A SMOKELESS LOCOMOTIVE.

Result of an Experiment Made Over in Austria.

Mr. Theodor Langer, mechanical engineer of the Northwest Railway, has made an experiment with a locomotive fitted with an apparatus of his own designing, from Vienna to Znaim, a distance of 100 kilometers. The Chicago Tribune says of it: The two cars immediately behind the locomotive were open, and the occupants were able, consequently, to observe closely the working of the new apparatus. It was shown that the locomotive, even when running at a high rate of speed—at times as high as seventy kilometers an hour—emitted only clear water stream, but no smoke, sparks or cinders. Although usually a person in an open railway car is covered with cinders and dirt from the locomotive, the gentlemen who rode on the special train from Vienna to Znaim, not excepting the ones who rode on the locomotive, found at the end of the journey that their coats, linen, and hands were as clean as when they started. On the train itself a person had the enjoyable experience of moving about and getting up and down without soiling his hands. In the closed carriage the windows were kept open without exposing anybody to cinders or smoke. All the guests were loud in their praise of the inventor.

Of the smoke-consuming apparatus the following explanation was given:

After years of observation, Mr. Langer succeeded in explaining with theoretical correctness the complicated processes of heat power and the law of the composition of smoke. In harmony with this law he placed outside the boiler an automatic device which supplies the fire with just enough air to make possible the consumption of the smoke and gas. In the space over the fire a steam veil operates in such a manner that the air and the gas are whirled together and thoroughly mixed. The gas which has thus been burned is then forced against the boiler, and its heat giving power is utalized to the last possibility. The great advantages of this process are plain. Besides effecting a great saving of heating materials—estimated as ten to twenty-five per cent.—it enables a railway company to do away with the disagreeable and unhealthy smoke, cinders, and gas which are emitted by locomotives of the usual type, for the locomotives provided with the Langer smoke-consuming device give out only the pure steam necessary to operate them. * * * This device has been applied on thirty-five locomotives (most of them in the express train service) of the Northwest Railway, and, after trials extending two years, has been found in every way satisfactory. More locomotives are provided with it by the Northwest Company almost every month. Other companies which have tested the invention report equally good results.

Among specialists Langer's ingenious invention has been known for some time. We recall for instance, the lecture delivered on the subject by Prof. R. Boeck, of the Vienna Technical School, February 18th, 1893, before the meeting of the Austrian Society of Engineers and Architects. Among those who inspected the Langer device on the locomotives of the Northwest Railway last year was Director Garbe of the Royal Prussian Railways who was sent here by the president of the Railway Board, in Berlin. He spoke of the invention in terms of unconditional praise, summarizing his opinion in the words: "Mr. Langer's invention represents an extraordinary step forward in the development of the locomotive. His invention is astonishingly simple in practice, can be easily handled, can be utalized without difficulty by the railways, and in short time saves its full cost [about 600 florins.] The invention has been used also in stationary boilers in the Hungarian arms factory at Budapest. The results have been very favorable. A special advantage of the apparatus is that it can be introduced in any locomotive or stationary boiler in a few days and without the slightest alteration of the general system used in either."

FELLING BIG TREES.

How the California Redwoods Are Cut Down.

One of the most remarkable timber belts in the world stands in Humboldt and Mendocino counties of California. It embraces 4,125 square miles, containing 133,000,000,000 of timber. With the aid of a microscope scientists have found the age of some of these trees to be nearly 5,000 years. Some of the fallen trees have remained where they fell for 800 to 1,000 years, so it is estimated, with scarcely any deterioration of the wood.

Eastern tourists in California know little of these redwoods (Sequota sempervirens.) They usually see the few mammoth redwoods of (Calaveras gigantea), and go home and tell Eastern friend about this disappearing tribe of giants. The lumberwoods of Humboldt are less talked about, yet one of its trees will yield over a 100,000 feet of boards, and fill a freight train with logs.

Felling these trees, which are 150 to 250 feet high, is a fine art acquired only by the most expert chopper. The man must have excellent judgment as to the lean of the tree, and its other peculiarities which may affect the direction of the fall. He drives a stake 100 or 150 feet from the base of the tree, and prepares a level bed in direct line from base to stake. On that line the tree must fall. An ax kerf or cut is then made in the trunk on the side the tree is to fall. The apex of the obtuse triangle made by this kerf points exactly at the distant stake. The tree is cut one-third through with the ax.

On the other side of the tree, opposite the axkerf, a saw is started. This is done by boring two holes horizontally and driving the wooden pins on which the twelve or twentyfoot saw rests until the kerf is sufficiently deep to study the saw. Broad, thin iron wedges are driven in after the saw to prevent the doomed tree from pinching it. At each end of this saw "ears" are bolted on, which can be removed and saw withdrawn in case of trouble. Wedges are made to follow the saw until the wood dividing the saw from the ax kerf is narrowed to a width where wedges can be made to force the tree, with all of its great weight, to lean in the direction it is to fall. The tree is toppled over, and so exact is the chopper's work and calculation that almost invariably the falling trunk drives the stake aimed at when operations were begun. Any error in the fall of the tree is likely to cause the tree to break and cost the lumberman more than a chopper's wages for a month—$125.

These virgin forests are so densely timbered that, if cleared at once, there would not be room enough on the ground for the tree-trunks. "Peelers" follow the choppers with long steel bars, flattened on one end, they pry off the thick bark and burn it. Then comes the cross-cut saw man, who cuts the tree into logs. These are transported to the mills by rail, cut into boards and shipped to market.

WOMEN WHO PART THEIR HAIR.

Take Out the Tangles—A Single Fuzz Mars It.

If you are going to cultivate a part, the section of hair that grows on the top of the head (in the space included between the forehead, a line drawn straight back from the top of the ears and a line drawn over the round of the head at the back, to cross these two lines) must be washed at least twice a week, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. It will be well to thoroughly annoint the scalp of this section of the head with vaseline before washing. Next wash till all the vaseline is washed out, and the hair lathers freely, then thoroughly rinse out all the soap most carefully. Dry and untangle. Every broken hair means an addition to the fuzz of short hair that mars the part.

When all these tangles are out make the parting, and while the hair is still wet brush softly from the parting. Brush until dry. You will need two brushes, and have one drying and heating while you use the other. If you brush faithfully until your hair is quite dry, there will be an unwonted gloss on the tresses, the part will be a clear pink that will soon turn to a clear white, and the short stubby hairs will be more or less laid, at least for a time. If they are very discouraging, you may use a little vaseline near the part, but it is seldom advisable. Once a month, at least, all the hair should be washed according to this method. You will find that the use of vaseline first and the brushing with hot brushes until dry will leave the hair flexible and glossy, instead of dry and fluffy.

FAVORITE CONUNDRUMS.

Under what condition might handkerchiefs be used in building a wall? Answer If they became brick (be cambric.)

If "Rider Haggard had been Lew Wallace, who would "She" have been? Answer She would have been "Ben Hur."

Why was Orpheus a greater musician than Wagner? Because Orpheus made all the beast of the field laugh by his music, but Wagner made only one Lo(w)hen-grin.

The best conundrum I ever heard is the following, made by the late Prof. Sillman of Yale College. Why are the stars the best astronomers? Because they have studded (studied) the heavens for ages.

What fruit does the electric plant bear? Curre(a)nts.

Why is wind blind? Answer. Wind is zephyr; zephyr is yarn; yarn a tale; a tail is an attachment; an attachment is love; and love is blind. Therefore wind is blind.

Why is a lame dog like a sheet of writing paper? A sheet of writing paper is an ink-lined plane; an inclined plane is a slope-up, and what is a lame dog but a slow-pup?

Everything has what a house has; what has a house? Answer. A name.

Which is the most dangerous season of the year to walk in the woods, and why? Answer. In the spring because then the trees shoot, the flowers have pistils, and the bulrush is (bull rushes) out.

My first is a peculiar kind of butter. My second is a peculiar kind of liquor (licker). My whole is a peculiar kind of charger. Answer. Ramrod.

My favorite conundrum is: If Solomon was the son of David and Joab the son of Zeruiah, what relation was Zeruiah to Joab? The answer almost invaribly given is, "Father." I have given it to pastors Sunday-school workers and Bible students and all usually answer, "Father," and declare that the answer could be nothing else than "Father." One can imagine the chagrin and amusemement of the persons to whom the coundrum is given, when after giving up they are told that the answer is, "Mother."

What are lawyer's degrees of comparison? It is hard to get on, harder to get honor, and hardest to get honest.

Why is the Open Parliament like a certain officer in the Episcopal Church? Because it's always awardin' (a warden.)

Why does a duck into the water, come out, and go in again, then come out? Answer. He goes in the first time to liquidate his little bill; he then comes out for sundry reasons, goes in again for divers reasons, goes in again for "divers reasons," then comes out to make a run on the bank.

Why is it very difficult to get rid of a disagreeable house maid? Because, even if she dies she, returns to dust.

When was paper currency first introduced? Answer. When the dove brought the green-back to the ark.

How did Henry the Eighth differ from other men as a suitor? Answer. He married his wives first and axed them afterwards.

Why was Goliath surprised when he was struck by a stone? Because such a thing never entered his head before.

What is the best time to study the book of nature? When autumn turns the leaves.

Why is it difficult for young ladies to flirt on the Cunard steamers? Answer. Because the mails (males) are all tied up in bags.

If you were to meet the Goddess of Liberty on Broadway, how would you address her? Answer. Statue ('s tat you.)

Why is life the greatest conundrum? Answer. We must all give it up.

What is better than God, worse than the devil, which the dead eat, and which if the living eat they die? Answer. Nothing.

If a negro carrying a platter of turkey should let it fall, what effect would it have upon the world?—It would cause the humiliation of Africa, the downfall of Turkey, the overthrow of Greece, and the destruction of China.

Three sons go to the West and settle down, starting a cattle-ranch. When all is ready they send home to the mother to name their new home. She in reply said, "Call it 'Focus.'" Why? Because it is where the sun's ray's meet (sons raise meat).

I went to the woods and got it; after I got it I looked for it; the more I looked for it the less I liked it, and carried it home in my hand because I couldn't find it.—A sliver.

When is a door not a door?—When it is ajar.

Why is a washerwoman the greatest traveler in the world.—Because she crosses the line and travels from pole to pole.

Why are the early birds like a suspended firm?—Because their little bills are all over dew (overdue).

Which are the cheapest features of the face?—Two nostrils for a scent.

Why is a minister near the end of his sermon like a ragged urchin?—Because he's toward his close.

What is that which goes up the hill and down the hill, and yet, in spite of all, it standeth still?—The road.

A Means of Defense.

"Gentlemen," said the Indiana mayor, "the object of the meeting has been fully set forth to you in the published call. An industrial army is marching in this direction. Our people have enough to do to take care of their own unemployed. In this emergency something must be done. The coming of this army is a menace. Whatever we do to meet it must be done promptly, resolutely and fearlessly. I await your pleasure, fellow citizens. The meeting is open."

After a short pause, the editor of the town paper rose up.

"Mr. Chairman," he said, pale, but determined, "I move you, sir, that as a means of averting the visitations that threatens us, a double column be inserted at once in the Weekly Tornado, offering steady work on the roads at $2.50 a day to every member of the coming army. And I take pleasure in adding, Mr. Chairman," he went on in a voice that rose high above the din of applause, "that I will publish the ad. for three-fourths the regulate rate, on the local page, in big display type, next to pure reading matter, and send 50 copies to the advancing army, postage prepaid, Mr. Chairman, without extra charge!"

LOSS OF POWER and vital force follow loss of flesh, or emaciation. These come from impoverished blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery enriches the blood, stops the waste of strength and tissue, and builds up healthy flesh. Nasty Cod liver oils add fat but not wholesome flesh. Thin, pale, puny and scrofulous children are made plump, rosy and robust by the "Discovery." They like it, too.

In recovering from "Grippe," or in convalescence from pneumonia, fevers, or other wasting diseases, it speedily and surely invigorates and builds up the whole system. Mutual Life Insurance Co.,

RICHARD A. McCURDY, President.

J. HERMAN IRELAND,

SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE,

837 Market Street, - Wilmington, Del.

For Your Consideration.

To be happy you must be contented; to be contented you must feel that your home is secure, and your family provided for.

Have you a mortgage on your property? If you have you may be able to pay it off in time. If you die before it is lifted—who will pay it?

Would not a Life Insurance Policy be a good thing for you to carry, so that whatever happens, your property will be secure?

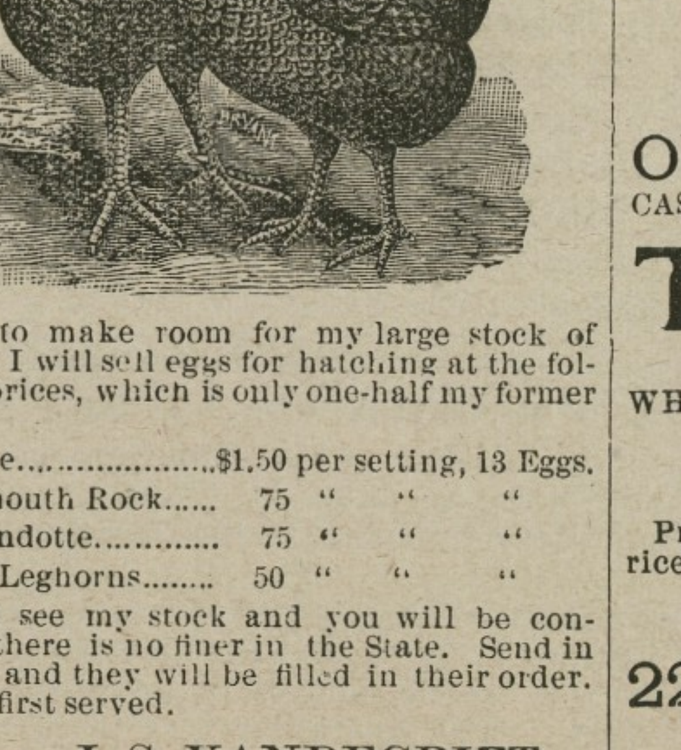

Most men work hard and take but little present comfort in order to secure future wealth. Yet 95 per cent. of men in business are not successful. Think of it!

Do not leave this matter of the future welfare of your family in doubt. Decide now and take a $5,000, $10,000 or $20.000 policy on your life, payable to yourself at 60 or 65 years, if you are then living. If you die before that time your family and business are protected. If you live, you will be well provided for. Meanwhile you can enjoy your present income, and at the same time leave your family provided for. Having paid your Life Insurance premium, you can freely spend the remainder of your income without the haunting fear of future want to the wife and children.

I will be pleased to make you a proposition for an investment contract in the largest and oldest Life Insurance Company in the world.
