FAVORS STATE CONSTRUCTING SPAN OVER BAY

Expressing the view that "there are sound State-wide business reasons" for the construction of a Chesapeake Bay bridge as a State project, a special subcommittee of the Legislature Tuesday recommended that the State Roads Commission be authorized to proceed immediately in the matter as a governmental enterprise.

The report of the committee recommended further that the Governor provide an appropriation in the supplemental budget, payable from the gasoline-tax receipts, for the investigation of the project by the State Roads Commission and suggests that a special session of the General Assembly be called as soon as the roads body reports its findings, if they show a bay span is feasible, financially and from an engineering standpoint.

Any other personnel assistance which may be deemed necessary for the State Roads Commission in carrying out its recommendations is left to the discretion of the Governor. In this connection it is understood Howard Bruce, a member of the Roads Commission, is extremely interested in the problem of linking the Eastern and Western Shores of the State and despite the fact his resignation has been in the hands of the Governor for some months, he is said to be willing to retain his membership for the purpose of this work.

In the event that he presses his resignation, he will continue by executive appointment his activity in the bridge problem, it is understood.

Donald Symington, it also is understood, is likely to be named to assist in the Roads Commission investigation.

Members Of Committee

The subcommittee report was placed in the hands of the chairmen of the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee from which the special committee was drawn. The committee was headed by Senator Emory L. Coblentz, of Frederick county.

No recommendation as to the proper location of a proposed structure was made by the committee and the reason given was that a sufficient amount of data upon which to base such a recommendation had not been available for its study.

The Roads Commission is directed by the recommendation to make "such further check-up and study of the engineering, traffic and financial problems as may be required, and shall give careful consideration to the several locations which have been suggested."

"If the result of this study shows that such a bridge or tunnel is an economically sound and practicable proposition for the State to undertake, then we believe the State should proceed with the work upon such financial plans as. after careful study, may be the most expedient in the interest of the people," the document continues.

Speaking of the desirability of the bridge from a business standpoint, the paper declares "such a structure as is proposed would inevitably bring about a closer community of interest between the people of the two shores," and "it is a mistake to assume it would be used only by those people living in relative proximity to it."

"The thanks of the General Assembly and of the people of the whole State are due to the members of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Commission for the services they have rendered," the report says in outlining what was accomplished by the Griswold Commission and of its subsequent report to the Governor and the Legislature.

J. Frank Wheatley has been named by Treasurer-elect H. Stockton Startt as deputy to succeeed Miss Regina Kirby. Mr. Startt will succeed Mr. Newsome June 1st.

The Ford Motor Company will have on display on Tuesday, March 17th between eleven and two o'clock at Eliason Motors, Inc., Chestertown, a show of twelve trucks showing a variety of bodies which includes a Police Patrol, Ambulance, Dump Bodies and Light Deliveries of all kinds.

The Old Line Construction Co., of Chestertown, has been awarded a 5 mile State road contract near Millville, Del. Messrs. Cannon and Estes started work there this week.

The Fairlee cannery does not expect to operate this year owing to the unsettled condition of the tomato market.

HOLD REAPER CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

The excellent attendance at the McCormick reaper contennial celebration held on Thursday at A. F. Huey's, Massey, McCormick-Deering dealer, may be taken as an indication of the interest in the development of power farming equipment held by farmers in this community.

The full-size working model of McCormick's original 1931 reaper was interesting, both from an educational and historical point of view. The world may well honor the man whose inventive genius produced a machine so important to the advancement of agriculture.

The motion picture, "Romance of the Reaper," shown for the first time in this community, was of special interest. The pictured story of the building and development of the reaper placed a new importance on the value of this machine as the starting point for the long line of power farming equipment which has followed in its wake.

This same machine is being shown today at Jones & Satterfield's, Chestertown.

H. D. Orem & Son, Chestertown, will show movies also tonight of their fine machinery.

SCHOOL BUILDING SETTLED IN 1932

A joint meeting of the Kent County School Board—C. Romie Skirven, Linwood Redmile and L. Bates Russell, the County Commissioners—Samuel C. Loller, Leonard A. Wilson and Charles D. Wood, and the committee of five citizens representing the patrons of Chestertown High School—Thomas W. Eliason, Jr., J. S. Kreeger, Mrs. Rebecca Speicher, Mrs. Harry T. Williams and Mrs. W. T. Brice, Jr., met in Chestertown on Thursday for the purpose of taking action relative to relieving conditions in the Chestertown High School.

Members of the Board of County Commissioners opposed the introduction of a bill in the Legislature in the face of present financial conditions, but in order to allow the taxpayers of the county an opportunity to vote upon the proposed bond issue, they acquiesced in the proposals.

L. Bates Russell, minority member of the Board of Education, offered a resolution to bond the county for $100,000 subject to a referendum at the next general election, to be held two years hence, which was adopted. Meanwhile action was taken at the meeting to relieve the present school building of fire hazards by erecting fire escapes and to take such steps as will relieve overcrowded condition temporarily.

ASK FOR $250,000 FOR CHESTERTOWN HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING.

A policy adopted by authorities to centralize the schools in Kent has resulted in a serious situation. The High School in Chestertown has become over-crowded with pupils brought here from under the shadow of nearly new buildings. The result is the petition of patrons for a change. Guided by school authorities a meeting was held here Saturday and adopted a resolution providing for bonding Kent County for $250,000 for the erection of a new high school building in Chestertown or such an amount as may be needed.

Professor E. Clarke Fontaine, supervisor of high schools for the Eastern Shore area, compared conditions in the Chestertown school with those of high schools in other counties where conditions have been relieved by the erection of large additions and said that Chestertown conditions at present are detrimental both to the comfort of the students and also to the carrying out of the educational program.

Following a general discussion of the problem in which Mrs. Don Falls Mrs. J. Brown Metcalfe, former Senator W. B. Copper, and Senator S. Scott Beck participated, J. Samuel Kreeger offered the motion to bond the county which was adopted. Chairman Fontaine appointed Thomas W. Eliason, J. S. Kreeger, Mrs. Rebecca Speicher, Mrs. Harry T. Williams, and Mrs. W. Tylden Brice, Jr., a committee to confer with the County Board of Education and with the Board of County Commissioners with a view to devising plans for securing a bond issue at the present session of the Legislature.

The Sutton Family Method Works

By GRACE FARRINGTON GRAY

In The Farmer's Wife, January 1931, St. Paul, Minn.

Most human beings think it's something to make one success. But to make nine separate successes of nine distinct lives—oh!

That —in brief—is the reason that Mrs. L. A. Sutton of Maryland was chosen as a Master Farm Home maker. Father, mother, and seven children, each have achievements to their credit, and all are pulling like wheel-horses in the work of their community.

Beside all this, or rather, before it, there is the corporate achievement of a happy home. Simple, in a simple setting,—for the Suttons have been renters always,—but with the jolliest possible family life.

"The children are congenial," Mrs. Sutton told me. "They laugh and joke and visit together."

MRS. LINWOOD A. SUTTON

They even have an all-time orchestra, right under their own roof, to add to the gaiety of nations. Mrs. Sutton and Emily play the piano, Stanley the saxophone, Martin the violin, Clarence the trombone, and Frank the mouth organ.

To complete the "house party." Mother is a good cook—a wonderful cook.

"Oh, I love cooking," she exclaimed "That's my job and my hobby. I try to cook what each one likes. And I don't know that I spoil them. My turn comes."

"Now you go, Mother," they all say when I want to go to the Short Course or the Farm Bureau. 'We can get along.

Profitable? Oh, quite. Beside going a long way toward setting a bountiful table, the various flocks provide groceries, clothing and house furnishings. But I have no figures to give corroborative detail, for the very good reason that we were much more occupied with the story of the human flock and their achievements, which have been many and thrilling. The family life is built on the solid rock of hard work, of which there is plenty on a farm of 400 acres.

"We've brought our children up to be useful," Mrs. Sutton said.

The five boys have gone through high school, and are all farming. Stanley and Frank are working with their father. Martin, who specialized in poultry, has bought a nearby farm and is building a hatchery. Albert is married and running a farm of his own, and Clarence has his own poultry business on the home place.

The two girls are learning homemaking from the ground up, or rather from the floor up, by daily work with their Mother.

All the children are up to their eyes in "projects," and each is a leader, an officer, or both, in one or more farm organizations, except 10-year-old Jenette, who is already a member of the Girl' Club. Stanley is leader of the Boys' Calf Club, secretary of the local Farm Bureau, and director of the Maryland Holstein Freisian Cattle Club. Martin is local leader of the Boys' Poultry Club, of which Clarence is vice-president. Frank is vice-president of the Calf Club and Emily, secretary of the Girl's Club, treasurer of the County Council of Clubs, and last season, demonstrator of the Trig and Trim School Girl at College Park.

"And they do get along. They can all cook, even the boys. And Emily can take care of the poultry as well as I can."

This is no slight tribute to Emily, the care of the poultry being a profession in itself. Fancy 300 Bronze turkeys, 250 Rhode Island Red hens, 60 ducks and 25 geese clamoring for their several breakfasts and "talking Turkey" and three other different languages. Mrs. Sutton has gone into this line—as into everything else that she does—in a thorough and business-like way, raising for both meat and eggs, and selling to personal customers in the nearby town, and also through the local Turkey Association.

Each has won prizes in his own line. Stanley has won a trip to Camp Vail twice, and to the National Dairy Show twice, beside a trip to Europe; Martin, to the National Dairy Show twice, and once to the Madison Square Garden Poutry Show; Albert, a silver cup in calf-judging; Frank, National Dairy Show; Clarence, trips to the state fair on poultry judging; Emily, prizes on her canning exhibits and clothing projects; and Jenette first prize on her first self-made dress.
