Esq., the attorney to the Kent County commissioners.

Miss Lambert, a former Chestertown girl, was a member of the New York Women's Swimming Association relay team which set a new world mark of 4 minutes 19 and 2-5 seconds off the five year old record held by a team of which Miss Lambert was also a member. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Kent Lambert, of Cristobal, Canal Zone.

Saturday saw the close of the muskrat season. The prices ranged from $1.05 for browns to $1.60 for blacks. Buyers report equally as good a season as last year. Crows and skunks have been plentiful.
