WOMEN IN SOCIETY

—often need the strengthening support of a general tonic and nervine. They're tired out or "run-down." This is frequently the result of "weakness," and it makes life miserable.

Are you weak, nervous, or ailing? Then Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription brings you special help. It's a remedy prescribed for delicate women, for all the derangements, disorders, and diseases of the sex.

For regulating and promoting all the proper functions, building up and invigorating the entire system, and restoring health and strength, this is the only remedy that can be guaranteed to benefit or cure, or the money will be refunded.

For every case of Catarrh which they cannot cure, the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy agree to pay $500 in cash. You're cured by its mild, soothing, cleansing, and healing properties, or you're paid.

Baltimore Centennial Exposition.

Our readers have no doubt seen mentioned in the papers something about the Great Exposition which is to be held in Baltimore during 1897.

It would be well for them to note that it is a State affair, in which all the counties are expected to take part, and be largely represented by their various industries, and to show off their different advantages. And this huge undertaking, although inaugurated by our city friends, to be a perfect success, must have the whole-hearted support of all the people of the State; so we must be up and doing, that we may show off the State's many attractions in the most thorough way; also that many of the millions of people who will visit this great exposition will come to believe as every true Marylander always maintains, that is, our State is not only a good place to be born in, or to die in, but the very best place to live in.

This Great Big Exposition in plain words is to be a great advertisement for our State; and the rivalry among the different States in the Union for supremacy is so great, these expositions or advertisements are a necessity.

In the past we have been too modest. The Great West was built up by showing its advantages to the people of other sections and foreign countries. Owing to the fact of hard climates, low prices for agricultural products, and long distances from foreign or consuming markets, the tide of immigration is changing, and the South is putting forth many schemes that are attractive to get new people to its sections.

Why should not Maryland have its share of new people also? It can, if we only let other people know what we have to offer. The coming Baltimore Centennial is our opportunity; let's embrace it. We are glad to know with each day its scope broadens, and already many foreign manufactures are enquiring about the space for their exhibits, and even foreign governments, through their ambassadors and ministers in Washington, are looking the matter up, so their respective countries can be properly represented.

It is confidently asserted if the people of the State put their shoulders to the wheel, work with unity, and help the project along, that in 1897 our visitors who will come from every country in the world, will see an exposition only second to the World's Fair, held last year in Chicago. The people coming will have to be fed; they will consume a great deal. We in the country districts must supply the food. Baltimore is our natural market, therefore the direct results in cash from the Baltimore Centennial can be counted in millions.

Schools Without Discipline.

An American girl who went to Japan to teach in the schools says that Japanese children are never noisy in the presence of their elders. To the same effect is the testimony of Miss Bacon, who, in her book, "A Japenese Interior," thus describes her first introduction to the school custom of the country:

After a while the principal comes forward and bows, and all the children bend themselves nearly double in return; then he makes a very short speech and bows again, and once more the whole 350 bow simultaneously. It is a very pretty custom and I do not see why when a speaker bows to his audience should not return the compliment. It seems quite the natural and polite thing to do.

The first thing that once notices in a Japanese school, after an experience with American schools, is the absence of its discipline or of any necessity for it; the pupils are all so perfectly ladylike that politeness restrains them from doing anything that is not exactly what their teachers or superiors would wish them to do.

There is no noise in the corridors, no whispering in the classes, nothing but the most earnest desire to be careful and thoughtful always of others, especially of the teachers.

Mine says that in addition to this there is in the Peeresses' school a most remarkably high sense of honor, so that the teacher can be quite sure that her pupils will never be guilty of cheating or shamming or trying to improve their standing by any false methods. It is very interesting to me in reading over the names of my class-list to notice that some of them were famous in Japanese history long before Columbus discovered America.

Somehow the centuries of honor in which the families have been held have told upon the daughters, and they are ladies in the finest sense of that much-abused work, even when dressed in such shapeless and dowdy clothes that a beggar woman in America would turn up her nose at them.

A Remarkable Dog.

To the Editor of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN:

A peculiar incident occurred to my fox terrier Fritz, which may be of interest to the readers of your valuable paper. While my cellar door was open, the dog descended in search of rats, at about 9 o'clock. At 9.30 o'clock the dog was searched for and thought lost. No further notice was taken in the matter until the next morning at 11 o'clock, when I was attracted by a dog yelping. After a careful search in the cellar, which revealed only a pile of sand by the wall, I noticed the dog's nose protruding through an inch board at the top window of the cellar looking into the yard. I went immediately upstairs and removed five brick from the pavement and pulled the dog out. After a careful inspection I discovered he had dug under the foundation of the house in the sand, which had caved in on him. Finding nother means of escape, he dug up to the surface, a distance of six feet; and on arriving at the brick surface, which had been recently paved, dug toward the window a distance of three feet, and had nearly eaten through the board in his efforts to free himself. He was nearly exhausted when discovered, being nearly 26 hours under ground. One eye was entirely closed from sand, the other nearly so. The same dog recently jumped from the second story window, a distance of 18 feet, only injuring his toe nail.

COLORED SHOES.—Speaking of Russians—they are no longer a novelty but are now a necessity The general public have come to the conclusion the Russians are stylish for general wear, and what the people want the dealers will have to handle. There are many good points about these shoes; one is, they give a pleasant sensation to the wearer because they don't heat up the foot. The absence of all oils in the leather makes them just the shoes for tender feet, as there is no burning or rasped feeling to the foot in a Russian Shoe.
