...lmost Blind

...nflamed Eyes and Running Sores

The Success of Hood's Causes Great Rejoicing—A Perfect Cure.

Miss Cora B. Ebert
Barnesville, Pa.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
"I feel it a duty to state what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I was almost blind, being compelled to stay in a darkened room on account of inflammation of the eyes. I also suffered with running sores on my body. I was in terrible condition. My mother tried every thing she knew about and I was attended by two doctors but without helping me. Finally Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I had not taken two bottles before I began to get better. The inflammation left my eyes and the sores healed, and the result was that and was restored to perfect health. At that time I was only twelve years old; now I am nineteen, and I have not since been troubled with my eyes or noticed any sign of a return of the sores on my body. I can recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as an excellent blood purifying medicine." MISS CORA EBERT, Barnesville, Pa.

I Became Stronger,

TEACHING HIM A LESSON.

...through dinner Mrs. Bittersweet had ...at something was coming, so she was ...surprised when, on leaving the table, her husband remarked:

"There's a theater party going into town to-night, and if—if, mind you—you can manage to dress in three-quarters of an hour we will go."

"Of course I can. Why"—

"Yes, I know you once made a toilet in 28 minutes, but that was to see a runaway wedding, and history never"—

"But are the men to wear full dress, dear?"

"They are, but I don't see"—

"Then I shall have to hurry, for I must lay out your things and put the studs in before I start to dress myself."

"Leave that to me, if you please. I think I wore full dress a few times before I ever saw you! I will leave the tickets here on the table and the one who is ready in time shall start for the train, leaving the other. You hear me?"

"Of course I do. You shall see who"—The rest was lost on the stairs.

"Say, Ethelberta," called a voice from Mr. Bittersweet's dressing room a few minutes later, "if you have given my evening clothes to an object of charity, say so, and I"—

"Why, no, Alcides. Look on the third peg of"—

"Don't stop to talk. I've found the things without—humph, only one shoe. Did you think I would look nice in one blue velvet slipper and one shoe?"

"Your patent leathers are"—

"Do stop talking. That's the way you women waste time. No wonder the men are always ready first!"

"Alcides, shall I wear my"—

"Wear the first thing you can find. I'd like to know what idiot bought these studs."

"You did, dear. You said they were all right, only I didn't know how to"—

"You'd better not lose any more time talking. It is 7.15 now, and at 7.30 I start."

Ten minutes later Mrs. Bittersweet called from the lower hall: "Are you ready, dear? I am"

There was the sound of a drawer being banged, and then her husband shouted:

"Well, if you've worn all my white ties, just say so, and I'll put on that lace and velvet affair you wore at dinner."

"Your ties are in the usual place in the upper drawer. Shall I get them?"

"Get nothing! You just be ready when I say start. I don't intend to wait."

At 7.30 Mrs. Bittersweet opened the front door and closed it softly—on the outside. The train was five minutes late, and she passed the time at the station door watching for her belated spouse.

As the train rolled out she heard a mighty shout, and looking out of the car window she saw Mr. Bittersweet dancing about on the platform. Over one arm he carried his overcoat; in the other hand he was waving a pair of cuffs as a signal to the departing train.

Then she sank back in her seat with a sigh. "It was a hard lesson," she murmured, "but after this I don't think Alcides will complain quite so much when I keep him waiting a few minutes."

"My Own Things."

"Say, mamma, John's got my spoon. Can't I have it?" It's mine."

"Oh, just look! Susan's playing tea-party with my desert plate. Make her stop. She'll break it."

"I wish you'd find my pepper-box. This isn't mine," proclaims the head of the house. "His mighty queer these servants can't ever remember my things."

In the library Uncle Jim is twisting and turning and looking daggers at an unconscious caller, who is sitting in his special chair. One member of the household is on the wrong side of the table, and the right paper knife is on the left magazine. He always sits on the other side for reading. From the drawing-room the voice of the elder daughter is heard saying:

"Oh, no; I couldn't endure those portieres. The colors do not suit my style, you know, I made a fuss, and mama took them in her room. I feel color in every nerve."

Such is what the fashion for having individual things has brought upon the household. We have the individual furnishings, the schemes of hangings to bring out the individual beauty of my lady's eyes, the tint of her hair or the gleam of her shoulder, and on the other hand—perish the thought—to sink the individual in the useful! Have we not the special chair and footrest, candlestick and cushion?

Small wonder then that the practical, prosaic housewife exclaims: "I wish we could go back to those early Christian days when they had all things in common. I ...I could bear it even with towels!"

An Early Bank Note.

The early bank note in the possession of the Bank of England is one dated Dec. 19, 1699, for £555. It is printed from an engraved plate, but it has blanks for the amount, date, number and signature. Across it are written memoranda showing that it was repaid in three installments. In appearance it is not altogether unlike the modern note. It is noticeable that in the words, "For the Gov. and Company," the word "company" is thus abbreviated and not into "Comp.," which would be more in accordance with the usual practice. In the bank library is another note for £ 25, which was not represented for 111 years. Another curiosity, said to be unique, is a note for no less than £1,000,000, dated 1782. Only four for such an amount have ever been issued.—Strand Magazine.

Mr. Myopop—My baby cries all night. I don't know what to do with it. Mr. Knowitt—I'll tell you what I did. As soon as our baby commenced to cry I used to turn on all the gas. That fooled him. He thought it was broad daylight, and went to sleep.

JACK PLUNGER: "Congratulate me, old man; I've won her love at last."

Tom Tucker: "Has she accepted you?"

Jack Plunger: "Just as good; we had a terrible quarrel last night and she said she'd never speak to me again."

It is only guileless boyhood that vows he "will never do it again." Even when caught in the act the full-grown man of ...ld tries to prove that he didn't

BEST M... AT THE WEDDING.

Pat's Graphic Account of the Disastrous Mistake That He Made.

An Irish teamster asked for a half holiday for the purpose of attending his sister's wedding, and the request was granted. When he made his appearance the next morning, his right arm was in a sling there was a plaster across his nose and a raw oyster in a poultice against his eye. His left ear looked like a cauliflower. "Why, Pat," said his employer, "I thought you were going to your sister's wedding? You look as though you had been to a cyclone festival."

"I wor at th' weddin, sor," said Pat.,

"'Twas th' thruth I tould yez."

"Well, how did you get bunged up this way?" inquired the merchant.

"I'll tell yez, sor," replied Pat. "D'ye see, whin I got there and wint in th' people were standing forninst the priest, an be the side o' thim wor a man in a pintail coat and a big sphlatterin white shirt. I lucked at um, an he lucked at me. 'Oi, ho,' sez I till myself, sez I, 'an ye think yer a jewd!' Wuth that I got a wee bit closer an lucked at um wance more. He gave a twist till his lip like and turned his back. 'No Gallagher ever took that,' sez I till meself agin, an I taps me laddiebuck on the showlder.

"An who may yez be, me bould buckoo? sez I feelin that the blood o' the Gallaghers had been insulted.

"'I'm the best mon,' sez he.

"'Th' best man?' says I.

"'Toot's what I said,' sez he. 'Th' best mon,' an, sor," said Pat as he shifted the oyster on his eye, "he wuz."—N. Y. Mail.

Better Times.

Country's lookin' all alive,
Better times for Ninety-five!
Don't care what the croakers say—
Country's happy on the way!
Sun's still shinin' round about—
When it's night the stars come out;
An' when they ain't shinin' right,
'Long comes the electric light!

Country's lookin' all serene;
Though the woods is stripped o' green,
Somewhere, underneath the snow,
There's a daisy that'll grow!
If it's cold, it does no good;
Ex-pense in choppin' wood!
An' if wood comes purty high,
Summer'll be here by an' by!
Keep on goin'—look alive;
Better times in Ninety five!

Open Confession.

The preacher was having a sort of a test meeting by asking the congregation questions on their conduct.

"Now, brethereu," he said, "all of you who pay your debts will please stand up."

In response this there was an apparently unanimous uprising.

"Now," said the preacher, asking the others to sit down, 'all those who do not pay will please stand up."

One man alone arose.

"Ah, brother," said the preacher," why is it that you, of all this congregation of brethen, should be so different?"

"I don't know, parson," he replied slowly as he looked around over his friends and acquaintances in the meeting, 'unless it is that I ain't a liar."—Detroit Free Press.

A Merciful Robber.

The citizen struggled.

"Let me alone, or I will call the police!" he cried.

The highway robber wavered.

"Do you mean it?" he demanded.

"Yes."

"You will really call the police?"

"Most assuredly."

The outlaw turned on his heel and walked away.

"I don't want to be the cause of his getting clubbed," he said.

MRS. PETERBY—What a poor-spirited creature you are! I wish you would be either a man or a mouse. Mr. Peterby—I wish I was a mouse. I'd make you climb up the wall in a minute.

STAGGERS—I surely would hate to be the moon. Takes it two weeks to get full. Jaggers—And that isn't the worst of it, either. After it is full it needs two more weeks to get over it.

"IT strikes me that he has a good deal of assurance to call himself a boy pianist; he must be all of 25."

"Guess he is; but he plays like a boy of nine."

MRS. DE PYUS—I saw you at our church Sunday. How do you like the voice of our new tenor? Forte—I must admit that it is at least all that it is cracked up to be.

"DINKS has put the water system of heating into his house. Won't he find it rather expensive?" "I guess not; he has his wife to keep him in hot water, you know."

"BUNKINS used to think the theater was demoralizing," remarked the manager. "Has he changed his views?" "Yes. I converted him." "How?" "Sent him a pass."

When Others Fail

Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up the shattered system by giving vigorous action to the digestive organs, creating an appetite and purifying the blood. It is prepared by modern methods, possesses the greatest curative powers, and has the most wonderful record of actual cure of any medicine in existence. Take only Hood's.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. 35c.

"The engagement was broken off." "What was the cause?" "Oh, a lovers' quarrel." "What was the nature of it?" "A dispute between them as to which loved the other best."

For Your Consideration.

To be happy you must be contented; to be contented you must feel that your home is secure, and your family provided for.

Have you a mortgage on your property? If you have you may be able to pay it off in time. If you die before it is lifted—who will pay it?

Would not a Life Insurance Policy be a good thing for you to carry, so that whatever happens your property will be secure?

Most men work hard and take but little present comfort in order to secure future wealth. Yet 95 per cent. of men in business are not successful. Think of it!

Do not leave this matter of the future welfare of your family in doubt. Decide now and take a $5,000, $10,000 or $20,000 policy on your life, payable to your self at 60 or 65 years, if you are then living. If you die before that time your family and business are protected. If you live, you will be well provided for. Meanwhile you can enjoy your present income, and at the same time leave your family provided for. Having paid your Life Insurance premium, you can freely spend the remainder of your income without the haunting fear of future want to the wife and children.

I will be pleased to make you a proposition for an investment contract in the largest and oldest Life Insurance Company in the world.
