EVARTS' QUIANT HUMOR.

How He Passed a Poet and a Statesman Into the Senate.

During the last days of Oliver Wendell Holmes' life he visited Washington in company with Robert C. Winthrop, and both of the venerable men visited the senate chamber on the occasion of some ceremonies which crowded the galleries with people, so that they were unable to obtain seats. They sent their cards to Mr. Evarts, hoping that he might arrange a place for them, and when he met them in the marble room he explained the difficulty.

"The galleries are crowded, as you know," he said, "and the rules of the senate admit to the floor of the chamber only members of the two houses of congress, members of the cabinet, justices of the supreme court, ex-senators, persons who have received the thanks of congress and private secretaries to senators. I cannot get you admission in any other capacity, but if you will accept highly respectable and remunerative employment as my private secretaries I will find you seats on the floor." Both the poet and the statesman accepted, and Mr. Evarts took them to the door, where he addressed the doorkeeper as follows:

"My dear sir, these two young men are my private secretaries. You will observe that they are both very green and ignorant, but I am trying to have patience with them and overlook their deficiencies. I wish you would take a good look at them so that when they come here again to see me you will know them." And with that he pushed open the swinging doors and motioned Dr. Holmes and Mr. Winthrop to pass in, while the doorkeeper in a bewildered sort of way remarked in an undertone:

"Well, I'll be blanked!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Growth of the Papal Crown.

Originally the headress of the popes was only a cap, but Clovis, king of the Franks, to show his respect to the church of Rome, sent to the palace of St. John in Lateran a royal crown of gold, which Anastasius, emperor of Constantinople, had presented to him. The Pope Hormisdas placed upon the tiara this crown, which was at that time nothing more than a circle of gold surmounted by leaf work, being much such a coronet as is nowadays borne by marquises in France. The successor of Pope Hormisdas continued to wear the tiara with one crown only up to the time of Boniface VIII, but this pope, having claimed authority over things temporal as well as spiritual, wished to mark this double dominion on the pontifical tiara, on which he placed two crowns instead of one. Ultimately Pope John XXII added a third crown.—St. James' Gazette.

Mark Twain's Joke on the Bishop.

Bishop Doane of Albany was at one time the rector of an Episcopal church in Hartford, and the services at this church Mark Twain would occasionally attend. Twain one Sunday played a joke upon the rector.

"Dr. Doane," he said at the end of the service, "I enjoyed your sermon this morning. I welcomed it like an old friend. I have, you know, a book at home containing every word of it." "You have not," said Dr. Doane. "I have so," said the humorist. "Well, send that book to me. I'd like to see it." "I'll send it," Twain replied.

And he sent the next morning an unabridged dictionary to the rector.—Boston Post.

Fishes Need Air.

Fishes, like all other animals, need air. If they could not get it they would be suffocated just as you would if you were locked in an air tight trunk. When the sea is frozen for miles, as in the Arctic ocean, the fishes find it very hard to come to the top, and must then "breathe" the air which is dissolved in the water. You have often seen the tiny bubbles which collect on the inside of a glass which has been standing full of water overnight. Well, that is the air which has been dissolved in the water, and after the glass has been tapped, so that all these bubbles come to the top, fishes could not live in that water. In other words, they would drown.

Fasting For Health.

Thousands of years before it was practiced as a religious rite fasting was practiced as a health measure in Egypt, India and China. Contemporary to Cicero was Asclepiades, a Greek physician, who strongly advocated this idea, and 1,000 years after his day Ibn Sina, philosopher and medical sage, argued the virtues of temporary abstinence on the ground that it came easier than constant moderation.

Trimming Sails.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torking, "how do they trim the sails of a yacht?" "Why—er—they just trim 'em, that's all." "I know. But what kind of trimming do they use?"—Washington Star.

Your Health.

You young people, don't forget that health is greatly prized in old age. Young people can stand abuses to their health in youth, but terrible interest is collected later on.—Atchison Globe.

Still Harder.

"It's hard to have a lot of debts that you simply can't pay." "Oh, I don't know. It's worse to have a lot that you simply have to pay."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Milton's Opinion.

Milton was once asked if he intended to instruct his daughter in the different languages. He replied: "No, sir. One tongue is sufficient for a woman."

Played Out.

That "played out"—"done up" feeling makes life miserable for every sufferer from Kidney ills, backaches, headaches and urinary troubles, painful and annoying.

Doan's Kidney Pills

bring new life and activity, remove the pain and cure the cause, from common backache to dangerous diabetes.

Mr. S. R. Bollinger, who resides at 429 South Duquesne street, bookkeeper at W. H. Hoffener's cigar factory, York, Pa., says: "Backache became so frequent that not adding anything to cure it or even to relieve it I could not do a day's work without suffering. While trying one medicine after another my attention was attracted by an account of Doan's Kidney Pills in the papers, and of course they in turn were given a trial. I procured them at Hodnett's drug store. Before I had taken a box of them I had no backache. I could work at the desk as steadily as I liked and did not even get tired in the back."

Concerning Fertilizers

Fifty years ago a young merchant, having been in a new business just long enough to learn some of its successes and many of its disappointments, was standing in the doorway of his store wondering what was the best thing to do; business was fearfully dull and bills coming due. While thus occupied, an old gentleman came up to him and said, "Be true to your customers, be true to yourself, do just as you agree, never misrepresent your goods, and trade will come to you from the most unexpected paces and in the most unexpected way."

That was a prophecy of three generations ago. It did not apply to any one business, but covered all businesses, and when, in 1902, T. R. HUBBARD & SON'S FERTILIZERS were being shipped to Ohio, to the truck farmers of Virginia and the South, to New Jersey, to Pennsylvania, to Delaware and to Maryland, some of it unsolicited and to utter strangers, the old maxim of the old days forces itself strongly upon us.

We have been in the fertilizer business for over a quarter of a century, and in all that time, if any of our goods has been changed it has been to better them. The same bone we ground at first we grind today—its quality unchanged. It was pure then and it is pure now. We are reaping the reward of being true to our customers.

There is nothing that is harder to vary than the truth. A witness on the stand who has made a clear statement of the plain truth, never varies his story, even under the fiercest cross-examination. It is the teller of fairy-tales who changes his statements with each varying condition and season.

The fertilizers we offer you for 1903 are the best we have ever put out. Each year has its experiences. We learned something in 1902, and the users of HUBBARD'S FERTILIZERS will get the benefit of it.

A poor article may sell rapidly for a time if it is pushed energetically, but a record of steady gain over a period of 58 seasons among the same people can only be achieved by a good reliable article.

You can only judge the future by the past. If you have used HUBBARD'S FERTILIZERS in the past, you may be assured they will give you satisfaction in the future. If you have not tried them, we ask you if a record of 29 (twenty-nine) successful years with the farmers of the Middle States is not a sufficient guarantee to justify you in using our goods.

Soliciting your patronage, and thanking all our friends for their substantial support in the past, we remain,

Very truly yours,
