ACCIDENTAL?

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death on the man who fell from the window ledge on which he had fallen asleep. But the death was really due to carelessness which made the accident possible.

There are a great many lives suddenly terminated as a result of carelessness, although the medical certificate may read "heart failure." When a man takes chances with his stomach and neglects the warning symptoms of disease, he is carelessly inviting calamity.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, which makes strength. It stimulates the liver, cures biliousness, and removes bilious impurities from the blood.

"I had been troubled with a pain in lower part of my stomach for three years, so severe I thought it would kill me in time," writes Mr. Aaron Van Dam, of Kensington 250 12th St. Chicago, Ill. "I could hardly work; it felt like a big weight hanging on me and got so bad that I had to take medicine. I used Stomach Bitters for a time, but it did no good so I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce for advice, which he gave me immediately. I followed his directions and used two bottles of his medicine and was cured. I had a torpid liver which was troubling me instead of cramps (as I thought), so Dr. Pierce told me I have pleasure in living now; have gained in weight 15 pounds since then."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They do not beget the pill habit.

THE FROST.

The Frost looked forth one still, clear night,
And whispered, "Now I shall be out of sight,
So through the valley and over the height
In silence I'll take my way.
I will not go on like that blustering train,
The Wind and the Hall, the Snow and the Rain,
Who make so much bustle and noise in vain:
But I'll be as busy as they."

Then he flew to the mountain and powdered its crest;
He lit on the trees and their boughs he dressed
In diamond beads; and over the breast
Of the quivering lake he spread
A coat of mail, that it need not fear
The downward point of many a spear.
That he hung on its margin fat and near,
Where a rock could rear its head.

He went to the windows of those who slept,
And over each pane like a fairy crept;
Wherever he breathed, wherever he stepped,
By the light of the moon were seen
Most beautiful things. There were flowers and trees;
There were beves of birds and swarms of bees;
There were cities with temples and towers;
And these
All pictured in silver sheen.

But he did one thing that was hardly fair;
He peeped in the cupboard, and finding there
That all had forgotten for him to prepare,
"Now, just to set them a-thinkin',
I'll bite this basket of fruit," said he;
"This costly pitcher I'll burst in three;
And the glass of water they've left for me
Shall 'chick!' to tell them I'm drinking."

TRIBUTE TO LEE.

Lord Wolseley's Estimate of The Great Confederate Chieftain.

The Richmond Dispatch contains the following letter:

I beg leave to enclose you herewith Lord Wolseley's tribute to Gen. R. E. Lee. You are doubtless familiar with the visit of Lord Wolseley to General Lee at his headquarters during the war, where he was his guest for some time. As you are also aware, Lord Wolseley was at that time commander-in-chief of the armies of Great Britain, and held that high office until succeeded by Lord Robert Roberts ("Bobs") recently.

A tribute from such a distinguished military chieftain should afford interesting reading to those pure and unadulterated patriots who did not consider General Lee's picture worthy of a place in the so-called "Hall of Fame." I copied this article many years ago from some paper (probably the Dispatch) and in looking over some papers to-day came across it. It is too good a thing to be lost, so I will send it to you to be filed for future use.

GEN. GARNETT JOSEPH WOLSELEY'S TRIBUTE TO GEN. R. E. LEE.

"The fierce light which beats upon the throne is as a rushlight in comparison with the electric glare which our newspapers now focus upon the public man in Lee's position. His character has been subjected to that ordeal, and who can point to a spot upon it? clear, sound judgment, personal courage, untiring activity, genius for war, absolute devotion to his State, mark him out as a public man, as a patriot to be remembered by all Americans. His amiability of disposition, deep sympathy with those in pain or sorrow, his love for children, nice sense of personal honor and general courtesy, endeared him to all his friends. I shall never forget his sweet, winning smile, nor his clean honest eyes that seemed to look into your heart while they searched your brain. I have met with many of the great men of my time but Lee alone impressed me with the feeling that I was in the presence of a man who was cast in a grander mold and made of different and finer metal than all other men. He is stamped upon my memory as being apart and superior to all others in every way, a man with whom none I ever knew and few of whom I have read are worthy to be classed. When all the angry feeling aroused by the secession are buried with those that existed when the American Declaration of Independence was written; when Americans can review the history of their last great war with calm impartiality, I believe all will admit that General Lee towered far above all men on either side of that struggle. I believe he will be regarded not only as the most prominent figure of the Confederacy, but also as the greatest American of the nineteenth century, whose statue is well worthy to stand on an equal pedestal with that of Washington and whose memory is equally worthy to be enshrined in the hearts of all his countrymen."

WOLSELEY."

Kindness.

"I shall pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness that I can show to any human being, let me do it now. Let me not defer it nor neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

The scratch of a pin may cause the loss of a limb or even death when blood poisoning results from the injury. All danger of this may be avoided, however, by promptly applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It is an antiseptic and unequalled as a quick healing liniment for cuts, bruises and burns. For sale by M. A. Toulson druggist, Chestertown, Md.

THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL.

We miscreate our own evils.
Be sure they sleep not whom God needs.

Nothing good is ever lost or wholly forgotten.
To make habitually a new estimate, that is elevation.

A great heart is as quick to find an other out as the world is slow.

To accept the inevitable quietly and gracefully is the mark of wisdom.

Be sure that God ne'er dooms to waste the strength he deigns impart.

Abide in your purpose as in laws which it were impious to transgress.

Everything in nature goes by law and not luck, and what we sow we reap.

The life of every man is a sort of warfare, a long one and full of divers chances.

The heart is our only measure of infinitude. The mind tires of greatness; the heart never.

The laws of friendship are austere and eternal, of one web with the laws of nature and of morals.

All the great deeds of which we have record have been done by earnest beliefs and earnest enthusiasm, even though mistaken ones.

Outward things are not in my power; to will is in my power. Where shall I seek the good and where the evil? Within me is all that is my own.

We love characters in proportion as they are impulsive and spontaneous. The less a man thinks or knows about his virtues, the better we like him.

Where there are confusions, and griefs, and fears and unattained pursuits, and avoidance in vain, and envy and rivalry, can the way to happiness lie there?

It is not things, but opinions about things, that trouble mankind. When, therefore, we are worried or troubled or grieved, never let us blame any other than ourselves, that is to say, our opinions.

What a curious path fate often times seems to make for mortal feet, leading them exactly whither they have resolved not to go, and shutting up against them those ways which seemed so clear and plain.

The making of a man's way comes only from that quickening of resolve which we call ambition. It is the spur that makes man struggle with destiny; it is Heaven's own incentive to make purpose great and achievement greater.

Don't make any one feel self-conscious in your presence; it indicates that you are excessively self-conscious yourself. Be unconscious of yourself and that will make people unconscious of themselves when with you. Don't expect too much from other people.

The most solid comfort one can fall back upon is the thought that the business of one's life—the work at home after the holiday is done—is to help in some small nibbling way to reduce the sum of ignorance, degradation and misery on the face of the beautiful earth.

There is a proverb which sometimes seems amazingly true, that "Heaven takes care of fools and drunkards." Can it be for their own sakes, or is it out of pity for those belonging to them, to them to whom they serve as a sort of permanent discipline, the horse hair shirt and mighty scourge which are supposed to contribute to the manufacture of saints? And it is one of the most mysterious lessons of life that such is often the case; that out of the wickedness of one-half of the world is evolved the noble self-devotedness of the other half.

Why this should be we know not, and sometimes in our ignorance it makes us very angry; but so it is, and we cannot help seeing it.

The highest use of a friend is his friendship, and, in some respects a friendly book is the very best of friends. Speech is silver, silence is gold. A book is a bimetallic friend; it will either give you silver speech or golden silence, as you prefer. You sit by your fire-light dreaming, with your friend in your hand. "Come, come," you say to him at last, "you are silent and I am weary; talk to me, amuse me!" And he answers not your petulance with reproach, but looks with kindly face into your eyes and talks. At last you are weary of him. "You talk too much," you say, and turn from him. He stops as he began, relapses into silence, and breathes no complaint of your unreasonable mood. A book is never jealous, never suspicious. It asks no attentions. It never pouts nor sulks because you prefer another book. It never reproaches you with, "I thought you had quite forgotten me."

A CHICAGO MAN advertises for a wife, and then sues for a divorce with the following allegations against his present spouse: That she had broken his nose with her fist; cut his throat with a broken teacup; blacked his eyes frequently; knocked out a tooth for him; threatened him and the children with death; sold their son's clothes to buy some for herself; got drunk and beat him with a bottle and a shoe. What the man needs is a sense of humor. He seems to have not the remotest idea of how to take a joke.

Those love truth best who to themselves are true,
And what they dare to dream of, dare to do.
