Old-Time Stage Line

The longest stage line in history was the Butterfield stage line, 2,880 miles, running from St. Louis to San Francisco by way of El Paso and Los Angeles. It was established in 1858 and continued to be a marvel of transportation for those early days until given up at the outbreak of the Civil war.

Historic Cathedral

The cathedral of Reims was completed in 1231. It was celebrated for its wonderful rose window as well as for other architectural details of great beauty. The cathedral has undergone many changes. Its facade is said to be one of the most perfect masterpieces of the world. The building suffered almost beyond description during the World war.

First Offenders

According to a clergyman, much trouble would be avoided if married people exercised more common sense. All matrimonial trouble would be avoided if only single people exercised more common sense.—Detroit News.

"Carillons" and "Chimes"

The Etude says: "The carillon consists of 28 or more bells of varying weight and size. Each bell has at least five tones—strike tone, hemitone (an octave above,) hum tone (octave below), minor third, perfect fifth. These must be in perfect tune with each other before tuning with other bells. The range of these bells is four or more octaves of a chromatic scale. A chime has a few bells tuned to the diatonic scale, usually within the compass of one octave."

Music Here and in Europe

The European regards music as a pleasure. The American looks upon it as a course in education. Go to a symphony in Europe and you'll see the house listening. Go to one here and you'll see half the house making notes and the other half waiting to explain something or other in the composition to its companion in the next seat.—George Jean Nathan.

Compulsion's Result

No human power can force the intrenchments of the human mind; compulsion never persuades; it only makes hypocrites.—Fenelon.

Learn Only Words

We are students of words: we are shut up in schools, and colleges, and recitation rooms, for ten or fifteen years, and come out at last with a bag of wind, a memory of words, and do not know a thing.—Emerson.

Hawaii Healthful

The temperature of Hawaii is very equable. The average in the lowlands is 70 degrees for January, 78 degrees for July. The extremes are 89 degrees and 54 degrees Fahrenheit. At Honolulu the rainfall averages only about 32 inches per year, but the humidity is considerable. On the whole, the climate is considered healthful and equable.

Cuckoo's Prophesy

In some parts of Germany and northern Europe one of the popular beliefs among the peasantry is that when you first hear the cuckoo in the morning the bird will, if asked in a respectful manner, immediately repeat its note just as many times as you have years to live.

Mullin And Sons Celebrate 50 Yrs.

Congratulations were received Tuesday by the heads of the store of James T. Mullin and Sons, Inc., Sixth and Market Streets, Wilmington, Del. on the occasion of the observance of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the business institution. No formal ceremony was held to mark the anniversary.

The present business, it was learned, is the result of the ambitions and business ability of a man of vision who started as a telegraph operator, but, dissatisfied with his job, determined to seek his fortune elsewhere, and came to Wilmington to make good.

The result is explained in the manner in which the company describes itself—"A great store in a great city"—which has grown from a small enterprise to a leading position in Wilmington's mercantile life.

It was back in Guthrieville, Pa., on May 4, 1836, that James T. Mullin, son of Squire and Mrs. John M Mullin, was born. At an early age James T. Mullin was a telegraph dispatcher for the Chester Valley Railroad Co., running between Downingtown and Bridgeport, Pa.

Mr. Mullin was not satisfied with his job, and decided to make a venture in the business world. Accordingly, in 1862 at 56 East Gay St., West Chester, Pa., there was opened a business establishment bearing Mr. Mullin's name, which later moved to 32 West Gay St. This store was in operation until 1880 when he left to establish in Wilmington.

He was accompanied by Thomas O'Connell, who is now in business at 410 Delaware Ave. The two men opened a merchant tailoring establishment of modest proportions at 9 East Fourth St. In this little store James T. Mullin set himself up catering to men's and boys' wear.

Through their untiring work, square dealing, and steady faith in the community, the little business prospered and grew until Mr. Mullin and Mr. O'Connell found the location inadequate, and Mr. Mullin decided to purchase the present corner building at Sixth and Market Sts., erected by the late Alexander Saville.

Mr. Mullin meantime reached a stage in years when responsibilities must grow less. In 1896 he died, leaving his son, John S. Mullin, to carry on the work of development and expansion which culminated in the purchase of the old City Hall property, on part of which he erected the present four story, fireproof structure. Added to the old Saville building, the space was tripled, giving a front entrance on King St. and permitting a display front on Sixth St.

Steady growth was marked with the passing of time, with patronage from many States, and the fine, strong spirit of the founder has persisted until today the Mullin Store is recognized as the largest men's and boys' outfiters in the State of Delaware.

John S. Mullin died several years ago, leaving the management of the business to his son, J. Paul Mullin, who has become president of the company and manager of the store. Another son, MacSummer Mullin, is also associated with the business as head of the merchant tailoring department.

Customer—Are these clams fresh?

Dealer—Well, they ought to be; they've been resting here for three weeks.

Weed—Are you preparing to do any shooting this season?

Dorrance—Yes, I have to go on a business trip to Chicago.
