THE FIERY DRAGON.

Ancient and Medieval Descriptions of the Monster.

Dragons were important animals in ancient and medieval natural history. Until comparatively recent times no scientist ever thought of questioning the existence of this most formidable of beasts. The annals of Winchester for 1177 gravely state that "in this year dragons were seen of many in England." Gesner, professor of natural history at Zurich, gives a detailed description of the dragon, while Aldrovandus, in his "History of Serpents and Dragons," published in 1640, devotes fifty pages to the monster. A good specimen of a dragon would seem to have been a beast about the size of a sheep, incased in a coat of scales which shone like silver. Its back was serrated like a saw. It possessed a long tail, a pair of batlike wings, four heavily clawed feet and a wolvine head, the jaws of which were armed with very formidable teeth. The tongue was barbed with fire, and fury issued from the monster's mouth, and the head bore a crest. Dragons were the most wicked and vindictive of creatures. They seem always to have been in a towering rage and spent the greater portion of their time in rushing up and down the earth destroying everything that came in their path. The origin of dragons was a disputed point among medieval naturalists. Some maintained that these animals were generated by the heat of India; others were of opinion that the volcanoes of Ethiopia used to belch forth the monsters. One scientist, John Leo by name, declared the dragon to be a hybrid, a cross between an eagle and a wolf.

Temperature and Atmosphere.

That a body can acquire during the night a different temperature from that of the surrounding atmosphere has been demonstrated by an English physicist. If a thermometer is taken from the window, wrapped in cotton and placed on the ground its mercury will descend seven or eight degrees. Vegetables similarly situated, and being bad conductors, may freeze at a time when the thermometer does not mark the freezing point—proof that the cold experienced by the plant may be entirely different from the temperature of the surrounding air. This low temperature of plants, however, only occurs when the night is clear, since at this time the plant sheds its heat throughout space and becomes chilled, whereas if the night is cloudy the phenomenon does not occur. This gives rise to the popular superstition that plants and buds are frozen by moonlight.

Curious Case of Mind Reading.

A very curious case is related in the Annals Psychiques. A child of seven years, in good health, lively and robust, belonging to equally healthy parents, showed a strange facility in learning all that his mother taught him. He recited the whole multiplication table at the first trial, solved instantly complicated problems and made not a single mistake in his first spelling lesson. It was soon realized that the child did not calculate by himself and did not spell of his own accord. He was reading his mother's mind, and he did this even when his eyes were shut and his back turned, provided only that she were near him. One day she had the idea of interposing a screen between her and the child, and there was no more calculation, no more spelling. The screen was sufficient to prevent the child from reading the mother's thoughts.

A Moving Sermon.

"I once had a parishioner who was a miser," said an English clergyman. "For this man's benefit I preached one Sunday a strong sermon on the necessity of charity, of philanthropy—a sermon on the duty and the joy of giving. The miser, at whom I gazed often, seemed impressed.

"Next day I met him on the street. "Well, John," I said, "what do you think of yesterday's sermon?" "It moved me deeply, sir," he answered. "It brought home to me so strongly the necessity of giving alms that honestly, sir, I've a great mind to turn beggar."

Light and Heat and Eyes.

Looking into the fire is very injurious to the eye, particularly a coal fire. The stimulus of light and heat united soon destroys the eyes. Looking at molten iron will soon destroy the sight. Reading in the twilight is injurious to the eyes, as they are obliged to make great exertion. Reading or sewing with a side light injures the eyes, as both eyes should be exposed to an equal force of light. Those who wish to preserve their sight should preserve their general health by correct habits of living and give their eyes just work enough, with a due degree of light.

Inconsiderate Fellow.

"He said he'd die if I didn't marry him." "And still you refused?" "Yes. I wished to find out before promising whether he really loved me as much as that or not. Oh, Harriet, I'm p-p-perfectly miserable! He seems to be wretchedly healthy, and I do love him so much!"—Chicago Record Herald.

Debts in China.

In China one can always borrow money on the strength of having a son, but nobody would advance him a cent if he had a dozen daughters. The former is responsible for the debts of his father for three generations. The latter is only responsible for the debts of her own husband.

Mrs. Sarah Walmer, widow of the late Jacob Walmer, the wagon maker of Union Deposit, who spent thirty-one years of her life in that corporation, but is now living with relatives at the corner of North Sixth and Peffer streets, Harrisburg, Pa., says: "From a fall I received a wet band-walk in my yard about sixteen years ago, when I injured my back. I had any amount of trouble with my kidneys, having severe backaches very near all the time. It hurt me to stoop or lift anything of ordinary weight. Many times at night I could not turn in bed on account of sharp pains. Medicine did very little to relieve, and I had about given up taking any when I saw such glowing accounts of Doan's Kidney Pills. I concluded to try just once again, and I got a box of them at Forney & Knouse's drug store, on Market street. They did me a wonderful amount of good and relieved my aching back."

Concerning Fertilizers

Fifty years ago a young merchant, having been in a new business just long enough to learn some of its successes and many of its disappointments, was standing in the doorway of his store wondering what was the best thing to do; business was fearfully dull and bills coming due. While thus occupied, an old gentleman came up to him and said, "Be true to your customers, be true to yourself, do just as you agree, never misrepresent your goods, and trade will come to you from the most unexpected places and in the most unexpected way."

That was a prophecy of three generations ago. It did not apply to any one business, but covered all businesses, and when, in 1902, T. R. HUBBARD & SON'S FERTILIZERS were being shipped to Ohio, to the truck farmers of Virginia and the South, to New Jersey, to Pennsylvania, to Delaware and to Maryland, some of it unsolicited and to utter strangers, the old maxim of the old days forces itself strongly upon us.

We have been in the fertilizer business for over a quarter of a century, and in all that time, if any of our goods has been changed it has been to better them. The same bone we ground at first we grind today—its quality unchanged. It was pure then and it is pure now. We are reaping the reward of being true to our customers.

There is nothing that is harder to vary than the truth. A witness on the stand who has made a clear statement of the plain truth, never varies his story, even under the fiercest cross-examination. It is the teller of fairy-tales who changes his statements with each varying condition and season.

The fertilizers we offer you for 1903 are the best we have ever put out. Each year has its experiences. We learned something in 1902, and the users of HUBBARD'S FERTILIZERS will get the benefit of it.

A poor article may sell rapidly for a time if it is pushed energetically, but a record of steady gain over a period of 53 seasons among the same people can only be achieved by a good reliable article.

You can only judge the future by the past. If you have used HUBBARD'S FERTILIZERS in the past, you may be assured they will give you satisfaction in the future. If you have not tried them, we ask you if a record of 29 (twenty-nine) successful years with the farmers of the Middle States is not a sufficient guarantee to justify you in using our goods.

Soliciting your patronage, and thanking all our friends for their substantial support in the past, we remain,

Very truly yours, WILBUR W. HUBBARD, Manufacturer of Standard Bone Fertilizers, CHESTERTOWN, MARYLAND.
