The Kent News

SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1931

"POPPY WEEK" starts today.

NEXT Saturday is Decoration Day.

WITH the Baltimore Sun we ask, what has become of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Action.

DR. H. B. SIMMONS, of Chestertown, was re-elected first vice-president of the Maryland State Homeopathic Medical Society when that body ended its annual meeting in Baltimore Thursday. Dr. Simmons is the only officer of the society who is not a resident of Baltimore City.

Dr. William Dulaney Thomas, of Baltimore, was re-elected president of the group. Speaking before the final session of the annual meeting Dr. Thomas urged that Maryland should adopt a law requiring yearly vaccination for dogs in order to decrease rabies among persons bitten.

Seven states have adopted laws requiring dogs to be vaccinated for hydrophobia and since the passage of these laws only one dog of 31,307 innoculated was not immune to the disease.

JAMES W. CHAPMAN, of Chestertown and Baltimore, president of the Maryland State Bar Association, will preside at the thirty-sixth annual meeting of that body to be held at the Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City, from June 25 to 27, inclusive. Mr. Chapman, as retiring head of the group, will deliver the openning address.

The committee on nominations has proposed a list for election as officers of the association which includes the name of Senator S. Scott Beck. of Chestertown, as one of the vice-presidents.

Judge D. Lindsay Sloan, of Cumberland, has been nominated for the presidency of the group. Nomination is considered virtually election as the association in the past always has approved the committee's recommendations.

IS IT PUNISHMENT?

Chestertown and Kent citizens have had a practical demonstration of the farcical punishment of violators of the liquor law by the U. S. Government. About fifteen federal prisoners are in the Chestertown jail. Some for six months and others longer. A half dozen, who are able, eat at the Sheriff's table and pay extra board while others are kept on the 75 cents per day menu. These prisoners roam about the court house yard, visit the movies, walk about town and receive friends at will. They have provided themselves with easy chairs, hammocks, etc., and find pleasure in base ball. quoits, etc. In other words, they are the envy of toilers who pass by as they see the "prisoners" enjoying the shade and cool breezes.

Billy Usilton 3rd, in his column headed "An Outsider Looking In" says "I consider it liberation when the home town commissioners have the courage, in the face of powerful opposition to let out a decision permitting the local pee-wee magnets to keep their courses running on the Sabbath." Liberty, indeed! The Big Men of business testify that there is a remarkable connection between a righteous six days and a religious seventh. In the business history of our nation. says a well-known authority, every period of sound prosperity has been heralded by a moral awakening; every period of depression has been foreshadowed by moral weakening. It has always been true that an increase in church attendance and Sunday observance shows that people are developing the necessary character for an era of business progress and national prosperity. A decline in Church attendance and Sunday observaonce is one of the surest symptons that character is being undermined and that hard times are ahead as the natural economic consequence. Sunday observance has been the source of the spiritual force which has developed our nation not only politically but commercially and industrially as well. Let us not forget that the Sabbath Day is decreed by God from which the other six derive their greatest inspiration and in which they find their most glorious fulfillment. Therefore,

"Remember the Sabbath Day to Keep it Holy." This is the courage to be commended and not the breaking of Divine Law. ,

Cheerfulness, sir, is the principal ingredient in the composition of health.—Murphy.

He is not only idle who does nothing, but he is idle who might be better employed.—Socrates.

The mark of a fine mind is that it often doesn't have any desire to be "efficient."

Comfort and indolence are cronies.

By BILL USILTON

There seems to be no more appropriate way to start the chatter off this week than to acknowledge the first letter of congratulation that has come to me as a budding (or frost-bitten) young columnist. It came this morning from the fair city of Crumpton, which bathes its feet in the sparkling waters of the Chester long before Chestertown, with its halo of the purest city among the "Ten Thousand" class of municipalities, even moistens her fingertips in its limped pools. Mary Fennimore Sheppard is the correspondent and I'm vain enough to take the liberty to include her very gracious note in this column. Mary Fennimore Sheppard writes, "It is with great personal pride for the EASTERN SHORE that I note the debut of a local columnist—yourself. Every good wish to you." And I must say Miss (or is it Mrs.) Sheppard, that I'm particularly elated with the wording of your encouraging note. For, though short and precise, it has some hidden meanings....that is if I want to give solace to my columnistic vanity. I thank you!

My awe, I suppose I have such a thing, of the dignity and all-powerful efficiency of stupendous corporations and industries was given a resounding jolt the other day when I heard of this incident that occurred during an important directors' meeting within one of the nation's greatest combines....all the boys of the-vests-with-the-white-braid gathered at the appointed hour and strode into the highly-vaulted board room for the monthly meeting. It was a solemn and grim occasion for something had to be done in the direction of economy. The meeting was called to order and, over cigars and thermos-bottled refreshments, the titans argued and debated for hours in an effort to reduce that thing called "overhead." After about sixteen hung juries, a box of Cremos and considerable brow-beating one of the moguls had a great idea. He broached his plan, it was unanimously received, and the monthly gathering was adjourned with the buoyant feeling that another crisis had been faced, and conquered. THEY HAD DECIDED TO CUT ELEVEN CENTS AN HOUR FROM THE PAY OF THE SCRUB WOMEN WHO CLEANED THE NEW YORK OFFICES OF THE CORPORATION! (And they shoot rapids!)

THRILLS OF A LIFETIME...The day Chestertown got its first motorized fire engine, and Clark Davis tried every corner in town on two wheels....The day I found out (after two weeks of blissful ignorance) that you don't have to pay to get out of a New York subway....Happening to have my field glasses (I was that far from the ring) trained on the fighters when Sharkey delivered that foul blow to Schmeling's vitals — and I still agree with the referee!....The day I met Rudy Vallee—and discovered that he had a manly baritone voice....When I asked the boss for a raise and got it!....The first time Coach Kibler sent me into a basketball game...The day Harry Derringer, a boyhood idol of mine, came home from the Academy and spoke to me on the street....the day Dad left me in charge of the NEWS and I "pied" the front page five minutes before press time....The first time I was addressed as "Mister"....My first suit of long pants and don't think I didn't need them....Watching the log canoe races at last year's regatta....Reading my first story in a New York daily—through they had to print it because we spent a couple thousand dollars with them....Driving Amos 'N' Andy's Fresh Air Taxicab down Broadway and being arrested for blocking traffic....Presented with a medal at the college commencement and opening the box to find it empty....Reading Harry Russell's column to find that he predicted I MIGHT be a basketball player—one in the "wrong" list for the Sage of Cross street....and getting my first pay envelope from Doc Stam for jerking sodas and spending part of it for a chocolate milkshake at Doc Sterling's....and—well, who cares?

One of my many operatives browsing about the "Free State" informs me that the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles has decreed that "pedestrians should be seen but not hurt."....Which brings on another you've probably heard — about the girl in the dance hall who was singing "Eight Cents a Dance, that's what they pay me, etc."....And when asked why she changed the lyrics from the original "Ten Cents a Dance" she replied, "Why its the depression."....Well, they can't all be good.

THE Lyceum Theatre is having extra attraction next week.
