Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy. SCOTT & BOWNE, CHEMISTS, 409 Pearl St., N. Y. 5c. and 10c. all druggists.

Judges' Wigs.

The wig is only worn by English barristers to give them a stern, judicial appearance, and no one can say that it fails in this respect. The custom was originated by a French judge in the seventeenth century, when, happening to don a marquis' wig one day, he found it gave him such a stern and dignified appearance that he decided to get one for himself and wear it at all times in court. This he did, and the result was so satisfactory from a legal point of view that not only judges, but barristers also, took up the custom throughout Europe.

Precautions in Spots.

Bobby—Do I have to go to school, mother? Mother—Of course, Bobby. Bobby—Why, mother, I heard you tell father last night that I knew en- tirely too much.—Detroit Free Press.

Figures It Out.

Jolk—When may a knothole be said to be not whole? Polk—What are you talking about? Jolk—The answer is: When only a part of the knot is not.—Philadelphia Press.

Evidence of an Eyewitness.

Guest—Why do you believe in second sight, major? Major Darby (in an impressive whisper)—Because I fell in love at first sight!—Punch.

If a row threatens you don't let it go so far that you become bitter and are willing to hurt yourself in order to hurt your enemy.

COURTING IN IRELAND.

Lovers and Lovemaking in the Land of the Shamrock.

The Irish way of courting in the old days and in quiet country places even to the present day was and is very different from that style of thing which makes the subject of many finely pointed romances. There were no stolen interviews, no twilight walks, no thought of kisses or even hand clasps—in short, no lovemaking whatever. But if they were at reaping or haymaking Peter took his place next to Rosie, helped to bind her sheaves when his own were done and at noonday took his share of soda cake and his draft of milk from her hands. Then in the quiet evening, when the work was done and the evening meal was over, Peter would rise and look out of the door and say to his father or sisters: "Tis a fine night. I think I'll go for a bit of a stroll." And the bit of a stroll inevitably ended on the narrow path through the white bushes up to the stile, over which it was but three steps into Alec McCrossan's haggard, and then across to where the firelight shone welcoming through an open door.

Around the fire the family circle widened to make room for him, as a matter of course. Maybe he took a draw at the pipe, and maybe he didn't. Anyhow he would sit there and be contented for long enough, talking at the time to McCrossan or the neighbors, but with quiet, happy eyes watching Rosie, the loved and chosen one, as she sat in the flickering light or moved about the room. And there was a gleam in her eyes and a smile on her lip which told him he was welcome and bade him stay long and come again soon, and in his heart was a firm resolve, as soon as ever he saw his way to marrying, that he would have Rosie and no other.

This, in spite of all that is written in story books and silly romances or shown on the stage, is the recognized and seemly Irish way of courting.—Donahoe's Magazine.

APHORISMS.

In all things it is better to hope than despair.—Goethe.

Adversity borrows its sharpest sting from our impatience.—Bishop Horne.

He alone is an acute observer who can observe minutely without being observed.—Lavater.

If the ancients left us ideas, to our credit be it spoken, we moderns are building houses for them.—A. B. Alcott. Money dishonestly acquired is never worth its cost, while a good conscience never costs as much as it is worth.—J. P. Senn.

The one who will be found in trial capable of great acts of love is ever the one who is always doing considerate small ones.—F. W. Robertson.

To be humble to superiors is duty; to equals is courtesy, to inferiors is nobleness, and to all safety, it being a virtue that for all its lowliness, commandeth those it stoops to.—Sir T. More.

The Value of a Vacation.

A vacation pays as much from the standpoint of character as from any other point of view. Just as "every man is a rascal when he is sick," so the best intentioned man in the world may be a brute when he is worn out physically and working and planning or trying to do so with a fagged, weary brain. The brutal qualities in a man's nature come to the surface when he has drained his vitality to the dregs. He loses his self control and his passions get the better of him. He does things which in his soul he condemns and says things for which he afterward hates himself, and all because he lacks physical stamina. The long strain of the year has made him so irritable and exacting that the merest trifle upsets him. He goes all to pieces over little things which he would not even notice if he were in good bodily condition.—Success.

American Grit.

"I'm used to being drowned," writes a Kansas City merchant, "but it is crowding the mourners to have the price of beef rise because the Missouri river does." That humorous stream, which now takes away your farm in the night and transfers it to your neighbor, now annexes his holdings to your own, now overflows you altogether, is a good symbol of American fortune. Bury the dead, get a new suit of clothes on credit, and to work again!—Everybody's Magazine.

An Old Jewish Cemetery.

The most interesting sight in Prague is the old Jewish cemetery. It is in the center of the city, surrounded by thick walls. There are thousands of ancient moss covered slabs, some bearing inscriptions of great antiquity which only Hebrew scholars can decipher. The cemetery is unused, but no other Jewish burial ground in Europe can compare with it for age or general interest to the antiquarian.

An Unfair Deal.

"Tried to skin me, that scribbler did!" "What did he want?" "Wanted to get out a book jointly, he wrote the book and I to write the advertisements. I turned him down. I wasn't going to do all the literary work!"—Baltimore News.

Cure For a Homely Hat.

Floorwalker—I'm very sorry, madam, but I can't exchange this hat for you. Mrs. Smithson—But my husband does not like it! Floorwalker—Then I'd advise you to get a divorce.—Syracuse Herald.

Not to return a benefit is the greatest sin, but not to confer it is the earlier.—Seneca.
