The other table will contain all our odds and ends in lines of Shoes that we don't propose to carry in stock any longer, and will have some great big values for the price. Remember, all of these Shoes are comparatively new, and none shop-worn. I haven't room here to give you but two or three points about our line, but wish to say that it as a whole is the most complete I have ever carried, having every corner in the store filled with

FALL AND WINTER GOODS!

Come out and see them—it will do you good. Ask to see our Ladies' Vests and Pants at 25c., and our Men's Heavy Fleece-Lined Shirts and Drawers at 39c. They are big values and have sold same often for 50c.

WELL, CLOTHING.

We have it to suit most any taste, from the littlest tot to the overgrown Jumbo. Then, again, don't forget we have an extra Large Stock of AIR-TIGHT STOVES; some are beauties, and as coal is so very high this season, we think it will be economy to buy yourself one and use wood, which is more healthy. Come right along and we will do our best to make you feel at home, and sell you what you need at the lowest possible cash price.

Oh! the Shoe Sale. Yes, and don't forget it, and come next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Hands across the sea in 1902 are welcome as kindred, for it was the hands and hearts which came across the sea in 1776 and 1812 which gave us substantial aid, which enabled us to make so bold an armed resistance. Finances which came to us from our British friends and relatives not only helped us to buy arms but to bear them, for it is a well known fact, thousands of British subjects enrolled themselves in our army in both of the two wars for Independence, and fought gallantly beside our native-born Americans, and at greater risk, for capture meant death.

The work of today is to mark an historic place and to pay a tribute to the men who on this battle field maintained the honor of our dear Commonwealth and the nation, and ennobled American manhood. Shoulder to shoulder stood the children of the Roundhead, the Cavalier and the Huguenot, whose fathers had not breathed the air of our free land without giving to their manhood a higher aspiration and a nobler cause to defend. Freedom hero had a sweeter sound, for it was the full realization of man's desire to govern himself, and, like the champions of old, they were willing to die that freedom should survive.

To the men of the Revolution we owe the conception of our government, and no monuments or tablets will pay the debt. But I assure you that it was the war of 1812 which assured to us that which the Revolution inaugurated but which it did not attain, and in the evolution of things it has come to pass that the child of a cruel parent has outgrown itself, that the feeble results of the Revolution have become the most powerful factor in the family of nations. Our influence upon the moral and physical forces of the world have been so stimulating that even our most optimistic citizens are amazed, and this has not been the result of war but the victories of peace and industry. Our fathers waged war for the establishment of free institutions, but we have waged the war of peace and fellowship; but these institutions might survive all things that our dear land might continue to the end of time as the haven of the oppressed of all nations. When we proclaim to the world our superiority in all things it is no idle boast, for it is proved by fact that our supremacy is unrivaled, our moral and physical forces incalculable and results in a manhood of such superiority as to be the marvel of human construction. Show me a nation which stands alone as ours does, absolutely independent of the world, free of foreign competition, self-dependent, with a wealth of agriculture, mineral, manufacture and commerce rapidly chasing the other nations over the map of the universe, and with an activity which startles even our wisest statesmen and almost at a leap becomes the financial center of the world.

With the early future comes a magnificent navy to carry our proud banner to the ends of the earth, and when necessary a mighty army of defense. Through the wisdom of our law-makers we shall become the conquerors of the world, for its Americanization has begun, and it is not a vanity of the 20th century, for the greatest achievement of the years has been the rapid rise of a new race of people, now perfectly distinct, and shall be known in all times as "Americans;" yet, with a just pride and a true estimate of the value of those qualities which come to us from those who came from "Merry England," the land of their birth and of Alfred the Great, Cromwell, Milton, Shakespeare, Scott and Burns.

As we ascend to the height of power and prosperity, and claim the undisputed right to stand at the head of the English-speaking nations, it is with the nations to the nations still lying in the darkness of past ages, that we stand for peace, not war, life, not death, prosperity, not destruction, freedom for all and a fuller enjoyment of the blessings of citizenship. The right hand of fellowship will destroy the hand of plunder, and in the end our influences for good will be our desideratum and by our rectitude we will erect a monument to Christian civilization.

This, fellow-countrymen, I believe to be our destiny.

An interesting detailed account of the ceremonies will be found on another page of this issue.
