THE AIM OF LIFE.

Delivered by Mr. Wm. Thomas at the Public School Commencement in Millington Thursday Night.

Each one of us is placed in this world for some purpose. Every man has some duty in this life which he should perform to the best of his ability. He who is ambitious strives to attain some noble position in life, aiming to make the world the better, and to leave behind him a good name. Multitudes of men, (so called) live, die and soon forgotten, because they had no other aim in life than to eat, drink, and be merry. Suppose all men had no greater ambition than this? Do you think the world would make any progress? If each of us had no other aim in life than in the gratification of our sensual appetites, do you think the work would become any better? No. It is not the indolent and unambitious man that aids the world's progress, but the one that is active and strives after noble objects. He alone works his way to greatness, who does not yield to the temptation to relax his efforts, by the failure of his forefathers for, though one's progenitors never reached a prominent place in the galaxy of the world's heroes and benefactors, that is no reason why we may not. He who wishes to accomplish good results in life can not afford to be idle, but must ever be striving to advance his claims for the banner of success for which he is toiling.

"The lives of great men all remind us
We may make our lives sublime
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of Time."

There are many notable examples of men who have worked at the bench, the forge, and in the mill, who by untiring efforts and sturdy perseverance, have accomplished their aim and found fame. The names of the most eminent men of our own country may be presented as the most fitting examples of this. There are thousands of men living to-day whose good examples might be held up as patterns for those starting in life.

Look at Franklin! A poor printer boy, walking up the streets of Philadelphia with a loaf of bread in his hand and only a few coppers in his pocket. See him toiling successfully up the ladder of success round by round until at last he stands on the top. See how Grant and Garfield, the generals and Presidents; Whittier, the poet; Clay, the orator; and Edison, the inventor, have worked their way up the ladder of fame. What good examples, what excellent patterns do these men set before us! And as we glance at their lives these questions present themselves to us: 1st. Upon what foundations did they build their efforts that they were enabled to use to such eminence? How did they work their way from their humble beginning to such high positions as that of the President of the United States, or the renown of a famous author or orator; or to the fame of a celebrated statesman or philosopher. Was it not by unceasing toil and battle with discouragement? Was it not by hard work, hard study and untiring energy? It was. Their lives are as a book in which these lessons are taught. Every young man needs to learn the power of attention. A glance at the lives of great men will show that from their earliest moments all their energies have been concentrated on one great idea, which has been the moving spirit of their lives. Another very important essential of success is industry. Too many of the youths of the present age do not seem to appreciate the fact that labor is ennobling. Greatness demands sacrifice and he who would enter the race and win the laurels for his brow must pay the fare. Promptitude in beginning work, forms another of the primary qualities of success. He that is prompt in the performance of his duty has more hopes of success than one that is dilatory. A young man should aim at accuracy in carrying out his work; and last, but not least he should learn self-reliance. Among all the mental qualifications which help on to success in life, none is more important than self-reliance. Saxe, the poet, says:

"In battle or business, whatever the game.
In law or in love, it is ever the same;
In the struggle for power, or the scramble for pelf,
Let this be your motto: Rely on yourself!
For whether the prize be a ribbon or throne;
The victor is he, who can go it alone."

If we want anything done well we must do it ourselves, and hence it follows, those who rely on themselves for the accomplishment of any purpose, are the ones who perform the best work. An excellent maxim is: "Heaven helps them, that help themselves." These are the fundamental principles and the primary qualities for success in life; hence the attainment of one's success depends entirely upon the thoroughness with which he has learnt the fundamental requirements of every successful man. The principles upon which we build our lives form the foundation of the building and unless they are laid properly the whole structure will prove a failure. Lives of eminent men also show that Hope is essential of success. We should hold our heads high, and our eyes turned that we may always see the golden letters of Hope set in a crystal sky. We should begin life with an ambition so great that old age will find us still toiling and hoping on. We must always look up and not keep our eyes on the ground. The boy or man who goes through this world with his eyes on the ground sees only those things which are beneath him. The higher, nobler things that we should reach out for and try to grasp are above our heads.

In the ancient stadium of Greece, where the Greeks held the famous Olympic games, three pillars stood respectively, at the starting-point, midway, and at the goal or turning-point. On the first was inscribed a Greek expression, meaning, "Show yourself a man!" "Do your best!" On the last was an expression which might be rendered, "Stop here!" "Arrest your steps!" But on that midway pillar was the imperative, "Speed you!" "Make haste!" Every man has seen the first, with its excellent advice to the beginner, "Show yourself a man!" "Do your best!" be manly and persevering; but how many fail to observe the exhortation and become miserable failures—never reach even the second pillar. Those who have imbibed the spirit of the first inscription, and are stimulated by the imperative words of the second, "Make haste!" "Speed you!" seldom fail to reach the goal. Inspired by manly hopes and energetic impulses, encouraged by cheering words and noble attainments, they rest at last, having gained the laurels awarded to the victor. We, too, with the world before us; with the bright and noble examples of others as beacon-lights; with our powers and faculties fresh and vigorous; with the smiles and encouragements of dear and cherished ones, if we work, study diligently and earnestly, we too, may reach the goal of our ambition, and enroll our names among the great and mighty of the earth.

"Life is a lesson, count all joy, all pain,
No more than part of what the soul must learn
In this great school, the world. Though you should yearn
For one brief, blessed pause; though you would fain
Forego the tales of war and bloodshed vain.
Remember, you were born to teach! Discern
Strange secrets with unshrinking eye, nor spurn
One principle which makes the lesson plain,
One lesson, so your training be complete.
Herein lies life's deep truth, then hold it fast;
Failure and loss are better than they seem;
No heart so brave as that which bears defeat!
He acts the hero's part who wins at last
In life-long battle with his vanquished dream.

HE IS A DEMOCRAT.

N. Y. World, Dem.

Grover Cleveland is a Democrat. By birth, instinct, education, habit and conviction he is a Democrat.

There is no principle or policy of Democracy, no cherished tradition or deep present purpose of the party, to which he is not devoted.

He is the Democrat candidate for President, nominated in response to the well-nigh universal wish of the party. In recognition of that general desire, the favorite sons of many States, each of them strong at home and respected throughout the country, have refused the use of their names against his. He is nominated upon his character and record, because the party wants him and believes that it can elect him.

Could any candidate appeal more directly to all citizens not tenaciously partisan, whose chief concern in the coming election is to get the best man for President—the man most sure to admininster the great office with high courage and patriotic purpose for the best good of all the people?

Grover Cleveland must be elected.

This extract is from one of Mr. Cleveland bitterest enemies.

In this view of the contest what conscientious Democrat can hesitate about his duty? Better vote for the liberty and the white government of the southern states, even if the candidate were the devil himself, rather than consent to the election of respectable Benjamin Harrison with a Force bill in his pocket!—N. Y. Sun.

All gone—woman's suffering and woman's weakness. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription puts a stop to it. It's a remedy for all the delicate derangements and disorders that make her suffer, and a cure for all the diseases and disturbances that make her weak. It's a legitimate medicine, that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nervine that soothes and strengthens. For bearing down pains, displacements, all the functional irregularities peculiar to the sex, it's a safe and certain remedy.

Other medicines claim to cure? That's true. But they don't claim to do this: if the Favorite Prescription fails to give satisfaction, in any case for which it's recommended, the money paid for it is refunded.

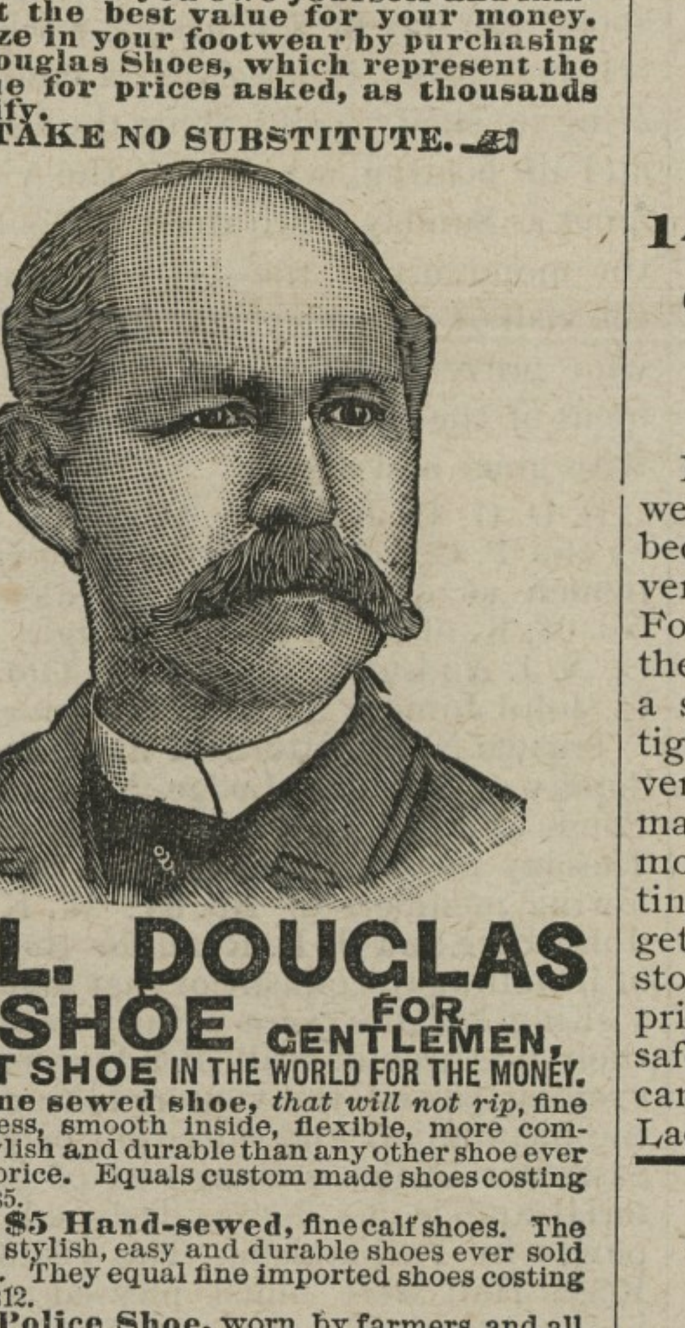

Judge for yourself which is likely to be the better medicine.

And think whether something else offered by the dealer is likely to be "just as good."
