MR. W. C. ROLPH, DEAR SIR: The Self-Feeding Huber Separator with Blower, that I bought of you last year gave me perfect satisfaction. It threshes very rapidly and does the work in perfect order. The Huber Self-feeder, I think, is superior to hand feeding at all times. I like the way the Blower Fan is driven better than any I have ever seen. Wishing you success in the business this year, I am

Yours truly, ALDAY CLEMENTS, MILLINGTON, Md., Jan. 20, 1902.

THE HUBER MFG. CO., HARRISBURG, PA.: GENTLEMEN: The Huber rig we got from you last season is a beauty. The engine the most economical in fuel, powerful, on road and belt, and the easier to operate than any other engine we have ever seen.

The thresher will thresh faster, save more grain, than any other, while the self-feeder handled the heavy straw of last season faster and better than hand feeding. We can truthfully and cheerfully say that the Huber is the finest rig ever sold on the Eastern Shore.

Yours very truly, NICKERSON & WOOD.

SOME LATE LITERARY NOTES.

REVIEW OF REVIEWS PARAGRAPHS.

The Review of Reviews for August continues its series of invaluable portraits of men prominent in public life throughout the world. The Rt. Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, just called to the premiership of the British Empire, is the subject of an admirable character sketch by Mr. A. Maurice Low, a writer whose acquaintance with British politics and politicians attests the value of an article from his pen on such a subject. Mr. W. T. Stead relates a most interesting interview recently held with Mr. George Frederick Watts, A. R. A., the only British artist deemed worthy by King Edward of a membership in the new Order of Merit, just established. Mr. Walter Wellman, in an article on "Spooner of Wisconsin," writes in an appreciative vein of the man who by common consent ranks to day as the leader of the United States Senate, so far as that body may be said to have a leader. Each of these three men, whose careers are described in the August Review, is at this moment very decidedly "in the public eye." The Review prints these sketches of them at just the right time.

M. Bloch's Museum of Peace and War at Lucerne, recently opened to the public, is fully described in the Review of Reviews for August. This is a remarkable enterprise, of international interest. In this connection the Review publishes a description and picture of the great gun recently completed at Watervliet Arsenal, designed for the defence of New York Harbor, and having an actual range of twenty-one miles.

"The new Rice-Farming in the South" is the title of an article by Day Allen Willey in the August Review of Reviews which is likely to prove an eye opener to many readers who have undervalued the recent remarkable developments in Southern Agriculture. That rice on the prairies of Louisiana and Texas is now seeded, harvested, and threshed by machinery like that employed for wheat on the prairies of Kansas is only one of the facts brought out in this article by (text and pictures) which are likely to cause a ripple of surprise among Northern and Western readers.

A FICTION NUMBER.

The Fiction Number of Scribner's Magazine is a remarkable issue in the eminence of its authors, the absorbing interest of their contributions and the richness of the illustrations. To have Rudyard Kipling, J. M. Barrie, F. Hopkinson Smith, Richard Harding Davis, Edith Wharton and Quiller-Couch contributors to a single issue of a magazine is unprecedented. In addition some of the cleverest among the younger writers are represented—Miss Josephine Dodge Daskam, Mrs. Andrews, Sewell Ford and Arthur Ruhl.

Rudyard Kipling shows his keen appreciation of the latest thing in science as material for romance. "Wireless" is the title of his story, and it is suggested by the "Marconi business." It starts in a Marconi station back of a drug store on the coast of England, and develops into one of the weirdest and most imaginative tales that Mr. Kipling ever wrote. No other man living could have written it, and it stands alone as a work of strong imagination and the highest literary skill.

The beginning of a new serial by J. M. Barrie is an event in the world of letters. "The Little White Bird" is a most delightfully fanciful tale of an old club bachelor, a young married couple and a charming little boy. All of the pathos and tender fancy which characterize Barrie at his best will be found in this story, which will be completed in the fall numbers. What the "Child's Garden of Verses" is to lovers of Stevenson, "The Little White Bird" will be to the lovers of Barrie.

THE MAN WHO DID.

All doctors in my town failed to relieve me of rheumatism. I have used about half a bottle of Nelon and feel so much improved, that while I may not need it, I enclose P. O. order for $1 for one more bottle of the remedy that has been such a God-send to me. I cheerfully recommend Nelon to anyone suffering with rheumatism.

A BURSTING BOILER.

How It Looks When a Locomotive Is Blown Up.

"I am one of the very few persons who ever saw a locomotive blow up," remarked an old railroad man to a reporter the other day. "Generally the men who witness the explosion of a steam engine are so dead when the smoke has cleared away that they are never able to give an account of the disaster."

"Like many other accidents, the one I saw was the result of carelessness—low water in the boiler—for the engine had just come from the shops and was in complete repair. It was on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in West Virginia a number of years ago. I was on a locomotive some distance behind the one which exploded and was looking ahead out of the cab window, so that the ill-fated engine was immediately before my eyes. Suddenly I saw the machine rise in the air. It seemed to me to be about as high as the telegraph poles beside the track, which, as you doubtless know, are not so high as telegraph poles in the city. Then came a cloud of dense black smoke and dust, which hid the engine from view, and almost simultaneously I heard the roar of the explosion."

"Both the engineer and the fireman were killed, and the locomotive was fit for nothing much but the scrap heap when it fell to the ground. The crown sheet over the firebox had blown out. "The strange thing about the explosion was that no white steam was seen. You know that perfectly dry steam is invisible, being like the air, and before it had time to condense it was probably smothered by the cloud of smoke and dust raised by the bursting of the boiler."—Baltimore Sun.

PREPARED CHALK.

How to Prepare an Effective and Economical Dentifrice.

Practically all the tooth powders of commerce have the same base—prepared chalk. This is mixed with some saponaceous compound, flavored a little, put up in an attractive bottle or jar and, behold, a tooth powder costing from 15 to 50 cents per vessel, according to the place you buy it and the celebrity of the name on the label.

For 15 cents enough tooth powder to last a family a year can be put together. Buy the chalk in bulk and with it some ground castile soap, which all druggists sell. Put them together in the proportion of one-eighth soap to seven-eighths chalk, mix well and fill any and all the empty tooth powder jars or bottles that you may have around. If flavoring is liked, it is easy to add a little wintergreen or peppermint.

So with the various antiseptic and disinfecting solutions that, attractively bottled and judiciously advertised, coax pennies unnecessarily out of our purses. There is no better cleanser and general sweetener than a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda. Fill a pint or a quart bottle, if you want to, with clear water and add bicarbonate of soda got from the druggist, not the grocer, until the liquid will take up no more. Keep this on your toilet shelf and use it as a mouth wash, etc.

When it comes to an antiseptic fluid, any surgeon will tell you that there is practically nothing in materia medica better than salt and water. It is always at hand and is safe and effectual. —New York Post.

An Ample and Sweet Revenge.

A young Englishman who had been repeatedly and unnecessarily annoyed by the St. Malo custom house officials made up his mind to get even with them. The last time he had crossed he had brought a ferret over with him, and a minute or so before landing he transferred the creature to a black bag, which he carried with extreme care, and an evident desire not to attract attention. This immediately fetched one of the dominions, and he swooped down on it with joyful alacrity.

Our young Englishman pretended not to understand the official until the Frenchman made his meaning clear by unmistakable signs. Then he slowly and reluctantly unlocked the bag. The douanier plunged in his hand, and—but my pen let me put it down to my pen refuses to adequately describe the dramatic scene that ensued. Suffice it to say that the bare recital of it was balm to my wounded spirit. I only hope it was our friend at the custom house who made the ferret's acquaintance. Revenge is sweet. —Continental Chit-Chat.

What Two Scotchmen Did.

In the early days of California two Scotchmen emigrated thither. One of them, an enthusiastic lover of Scotland, took with him a thistle, the national emblem. The other took a small swarm of honeybees. Years have gone. The Pacific coast is, on the one hand, cursed with the Scotch thistle, which the farmers find impossible to exterminate; on the other hand, the forests and fields are laden with the sweetness of honey, which has been and still is one of the blessings of the western slope of the Rocky mountains.
