AIDS DYING MAN ENROUTE TO KIN

A frantic woman stood in the roadway in front of the farm home near Chestertown Saturday afternoon to plead with the first passerby for medical aid for her dying husband. The first person who approached was a physician, who had already driven 100 miles from his home in Chincoteague Island, Va., to treat injuries that his two daughters, and son, Washington College students here had suffered in an automobile accident.

In this way the death of Thomas Dewberry, age 57, a Queen Anne's county farmer, late Saturady night, and the automobile crash of four Washington College students at Ingleside, Queen Anne's County, led to a clash of duties, one to his profession and the other to his children on the part of Dr. D. C. LeKites.

And despite the fact that he did not know at the time that the injuries suffered by his daughters were of a minor degree, he performed both duties.

Dr. LeKites' two daughters, Miss Kathryn Le Kites, 20, and Miss Emery Lou, 17, were slightly injured in the accident at Ingleside earlier Saturday as were his son, Paul Le Kites, 19, and another occupant of the car, Miss Dorothy Van Lenten, of Midland Park, N. J., the latter being the most seriously injured. She was badly cut by flying glass when the car in which the four were riding skidded and struck a bridge abutment there. The four, students at Washington College, Chestertown, were on their way to visit Dr. LeKites in Chincoteague.

PREDICT STRONG NET TEAM

Washington College tennis team, facing the hardest schedule ever attempted, will put the snappiest team seen here for many years, on the courts, according to Manager W. Clayton Dodds. Monrovian College has been added to the list of competitors of last season as has American University, Delaware and Haverford. Though local players anticipate little difficulty with Moravian, Susquehanna and Juanita College, stiff opposition is expected from Delaware, American and Haverford all of which have experienced players. No date has been set for the American University tilt though it is believed it will come well down on the schedule. All matches will be played on foreign courts.

Among the veterans of last season with which Coach John D. Makosky will start the season are Dodds, a fast singles player, Alexander, Coulbourn and Cooper. In addition Stan Giraitis is coming out for tennis as is Stevens ,the elongated basketball center. D. B. Ford, another tall and rangy player, and deWitt Clark of Baltimore, an experienced netman. are out to make the varsity team.

According to Tom Kibler, athletic director, Washington will be without a track team this season.

The Tennis schedule follows:
May 8—Moravian College, at Bethlehem.
May 9—Susquehanna University at Selinsgrove, Pa.
May 10—Juanita College, at Huntington, Pa.
May 20—Delaware University, at Newark.
May 25—Haverford College, at Haverford.
Pending—American University, at Washington, D. C.

Master Farm Homemaker

The nomination for Master Farm Homemaker in Kent County have been made. Those interested in the movement will be glad to know how the Master Farm Homemakers are chosen.

It is not an honor which any woman can seek for herself. The nomination must come to her as a spontaneous recognition by her community of the things she has done and the life she has lived.

It is not a "contest" in the ordinary sense of the word. We do not say. "These are the best homemakers in the state." Rather we say, "Here are three women who are typical of the finest standards of farm homemaking. We are honoring them this year. Through them we are giving honor to all successful farm homemakers in this State and in all States."

The title MASTER FARM HOMEMAKER is given only to those women who have been given their MASTER FARM HOMEMAKING pins. Until they have been publicly recognized they are your MASTER FARM NOMINEES.

The woman who is nominated must be a real farf woman. It is not enough that she is living on a farm she must be carrying the normal responsibilities of a farm homemaker. A woman who has relinquished the major responsibilities of the farm home is not eligible for consideration, even though she is still living on the farm.

There is no definite age requirement but more and more the state committees of judges have come to feel that the woman who is recognized should be fairly well developed and her children old enough to show the outcome of her hofemaking.

Housekeeping is by no means the chief requirement, but there should be a good standard of housekeeping as a background for the larger activities of homemaking.

It is well to consider whether she is a woman who will be sufficiently interested to fill out her work sheet after she has been nominated, and return it promptly.

Does the family sing together? How many evenings a week on an average do the children spend at home? What special health difficulties have been overcome or combatted? Do you take a vacation each year? At what age and how did you teach your children to assume responsibility in the home tasks?

The three Master Farm Homemakers nominated from Kent County this year are: Mrs. Wilbur Morris, Flatland Homemakers Club; Mrs. Howard Rees, Fairlee Homemakers Club; and Mrs. Frank Skirven, Fairlee Homemakers Club.

AMOS, ANDY FORM THEIR ENTIRE CAST

Much of the mystery surrounding the popular radio idols, Amos 'n' Andy is dispelled for the first time in a current issue of Radio Digest Magazine. Describing the broadcast in details, the article tells how Amos takes the part of the King Fish by the simple expedient of talkingcloser to the microphone in a slightly lowered tone of voice; to revert to his role of Amos, he steps back a few feet and resumes his natural voice.

Yet the difference is so marked says Bill Hay, that thousands of listeners have insisted that the King Fish is played by a third person.

Atno time do Amos 'n' Andy in their broadcast of that name, employ outside talent to create the many characters their listeners hear. Only Amos 'n' Andy are present in the studio as their voices go out over the air.

According to Bill Hay the publication of these facts should definitely set at rest many parlor arguments on these mooted questions.

High-voiced Amos is Freeman F. Gosden, 31, native of Richmond, Va. He is a tall, erect blonde with tight, wavy hair, a broad brow and wide-set eyes. He was raised with a Negro "mammy" and a Negro playmate from whom he gained much of his extraordinary knowledge of racial peculiarities. During the war he served in the navy, then became a tobacco salesman. Returning to Richmond he did a clog dance in a home talent show directed by Chicago professionals. They offered him a job coaching similar productions; he accepted.

Deep-voiced Andy is Charles J. Correll, 40. He is shorter than his partner, thickset, pompadoured. He was born in Peoria, Ill., sold newspapers, worked with his family's construction company, played the piano in a cinemahouse at night. He won local dancing contests, sang in minstrel shows, acted in neighborhood dramas. Finally he too became a professional coach. One of his assignments was in Durham, N. C., where he had to teach the business to a neophyte named Freeman F. Gosden. For six years they staged musical shows, plays and circuses for such organizations as the Elks, American Legion and Shriners, carried properties and costumes around the country in innumeable trunks. In 1924 they were made office managers of the company, took a Chicago apatrment. For fun they obtained a radio tryout without pay. This led to regular engagements. First they sang songs, told stories; gradually they evolved their blackface manner. Gosden taught Correll the dialect. For a while they were known as Sam 'n' Henry. In March, 1928, they first performed as Amos 'n' Andy. In 1927 both were married.
