THE CONFEDERATE REUNION.

PUBLISHED BY REQUEST.
Get my napsack, Mary,
And my uniform of grey,
Get my battered helmet, Mary,
For I'll need them all to-day,
Get my canteen and my leggings,
Reach me down my rusty gun,
For I'm going out paradin'
With the boys of '61

Never mind them blood stains, Mary,
Never mind that ragged hole,
It was left there by a bullet
That was seeking for my soul,
Brush away those cobwebs, Mary,
Get the bonny flag of bice,
For I'm going out paradin'
With the boys of '62.

These old clothes don't fit me, Mary,
As they did when I was young,
Don't you remember how neatly
To my manly form they clung?
Never mind that sleeve that's empty,
Let it dangle loose and free,
For I'm going out paradin'
With the boys of '63.

Pull my sword belt tighter, Mary,
Fix that strap beneath my chin,
I've grown old and threadbare, Mary,
Like my uniform, and thin,
But I reckon I'll pass muster,
As I did in days of yore,
For I'm going out paradin'
With the boys of '64.

Now I'm ready, Mary, kiss me,
Kiss your old sweetheart goodbye,
Brush away those wayward teardrops,
Lord! I didn't think you'd cry!
I'm not going forth to battle!
Cheer up, Mary, sakes alive!
I'm just going out paradin',
With the boys of '65.

Soon we'll all be paradin', Mary,
In the land beyond the stars,
On that bright Celestial shore,
With the good old stars and bars.
But before we go, Mary,
We'll meet the boys once more,
And practice for paradin'
On that bright and shining shore.

SMALLEST MOONSHINE STILL.

The Owner Carried it in a Valise and Made Whiskey to Order.

Commissioner Yerkes, of the internal revenue bureau, has received from Atlanta, Ga., the smallest moonshine still ever captured by revenue officials. Not only was the whiskey outfit captured, but the man who owned and operated it was taken into custody at the same time. The moonshiner, with his paraphernalia, was arrested in Grant Park, Atlanta, a few days ago, in sight of the monument to General McPherson and near the Soldiers' Home. The operations of the moonshiner were the most unique in the history of the internal revenue service, and his outfit is preserved in the internal revenue office at Washington as a souvenir.

The still in which the mash for the whiskey was boiled was an ordinary quart milk can. The moonshiner, who evidently was an old hand at the business, had then secured an old gallon can and a small copper worm, as it is called, connected the worm by means of a cap to the quart distillery and then ran it through the gallon can. In this simple form the moonshiner had a complete, though crude, outfit for making corn whiskey. He carried his distillery in a large valise, and in the valise he also had the grain mash in bottles.

On meeting a thirsty Georgian who wanted a drink of moonshine, the moonshiner would make off into a clump of nearby bushes, set up his little distillery, put a fire under his quart can and in a short time turn out as many drinks as his customer wanted. The mas is placed in the still proper, with a fire under it, the vapor therefrom going through the copper worm, which is coiled a number of times. This coiled copper passed through the can in which cold water had been placed. Immediately upon the vapor coming in contact with the cold water it condensed and became spirits.

Cases have been frequently known in the South where such little distilleries were operated in the homes of the moonshiners, and also among the mountaineers serving terms in Federal prisons for violating internal revenue laws and other offenses, but never before, so far as the record is known, has a moonshiner attempted to carry such an outfit around with him and make whiskey to order.

Women in Colorado Politics.

The feminine element in politics in Colorado, where the women vote, makes the campaign picturesque in that State. Miss Emma M. Hervey, now superintendent of schools for Arapahoe county, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Superintendent, and is making a personal canvass. When she reached Cripple Creek she sent a note to every delegate requesting him to visit her headquarters at the hotel. Being gallant gentlemen as well as politicians, all the delegates called upon the lady. It is interesting also to note that Miss Helen M. Wixson is out in a card denying that she is a candidate for State Auditor. "My sole and only ambition politically," she says, "is to aid worthy candidates of the Republican party and to do everything in my power to secure just and proper recognition for the good women of that party from the Republican organization and convention."

LOVE'S DURATION.

Oh, love as long as thou canst love!
Love while sweet love may still be thine!
The days will come, the days will come,
When thou beside sad graves shalt pine!

Let, then, thy heart be warm and true,
And cherish love, and love still bear,
While in the world another heart
Beats for thee with love's tender care.

If one doth bare his breast to thee,
For him do all that thou canst do,
Nor make for him one hour of gloom,
But all his days with joy renew!

And o'er thy tongue keep watchful guard;
Too soon escapes an unkind word,
O God! the thought was innocent;
But yet she sorrowed as she heard.

Oh, love as long as thou canst love!
Love while sweet love may still be thine!
The days will come, the days will come,
When thou beside sad graves shalt pine

Low-bending there, then thou shalt kneel,
And hide thy sorrow-laden eyes;
Her they shall never see again
Who under the long, rank grass lies.

Thou speakest: Oh, look down on me,
Whose tears here with thy dust are blent!
Forgive the hasty word I spoke!
O God! The thought was innocent.

But she nor sees nor hears thee more:
To fond embrace shall never come;
The lips which thou so oft hast kissed
Are silent and forever dumb.

Long since thee for thy bitter word
She from a loving heart forgave;
Though many burning tears she shed—
Be calm; she sleeps well in her grave.

Oh, love as long as thou canst love!
Love while sweet love may still be thine!
The days will come, the days will come,
When thou beside sad graves shalt pine.

THE DEAR OLD MOTHER.

Time has scattered the snowy flakes
On her brow, plowed deep furrows on her cheek—but is she not sweet and beautiful now? The lips which have kissed many a hot tear from the childish cheek are the sweetest lips in all the world.

The eye is dim, yet it glows with the rapt radiance of a holy love which can never fade.

Oh, yes, she is a dear old mother.
Her sands of time are nearly run out, but feeble as she is they will go further and reach down lower for you than any other on earth.

You cannot walk into midnight where she cannot see you; you cannot enter a prison whose bars shall keep her out; you can never mount a scaffold too high for her to reach that she may kiss and bless you.

In evidence of her deathless love, when the world shall despise and fore-sake you—when it leaves you by the wayside to die unnoticed, the dear old mother will gather you up in her arms, carry you home and tell you of all your virtues until you almost forget that your soul is disfigured by vices.

Love her tenderly, and cheer her declining years with holy devotion.

Message From Kate Field's Spirit.

Lillian Whiting, a well-known writer, said she has had communication with Kate Field's spirit.

"Recently," she said to-day, "I gave the Boston Public Library a collection of autograph letters which had belonged to Kate Field. Suddenly, one day before the collection had been sent, I heard Kate's voice say, as plainly as if she was in the room: 'Lillian, give the Poe letter to Mr. Stedman' (Edmund Clarence Stedman.) I heard no physical sound, but the impression was as vivid as if someone had actually spoken. I did as I was directed.

"Not long afterward I received a letter from Mr. Stedman, in which he said:
'But how did you happen to send it? It is just what I need to go with my collection of Poe's manuscripts.' I had no knowledge of the value the letter would be to him. I have had other communications with Kate Field."

Legal Shreds.

The law does not recognize orthography and will proceed against Frank Phillips or against Phrangk Fyllipse with perfect composure. Some facetious person, instead of writing "I owe you," saw fit to express the obligation by the three letters, "I O U," and this has now become the set form. A piece of paper bearing the words, "I O U 50 pounds," written and signed by the debtor and addressed to the creditor, is admissible in evidence without a stamp, as being mere a simple acknowledgment of the debt; but if the document read "I O U 50 pounds, to be paid on the 28th inst.," it would be worthless unless it bore an advaloram stamp.—Notes and Queries.

Bequest for Being Kind.

Bennington, Vt., Sept. 18.—Mrs. Edith White has been notified officially that $17,500 is deposited to her credit in a bank in St. Louis. The money was left her by a stranger whom she once befriended and who told her at the time that he would remember her in his will.
She paid little attention to it then. Mrs.
White will go to St. Louis, secure the money and then take up her residence in Troy with her mother. She has one daughter.

THE MAN WHO DIED.

All doctors in my town failed to relieve me of rheumatism. I have used about half a bottle of Nalaton and feel so much improved, that while I may not need it, I enclose P. O. order for $1 for one more bottle of the remedy that has been such a God-send to me. I cheerfully recommend Nalaton to anyone suffering with rheumatism.
