EASTON is now agitating the or... tion of a fire company. She has ju... two big fires. Chestertown will tall... it again after her next fire.

POSTMASTER GENERAL BISSELL has resigned, and Hon. W. L. Wilson, of West Virginia will take his place. Mr. Wilson will discharge the duties of the office with fidelity and ability. He is one of the purest men in public life.

THE Gould bridal is the sensation of the hour in New York. Miss Anna Gould, daughter of the millionaire, is to marry a French Count, Castellane, next week. The newspaper reporters are keeping a close watch on the pair and report every movement. If the bride goes to her dressmakers the papers promptly "picture" her appearance and the dainty footsteps to and fro. Her "Mar" is said to have promised her a cool two million as a wedding gift.

SENATOR MILLS, of Texas, who has heretofore been regarded as one of the warmest Administration supporters, is bitterly opposed to the recent bond negotiation, and on Wednesday offered an amendment to the appropriation bill to prevent the issue of any more bonds. In doing so he had an exciting tilt with Hill, of New York, in which the Texan poured forth some of his burning eloquence against the New Yorker. His "rider," however, was decided not in order and he did not press it further. So ends financial legislation by the present Congress.

ONE of the most stirring events of the present session of Congress was the debate last Wednesday in the Senate upon the debt-certificate plan proposed by Senator Gorman. After it had been debated by Mr. Gorman, Messrs. Voorhees, Allison, Hill and and other Senators, it was withdrawn by Mr. Gorman. Secretary Carlisle and numbers of Senators declared the measure unnecessary, as there would be plenty of revenue under the new tariff. This certainly justified Senator Gorman in withdrawing his plan for the treasury's relief. He made good his promise to offer the remedy, and now if the contrary is found to be the fact, he cannot be justly blamed for any embarrassing results.

THE MAD DOG PERIL!

More Fearful Brutes Discovered at Large—Other Dogs Bitten and Killed—Is there a Remedy?—Appeal for Official Action.

The mad dog pest in Kent seems unabated. Last Sunday morning the citizens of Chestertown were alarmed at the report that a big black dog, raving with the rabies, had made its appearance at the strawboard mill, a short distance from the town centre that morning and had literally torn to pieces a little dog on the road there! Investigation proved the report true. The dog was a puppy belonging to Wm. Simples.

Our faithful town guardians were at once on the alert and hunting for the animals. Officers Kelley and Copper tramped all over the surroundings of the town but the animal had taken a route leading into the country.

At Mr. Max Price's in Still Pond Neck, a mad dog made its appearance just at dinner time and attacked a dog on the kitchen steps. The colored cook discovered the character of the dog in time to slam the door and prevent the vicious animal's entrance. The dog was a mixture between a beadle and fox-hound. Mr. Price promptly killed his dog that had been bitten. The mad dog went from Mr. Price's ...r. John Stokes, and then to Albert ...is' and Wesley Cannon's, and to Mr. ...S. Harris' lower farm. At last place ...dog in sight was bitten, and at the ...amed place a hog also. All the bit... ...imals were killed.

...Thomas J. Dunn's prompt disposition of a vicious dog last Monday at Masseys, doubtless prevented much trouble. Holden Ireland, son of Mr. Geo. A. Ireland, of Masseys, gave a dog to Mr. Sam'l Dunn, last Saturday and he took it to his brother's and chained him in the carriage house for safe keeping. On Monday morning Mr. T. J. Dunn found the dog with every symptoms of rabies and shot him on the spot. It is supposed to have been bitten by a mad dog that went through Masseys recently, though Mr. Ireland had no thought of such being the case.

The commissioners had a petition signed by 55 citizens to prevent dogs from running at large without muzzles. The commissioners after examining into the law concluded to lay it over for action until next Tuesday. A number of persons were in town urging some action to protect children and others from mad dogs, and the ...ommissioners are now "catching it" ...ng this line for not taking summary ...oceedings. The mad dog peril seems to ...ncreasing rather than dimmishing but ...commissioners hope to do their duty ...e matter and meet all reasonable demands without going to the extra expense demanded to carry out some of the plans suggested.

Office of the Local Board of Health!

CHESTERTOWN, MD., Feb. 28, 1895.

It is necessary to take the greatest care and precaution to prevent the spread of contagious diseases, especially diseases of so serious and much to be dreaded a character as scarlet fever and diphtheria. The observance of the rules of sanitation, antisepsis and quarantine will quite surely result in the protection of the well and limit the number of cases of such diseases.

The State law imposes a penalty on all parents or guardians who heedlessly or carelessly expose those under their care suffering with contagious diseases, and while the sick, of course, do not attend school, the other children are, too often, allowed to continue at school. The teachers being in entire ignorance of the existance of contagion at home. This with other instances of willful and careless exposure and disregard of the welfare of others is greatly to be condemned, and teachers, parents and guardians are requested to assist in the enforcement of Sec. 5, Chap. 155, Laws 1882, which section has especial reference as above referred to.

Whenever a case of scarlet fever or diphtheria occurs it should at once be isolated, the room most remote from those occupied by the family should be selected. All articles of furniture, carpets and curtains removed—a mattress and bed-clothing that may be disposed of or thoroughly disinfected—a chair and a table is all the necessary furniture. The one who is to do the care-taking and nursing should be the only person to enter the room. Disinfectants should be freely used about the room, the patient and the nurse. The doctor will order such as he considers effective. Cloths wrung out in Bi-chloride solution, Platt's Chlorides diluted, Chloride of Lime, Carbolic Acid or other suitable fluids, should be hung about the room and wetted at regular intervals. As the disease subsides and the "peeling" stage goes on the patient should daily be annointed with vaseline charged with some disinfectant, this not only hastens the exfeliation, but helps to destroy some at least of the germs so well known to be living on this dead skin. All spoons, glasses, cups, &c., used by the patient should immediately be put in boiling water. All clothing, napkins, towels or cloths should be disinfected by immersion in Bi-chloride of Mecury 1-1000. Carbolic Acid 1-40, or other solution, then boiled. Such as are of small value or not likely to be wanted again, should be burnt.

After convalescence is complete and the peeling entirely done, the patient should be freshly dressed and placed in another room, the sick-room fumigated by sulphur, scoured with Bi-chloride solution 1 to 3,000, the wall whitewashed and thoroughly aired for several days. Bedding, if a cheap mattress had better be destroyed, if valuable it should be exposed to air and sunlight for days after having exhausted all means of cleanliness. The bed-clothes should be treated as the cloths and napkins above mentioned.

The same directions may be followed in diphtheria.

Of course to follow the above will give work and trouble, the expense, however, is slight, and however much trouble or work may be caused, the benefit accruing therefrom are so manifold and so reassuring as to warrant any amount of trouble.

The occurrance of a few cases of any contagious disease does not necessarily mean anything alarming. "To be forewarned," however, means to be "forewarned."

Should death occur from scarlet fever, diphtheria, small pox or any malignant contagious disease, there should by no means be a funeral. The body should be wrapped in a sheet or other article saturated, with Bi-chloride of mercury 1 to 500, placed in a coffin and quietly and privately buried.

Children and others who have had either diphtheria or scarlet fever, or who have been exposed to the contagion of either, should not go in public places, church or school until three (3) weeks have elapsed since complete desquamation or exposure, and teachers should not readmit to school except upon certificate of physician that such admission is safe and prudent.

The secretary of this board would be greatly obliged to physicians, parents, teachers and others if they would at once notify him of the occurrence of cases of diphtheria, small pox or scarlet fever. Stress should be laid upon the fact that mild cases may be the cause of the most severe and malignant, and that what is sometimes called "Scarletina" is Scarlet Fever, even though it be light or mild, as the technical name of scarlet fever is Scarletina.

W. FRANK HINES,
Secretary.
