POETRY AND SONG FIREMEN'S FEAST

President Arlington L. Sparks and his coworkers put on in fine style the 6th annual banquet of the Chestertown Firemen's Association and Ladies' Auxiliary Thursday evening. First we want to compliment the splendid menu and service of the Flatland Girls' Club under Miss Helen Skellinger and Mrs. L. A. Sutton. It was simply superb and enjoyed by 211 persons.

President Sparks was in charge of the after-dinner program, and after invocation by Rev. C. L. Atwater, introduced William L. Fowler, one of the oldest members of the fire company in point of service, who delivered the address of welcome. T. D. Bowers introduced H. Stockton Startt as toastmaster. The guest speaker was Folger McKinsey, the Bentztown Bard of The Sun, who recited some of his beatutiful poems and gave distinction to the program.

An interesting feature was the awarding of gold and silver medals to Carl LeCates for attending 66 out of 79 calls and George G. Pennington, for responding to 57 out of 97 calls, members of the active company, and the presentation of gold bars, stars and chevrons to each of the fifty active firemen to designate their years of active service. The awards and presentation were made by Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, president of Washington College.

Fred S. Russell, chairman of the ambulance unit of the fire company. read his annual report, and Mrs. Jessie Blakeney, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, represented her valuable organization. Representatives of peninsula fire companies, who were guests of honor, brought greetings from their companies. Dinner music was furnished by an orchestra from the forty-piece Fire Company Band under the direction of Dr. Fred. G. Livingood. This music was of very high order and included solos by Fred. A. Fetter, Jr., and Dr. Livingood.

Each guest wore fancy colonial hats supplied by the Girls' Club.

The menu comprised Fruit Cocktail, Roast Chicken, Dressing, Gravy, Country Ham, New Potatoes, Peas, Slaw, Pickles, Jelly, Maryland Biscuit, Rolls, Jellied Apple Salad, Coffee, Sunshine Cake, Cream and After Dinner Mints.

The officers of the Fire Company are A. L. Sparks, president; Dr. H. C. Hughes, first vice president; P. M. Brooks, second vice president; W. L. Fowler, third vice president; L. G. Brown, secretary; John E. Matthews, assistant secretary; H. G. Blyman, treasurer; Dr. H. G. Simpers, surgeon; Rev. C. L. Atwater, chaplain; and C. A. Bacon, chief.

The officers of the associate organization are Thomas D. Bowers, president; Dr. H. B. Simmons, vice president; C. M. Newcomb, secretary, and J. S. Kreeger, treasurer.

The officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary are Mrs. Jessie Blakeney, president; Mrs. P. M. Brooks, vice president; Miss Ann Smith, secretary, and Mrs. C. A. Bacon, treasurer.

The program as outlined above was broadcast from Baltimore over WBAL at 2.15 P. M. yesterday.

CHESTERTOWN WINS

On Thursday of this week a telegram was received by the executive secretary of the Kent County Chamber of Commerce by the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. announcing that Chestertown was the winning city in the health conservation contest among cities under 20,000 population.

The annual health concervation contest is carried on through the Insurance Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. This is the first year the local Chamber entered the county seat as a contestant. The reports were made to headquarters by the Chamber's special committee consisting of Dr. R. G. Beachley, Deputy State Health Office and Mrs. Nell C. Westcott, executive secretary of the local Chamber and secretary of the Kent County Public Health Association.

Other winning cities in the six classes are as follows; Detroit, Michigan, Newark, New Jersey, New Haven, Connecticut, Racine, Wisconsin, Alhambra, California.

Chestertown and Kent county are to be congratulated on the splendid health unit which has brought the health of the community to such heights.

The judges of the schedules showing the greatest accomplishments for their cities were as follows: Dr. W. S. Rankin, Chairman, Duke Endowment, Charlotte, N. C.; Dr. A. J. Chesley, State Health Officer, St. Paul, Minesota; Dr. Louis T. Dublin, Statistician, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; Dr. J. S. Ferrell, Rockerfeller Founlation; Dr. C. E. A. Winslow, Yale University.

EXCITING HUNT IN KENT SATURDAY

Saturday was a red-letter day in the history of fox-hunting in Kent. It was a run from Chester river to Chesapeake Bay, at least covering 50 miles, and some aver one of the longest and most exciting ever held in Maryland. There were 75 hunters from Wilmington, Del., Far Hills, N. J.; Baltimore, Talbot, Queen Anne's, Kent and Cecil counties. In addition, 200 spectators from various places watched the thrilling hunt which started when Reynard was unearthed in the Quaker Neck Area of the county on the farm of the late Senator William M. Slay. From there, on a straightaway course of 20 miles, the fox led hunters from the shores of the Chester river to the Chesapeake bay and back again while horse after horse gave way under the strain and was pulled out of the chase until a mere handful of riders terminated the hunt at Quinn's branch, where the pack was broken by George Brice, master of the Essex Hunt Club, of New Jersey, as Reynard was about to be dispatched by panting hounds which had finally caught the fox after it had doubled on the trail and was returning to the starting point. The chase led over barbed wire fences, through swamps and over ploughed fields for five hours with the largest gallery known to hunters here following the chase to the Eliason Farm at Fairlee, to the Usilton Farm, thru Joiner's thicket and to Buck Neck before Reynard returned over the trail and was run to earth.

Mrs. Lammot du Pont of Wilmington and her sister, Miss Mary Rogers Hynson were among the prominent Delawareans to follow the Kent and Corsica hounds and Harold Tapping of the Far Hills outfit gave up the ghost on the return trip when his mount tired and began to falter. John McKenney and his sister, Maria McKenney, of Queen Anne's county, together with Thomas Keating, M. F. H., of the Corsica Hunt of that county, were among Eastern Shore veteran huntsmen while a number of Easton and Elkton riders joined Kent county all their dogs. Wilbur Ross Hubbard, master of the Kent county hounds and member of the Riders and Drivers Hunt Club, of Washington, held to the trail as the fox drew over a wide field on the return trip.

Cecil county hunters brought their charges here in trucks early Saturday and entered the fray with their pack of dogs.

There were hounds from Queen Anne's and Cecil, "Bosee" Robinson's pack, Wm. Toulson and Harry Nichols, pack, also Mr. Townsend's and scores of others. The music made by this big "orchestra" was beyond pen to describe.

The Eastern Shore of Maryland has been added to the Wilmington Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Earl F. Coffin, director of troop service, of Wilmington, visited the county and conferred with scout officials relative to the distribution of the necessary paraphernalia for conducting the work in this area.

KENT COUNTIAN DIES SUDDENLY

Evidently having worried over frequent robbing of the safe in the Madison street office of the Walker-Snyder-Conly Coal Company, where he worked as a clerk, Stewart Matthews aged 65 years, 407 North Franklin street, Wilmington, hanged himself in the stable of the coal company on Madison street, shortly after 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. The body of the aged man was found hanging from a beam in a stall in the stable by Elwood Colburn, 526 West Front St., shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Mr. Matthews, who had reported for work at 7 o'clock, left a note in the office of the company stating, "This is a terrible thing. I am innocent. I hope I will be forgiven. Some one has been in the office last night."

Mr. Matthews after writing the note, had gone to the stable and placed his head through a rope halter which was tied to a beam. He had to stand on a wheelbarrow to place his head in the noose and then kicked the barrow from under his feet.

Mr. Matthews had been employed as a clerk by the Conly Brothers Coal Company for the past eight years and his reputation was the best.

The Madison street office of the coal company has been robbed three times during the past few months, the last time was last week when $300 was taken from the safe. Since that time city detectives have been at work on the case but so far no clues have been found. The frequent robberies worried Matthews, it is said, as he had a fainting spell while at the office, after the last robbery was discoverel.

Mr. Matthews is survived by his wife, Anna, and a son, Harold, aged 35 years. The wife and son became hysterical when informed of the death of Matthews and a physician had to be called to give them treatment. The screams of the wife and son were heard plainly in the street near their home.

Neighbors said the Matthews had evidently lived a peaceful life and appeared to be devoted to one another.

Lieutenant of Detectives Wilson, when informed that Matthews had committed suicide, said that Matthews was innocent in the robberies.

"The safe and the office had been entered recently and at no time was it forced, but this man was not involved in those robberies," he said.

The deceased was a former resident of Chestertown having worked at the paper mill for many years. He and his wife were highly esteemed by everyone.

The funeral will take place from his home in Wilmington this Saturday morning at 9.30 with interment in Chester Cemetery. He leaves a brother, John E. Matthews, Chestertown. The deceased was a member of the Modern Woodmen.

WOMAN ROBBER CAUGHT

Red-haired and defiant, a young woman suspected of being connected with a gang of bandits and safeblowers is in jail in Denton under $20,000 bail, charged with participation in the robbery of banks at Ridgely, Md., and Hartley, Del.

Giving her name as Mrs. Clara Gordon, she was arrested in an apartment at the home of John Dennis, near there.

County officers announced the dis covery of a quantitty of stolen property in the apartment. They said she also had used the name of Clara Reynolds.

Several men were also arrested charged with complicity in the crime A man from Townsend, Del., is said to have turned State's evidence.

Leonard C. Trehearne, representing the E. A. Strout Realty Agency, Inc., sold to Charles Petry, of New York, the "Spry" farm, in Morgnec, owned by Joseph Greenwool, containing 125 acres, with improvements, new, up-to-date cow barn, other outbuildings, and a 7-room dwelling. The five fields, 100 acres tillable land, Mr. Petry plans to lime and prepare for hay and grass, to be used for a stock farm. Mr. Petry has a long experience with the well-known Belmont Stables, handling and training the different breeds of horses, consisting of coach, carriage, hackney and saddle. He will devote his time to training the hunter and saddle breeds, in way of gaiting, jumping, etc.

Elmer Starr, local lumberman, is suffering severe injuries to one leg after a heavy telephone pole fell off a truck and landed on him. A colored helper saved his leg from being broken by stopping the pole before it landed its full weight on Starr.

DR. COOK GUEST SPEAKER

Dr. Albert S. Cook, State Superintendent of Schools of Maryland, has consented to be the guest speaker at the seventh semi-annual Chamber of Commerce banquet which will be held on Thursday evening, May 14.

GROWING TOMATOES ?

The tomato outlook in Kent County is not bright for either grower or packer. Tomato growing for profit will be a gamble. The packer will try to play safe. The farmer should do likewise. If the farmer, with family labor, wants to grow tomatoes as a source of some income, regardless of profit, he can do so to better advantage than a farmer who hires his labor.

Records prove the advantages incident to early setting in both increased yields and better prices. Deciding at the last moment to grow tomatoes adds to the gamble. Decide now to grow or not to grow tomatoes.

M. E. CONFERENCE NOW IN SESSION

Methodist Episcopal ministers in the Wilmington Conference will not be compelled in future to accept pastorates paying less than $1,500 annually and furnishing a parsonage as the result of a unanimous vote recorded at the sixty-third annual session of the Conference in progress in Crisfield.

A motion to this effect was carried after a report from district superintendents making the recommendation was read.

The superintendent report also contained the message that "all is not well with our beloved methodism."

In support of the statement the report conveyed the information that in the year ending March, 1930, there were sixty-three charges which did not receive a single preparatory member. Seventy-six other charges received less than ten.

The majority of churches in the conference, the report adds, have actually declined in membership.

A hopeful note was struck, however, with the report that from partial figures at hand the number of reclamations and conversions this year will approximate 4,000, by far the largest number reported for a number of years.

"We hold no brief for any particular form of evangelism," the superintendent declared. "We should use them all.

The Rev. L. M. Broadway, a former pastor of Madeley Church, Wilmington, but for the past five years pastor of the M. E. Church, of Perryville, Md., suffered a stroke of paralysis shortly after his arrival at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gould.

The condition of Mr. Broadway was cnnsidered critical.

George G. Turner, of Betterton, is one of the candidates for admission to the conference on trial.

Other candidates who will be examined during the sessions include: Oliver Friedel, of Pomona; Roland H. Nelson, of Millington; Henry T.Caldwell, of Church Hill, and Alfred Strickland, of Crumpton.

The Rev. T. J. Sard, a former Chestertown minister, is the pastor of the Conference Church.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS INSTITUTE

The Fourth Eastern Shore Institute of Public Affairs will be held at Washington College on Saturday, May 9th.

This is an annual all day session under the joint auspices of Washington College and the Maryland League of Women Voters. One subject of domestic and one of international interest are selected by the students of the college and a nonpartisan discussion presented by experts. Discussion from the floor follows each address and members of the audience are urged to participate.

For 1931 the subjects recommended by discussion by the student group are "Recognition of Soviet Russia" and "Unemployment and Economic Depression."

Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, President of Washington College, Mrs. Charles E. Elliott, President of the Maryland League of Women Voters; Esther M. Dole, Miss Margaret Brewer and Miss Lavinia Engle are the committee on program.

Students, former students, friends of the college and all persons interested in a discussion of important political and economic problems are cordially invited to attend the sessions. The Institute opens at 10.30 A. M. and adjourns at 4 P. M. Complete programs may be had on request to Miss Margaret Brewer, Washington College, Chestertown, Md.

ALL LOCAL LAWS FOR KENT PASSED

The Maryland Legislature passed into history at midnight by the clock Monday.

Among the Bills acted upon were the following:

The Chestertown new charter bill providing for the election of a mayor and City Council next July.

Bonding Chestertown for $25,000 to liquidate its present indebtedness incurred over a period of years in road and street improvement.

The Chesapeake Bay bridge project was left in the hands of the State Roads Commission.

Raising the salary of judges of the Orphans' Court fdom $5 to $7 per day.

Bonding Kent County for $100,000 for enlarging the Chestertown High School building, subject to a referendum to the voters in the general election of 1932.

The County Treasurer Bill, which eliminates the necessity of that officer sitting in the various county districts.

The Justice of the Peace Bill, which gives the Police Justice of Chestertown concurrent jurisdiction in the 2, 3, 5 and 6 districts.

The Ducking Bill, which changes gunning dates on Eastern Neck Island.

The bill giving Justices of the Peace jurisdiction in petty larceny cases up to $25.

Allowing the Water Dvartment of Chestertown to remain under separate management as at present rather than in charge of Town Council. This will also be voted upon in July.

A stack of about 400 acts, piled in the office of the Governor, already signed or awaiting his signature, represented the work of the Maryland Legislature during the three months since it went into the 1931 session on January 6.

Of these, the major proportion were purely local to individual counties, and less than one-fourth, it was estimated, held any bearing on the State as a whole. The 400 were all that was left of 954 introduced during the session.

Outstanding activities of the two Houses, of course, included the passage of the Michel-Melvin Home Rule bill for Baltimore on the State's ancient Sunday blue laws; the compulsory automobile insurance bill written by Senator E. Milton Altfeld, which would require proof of financial responsibility after a driver has been found negligent in an accident or has been convicted of drunken driving or hit-and-run driving; the passage of the bill banning the use of purse nets in the Chesapeake Bay after the close of the 1931 season; the billboard regulation bill, and the Laynor anti-snooping bill.

Other bills which created much interest throughout the State were either killed on the floor of one of the two houses or deliberately allowed to die in committee. These includes the civil marriage bill, the repealer of the Jim Crow law—allegedly "misplaced" during the legislative jam in the Senate the last night—and the bill calling for a constitutional convention in accordance with the Constitution itself and the vote on the subject at the 1930 election.

Delegate Milton Tolle's bill providing for an increase in the $2,400 pension for members of the State judiciary to $5,000 was referred in the House by a vote of 54 to 49. The bill carried a clause that the judges would forfeit their claims to the pension if they did not retire at the age of 70.

Senate Bill No. 131 which provides for the payment of $6.00 per day to election officials while sitting and the payment of 60 cents per hour for overtime was passed by the House.

After a stormy voyage through the House and Senate, the amended billboard measure, sponsored by Miss Lavinia Engle, delegate from Mongomery, returned to the House Monday for concurrence in Senate amendments and was passed.

The Senate Monday night passed a bill introduced by Delegate Lindsay, Democratic floor leader, authorizing garage owners and service stations to charge a fee of 50 cents for the annual inspection of automobiles as required by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Frank V. Simpers, agent for the Continental Insurance Company, celebrated 20 years service with the Company Thursday. President Burnet sent a handsome bouquet of goldenhued roses in honor of the event. The Company hasn't a man who is more loyal nor more industrious than Mr. Simpers and the NEWS is glad to add their congratulations to the Company and to Mr. Simpers.
