WESTCOTT & DODD'S DEPARTMENT STORE.

WHY IS IT

we sell more CORSETS? Because they are Tailor Fitting, made to order, guaranteed or money refunded, hence the reason we sell them all over this county and Queen Anne, and more than that, to people in the city of St. Louis.

WHY IS IT

we sell to the farmers so many SPRING-TOOTH DISC HARROWS? Answer, ask your neighbor and you will know the reason why—quality and prices.

WHY IS IT

our DRILLS surpass all others, the Improved Buck Eye? Examination of it will convince you that it is the Drill to buy. Prices lower and terms easier.

WHY IS IT

that we sell more COFFEE than any other store? Answer, try 1 lb. or 2 lbs., and you will know.

WHY IS IT

we sell SHOES as we do and so many are satisfied? Answer try 1 pair in any of our lines.

VINEGAR! VINEGAR! VINEGAR!

Why is it we sell more Vinegar for pickling than the combined stores for miles around? Answer, for reason, try 1 gallon of our White Vinegar.

We pay for Eggs 22c. doz., Lard, 14c. lb., Hams, 15c. lb.

CHRYSANTHEMUM.

(Linnie Hawley Drake.)

Peerless one! Marvelous flower of the Orient. Art thou the waith of the summer time gone—

Color and beauty and gladness transcendent. Raised from their sepulchres—blended in one?

Lips of the lily buds, blush of the roses, Robed as the beautiful princesses are, Golden at heart as each rude breath discloses. Crowned by the dairy-world queenly and fair!

Stately and glorious! Pride of the Orient! Sombre thy setting of colorless days, Yet like the stars in yon bright upper firmament.

Gaining new lustre from darkness and haze! Stay, brilliant one! though thy gifts were profusion, Fragrance and sweetness in thee have no part; Who seeks to bury his face in thy bosom, Drinking thy perfume deep, deep to his heart!

In thy creation had some wildwood blossom, Some breath of heliotrope into thine crept.

Ah! 'twere too much—thou had'st then drained perfection.

We have adored thee without one regret For all summer's darlings—her dead and gone roses.

Her fair, saintly lilies—e'en then might the bees Have lost their allegiance to love of a life-time.

And turned them away from the bloom-rifed trees.

Finding the lilac buds pall and the clover, Tiring of sunshine and midsummer hours, Eating their hearts out—poor, languishing lovers.

Awaiting thy coming, thou queen of fall flowers.

AS YOU LIKE IT.

Sillicus—So he said I was level-headed eh?

Cynicus—I didn't think he put it exactly that way. My recollection is that the expression he used was "flat-headed."

GREEN THINGS GROWING.

Or, again, for bringing Christmas cheer to an invalid what sweeter messenger can there be than some green, growing thing?

"Oh, I love, love them so, my green things growing. And I think that they love me without false showing.

For by many a gentle touch they comfort me so much.

With the soft, mute comfort of green things growing."

To a life stopped short in its normal physical growing there may come untold stores of peace and prophecy from watching the silent unfolding and up-reaching of some fern or palm.

A Daily Thought.

The great and glorious masterpiece of man is to know how to live to purpose; all other things—to reign, to lay up treasure, to build, are at the most but mere appendices and little props.

KNOCKOUT BLOW FOR SPEAKEASIES.

Judge Henderson Continues to Impose Heavy Sentences.

GIVES A PLAIN TALK.

Says the Grand Jury Ought to Have Indicted the Sheriff and Deputies.

Judge Henderson, in the Circuit Court at Rockville, delivered what is generally regarded as a knockout blow to Montgomery county "speakeasies." In passing sentence upon George W. Sullivan, formerly proprietor of a Conduit road resort, who was convicted of violating the local option law upon the testimony of Louis Weir, of Baltimore, employed by the Montgomery County Anti Saloon League in the capacity of a detective, Sheriff John W. Collier and Deputy Sheriff John A. Selby, he indicated in no uncertain tones what would be the future action of the court in all local option cases in which verdicts of guilty are returned. In addition to stating that the court has made up its mind to break up these violations of the local option law, and that the severest penalties would be imposed in all cases in which convictions result, he served notice that nothing could be accomplished by shifting proprietorships of the resorts, as the places themselves were condemned in the eyes of the court and would be dealt with accordingly should violations of the law again occur. The court also made some other interesting observations.

In the trial of the case against Sullivan, the reputation of Detective Weir was severely assailed. Among other things it was charged that he was an anarchist and unworthy of belief. After sentencing Sullivan to pay a fine of $300 in a case in which he was found guilty and a similar fine in each of two other cases in which he pleaded guilty, Judge Henderson opened up. He spoke of anarchists generally in severe tones, saying that as a body they are visionary theorists and in many instances men of dangerous characters, who would not hesitate to commit grievous crimes against the State as well as against individuals. "But," he added, "the testimony in this case shows this defendant to be an anarchist of the worst kind. He defied law and order and in addition broke a solemn promise made to this court following a conviction in 1897, when he gave his word he would discontinue this illegal traffic. He never intended to keep that promise and he merits the severest penalty of the law."

In commenting upon Weir's testimony, Judge Henderson said that the jury was eminently right in believing him, as there was no reason for him to have misrepresented the facts, and that if the jury had done otherwise than returned a verdict of guilty they would have been disqualified as jurors in such cases. Judge Henderson also paid his respects to Sheriff Collier and his deputies, upon whom he was particularly severe. He stated that they were fully cognizant of the fact that barrooms were openly in operation and that, from the testimony before the grand jury, both the sheriff and several of his deputies should have been indicted for malfeasance in office, as it was clearly their duty, with the knowledge they possessed, to have suppressed these illegal places. As these officers had been negligent in their duty, the court said, it was eminently proper for citizens, collectively or individually, to have resorted to such methods as were employed by the Montgomery county Anti Saloon League in hiring private detectives to secure the testimony. The court added that hereafter the Anti-Saloon League would have to be relied upon to bring the guilty to justice, as the county officials had demonstrated that they would not do their duty.

The judge's remarks created quite a sensation in court. The Anti-Saloon Leaguers, quite a number of whom were in court at the time, were plainly delighted, while those in court against whom indictments for violation of the local option law are pending were correspondingly uncomfortable.

That the judge's remarks had a wholesome effect was soon demonstrated. Hardly had he ceased speaking before William H. and George Bobinger, proprietors of Cabin John Hotel, at Cabin John Bridge, pleaded guilty to a large number of indictments. They promised the court that they would at once discontinue the sale of intoxicating liquor, and upon this assurance the court agreed to set all but five cases. In each of the five cases $300 fine was imposed.

To date the following have promised the court to never again be guilty of violating the local option law: William H. and George Bobinger, John H. Kelchner, Ulysses M. Ricketts, Mrs. Mary K. Byrnes, George W. Sullivan and Carl Blaubeck.

Samuel Turner, Gay Tolson and Geo. W. Sullivan pleaded guilty before Judge Henderson on Friday to indictments charging them with violating the anti-gambling law of the State by conducting a poolroom, for betting on horse races, on the Conduit road, near the District of Columbia line. Each was fined $200 and costs and a second indictment was set. The poolroom in question was in operation several months last spring.
