TO GET EGGS HATCH EARLY

"The early bird catches the worm," runs a well known axiom. Similarly, the experience of successful poultry raisers has shown, the early-hatched chick catches the high egg prices in the fall, when the supply is small and the demand is heavy.

Farmers and other flock-owners who have failed to order hatchery chicks for early delivery are being advised by poultry authorities to place their orders now. To delay in buying chicks until late in the hatching season means that the pullets will be slow in starting to lay. The bulk of their egg production will occur when the period of peak prices is past.

Early-hatched chicks are candidates for the laying house when fresh eggs are scarcest and bring the highest prices, it is pointed out. Therefore, the poultry raiser who orders his chicks for early delivery is laying a sound foundation for a profitable year.

The high quality of the stock is another factor upon which poultry profits depend to a great extent, authorities are agreed. That birds must be bred to lay is a fundamental of successful poultry raising. The increased production which farmers have been realizing from their poultry during the last few years is due, almost directly, to the efforts of hatcherymen who have labored incessantly to build up good laying strains.

DISTRESS VICTIM "DESERVES NO SYMPATHY," HE SAYS

There is one impoverished farmer down in Texas who is not asking for sympathy. He signs his name J. P. Rogers, of Greenville, Route No. 2. In a letter to the editor of the Dallas News, and published in that he writes.

"I am one among many farmers who were hit hard last year. Beginning early and working hard to make a big crop, I came out at the end of the season with three bales of cotton which were turned over to my merchant for supplies furnished.

"My two horses and three cows were mortgaged to the bank to secure an old debt and bank now owns them.

"On the first Tuesday in December the loan company foreclosed a lien it held against my farm and it now owns the farm.

"'Truly I have been hit hard, but I deserve no sympathy; I voted for Hoover."

"DEPRESSION?"

Everyone's scenting a panic,
Everyone's singing the blues,
But just try to go to a big picture show,
And You'll stand 'till they're thru with the "News."
The country is gone to perdition,
We'll have bread lines before we have snow—
But go buy a seat for a big football game
And see what you get for your "dough."
We are going to starve—that's decided,
A job simply cannot be bought;
But when Sharkey fights Striblin',
Just try for a look-in,
And you'll see just what "hard times" we've got.
The guv-er-ment's got to do something,
Or we'll fall in our tracks and we'll lay—
Yet the lady, by gosh, who does up our wash
Brings it back in a nice coupe.
So I think all this talk of a panic,
Of the country about to go "blooey"
Between you and me, and the old apple tree,
Is a lot of plain old-fashioned "hooey."

Wonder of Nature

Even the strongest men find it difficult to lift more than their own weight. Yet, a bluebottle fly can lift more than 30 times its own weight, while it can draw a load that is 150 times heavier than itself.
