INCURABLES.

To the intelligent, thinking man or woman who reads this paper, I have a word to say:

The large proportion of my patients are those who have been given over by the faculty and their friends as past all cure.

Now I have not come to Baltimore and settled for life here as a new man in my profession. For many years in all parts of the world and in this country I have been curing ninety-five per cent. of the same Incurables—upon whom the sentence of death has been pronounced by their attending medical men, and I have sworn certificates of thousands to these cases.

I have therefore a right to ask and indeed to urge upon all persons who have friends who are among the so called "Incurables," to come and see me and investigate my treatment without drugs or medicines and without the knife.

If the sufferers themselves are able to do so, they should come and satisfy themselves, that they CAN be cured. Consultations are always free and all times from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M. I have five large consultation parlors, two of which are exclusively for ladies.

Let me call your attention especially to some of the forms of disease which always yield to the treatment.

Asthma
Nearsightedness
Headache
Catarrh
Paralysis
Locomotor Ataxia
Cataract
Scrofulous
Rheumatism
Astigmatism
Neuralgia
Consumption
Brights Disease

If in the above list you do not find the particular trouble you remember it is not left out because I cannot cure it.

I have one further word of illustration and exhortation; a gentlemen in this city of Baltimore obtained a set of my curative appliances a few weeks ago for a relative who was in a decline and whom the eminent specialist who attend her say she cannot possibly live. He, the eminent specialist, objected to the patient's having the appliances on the ground that though harmless they were useless, as the patient could only live a few days at the utmost, and so the patient is deprived of the appliances, which have never failed in similar cases and is now dying because the specialist must make good his dictum.

Don't let any one kill you to prove his own skill. PROF. W. C. WILSON, PRES'T

COLORADO'S FAIR STATESMEN.

The First Women to Act as Lawmakers are in the Present Legislature.

The tenth General Assembly of Colorado now in session in Denver is notable because it numbers among its members three women, for the first time in the history of the State. Then, in addition to three female members of the lower house, the trading clerk of the Senate is a woman. The new superintendent of public instruction is Mrs. A. J. Peavey, and eight out of every twelve of the legislative clerks are women.

Nothing but obstinacy of the men prevented the pages in the House and Senate from being girls instead of boys. It is a matter of doubt what part the women will take in legislation. So far they have managed very nicely by watching Representative Lowell, a Republican, who sits immediately in front of them. By doing just as he did they have voted correctly with the party, they are Republicans to a woman.

One of the three women is Representative Clara Cressingham. She is a little woman, bright and active, with light blue eyes and brown hair. She has the housewifely air which suggests closer acquaintance with the cook stove than with legislative bills and such things. In common with other women members, she received the privilege of choosing a desk before the men were allowed to draw. Although each of them chose a seat well up in the second row Mrs Cressingham is so small that she is almost hidden from view, even when standing on tiptoe. To obviate this difficulty the House carpenter has built her a little platform, and by this means she is able to stand upon a level with some of the shorter men and attract the speaker's notice. At her feet is a huge brass cuspidor, nearly two feet in diameter. As though to disarm suspicion she has it already stuffed with waste paper.

Like Mrs. Francis B. Klock, another of the women representatives, Mrs. Cressingham was elected from Arapahoe county, and had extensive experience in managing societies for the promotion of temperance, municipal reform, public health, education, relief corps and the like. It is to such matters that the women will first address themselves, and each of them have several bills for introduction at the proper time. Unlike her sister from Arapahoe, Mrs. Klock is of large and manlike frame. Her iron-gray hair is brushed straight back and wound in a tight knot at the back of her head, thus tending to bring out the strong lines of her face. Mrs. Klock is at least twenty years older than Mrs. Cressingham, and by nature as well as experience is fitted to lend her sister representatives in any fight they might make against man's tyranny. When Speaker Humphrey, of Colorado Springs was to be installed the task of introducing him was turned over to the three women members, and Mrs. Klock very naturally assumed the chief part and made the speech of presentation. The few words then spoken comprise the sum total of oratory from the three so far recorded.

Mrs. Carrie L. Holly, the third woman, has the honor of helping to represent Eli Pasco county, which contains Colorado Springs, Manitou, Cripple Creek, Bull Hill, Garden of-the-Gods, and other celebrated places. On the first day of the session Mrs. Holly brought her husband and little girl into the house, but on learning that each member had the privilege of passing only one person on the floor, the husband was banished. The child remained, and by her playful and prattling ways was the source of much amusement in the galleries.

Mrs. E. G. Hibbert, who holds the office of reading clerk in the Senate, is what is known as a Populist orator. This in itself should be sufficient recommendation of her vocal ability, but the vivacity with which she sails into the reading of the journals is a surprise and a revelation. If her burst of speed holds up, she may soon expect to rival Mrs. Lease and Phoebe Cousins.

Something Needed.

The elderly maiden lady had sued the rich old fellow for breach of promise and was testifying.

"You say," said the attorney, "that the defendant asked you to marry him?"

"I did."

"And what did you do?"

"I accepted him, of course."

"Why did you accept him?"

"He was different from most men."

"In what respect, pray?"

"He asken me to marry him."

"Ah! Did he protest his love for you?"

"No. I protested at first: toward the last I consented."

"Didn't you accept him for his money?"

"No."

"You wouldn't have accepted him without the money?"

"Of course not."

"Well, do you think that is fair to a man?"

"Certainly I do," she exclaimed. "You don't suppose a woman wants a man for a husband who has no attractions at all, do you?" and then the attorney let her go.

LITTLE DICK—Mamma, may I go and play with Robby Upton, and stay there to dinner if they ask me?

Mamma—I thought you didn't like Robby Upton.

Little Dick—I didn't, but as I passed his house just now, my heart softened toward him.

Mamma—Did he look lonely?

Little Dick—No'm, he looked happy.

Mamma—What about?

Little Dick—He said his mother was makin' apple dumplings.

"But how do you know that Fender is a fool?" "Why, they selected him as a juryman in a murder trial without a challenge on either side."
