Entertainment for Every Home.

THE one great craving in human nature is to be entertained. Life is divided into work, sleep and recreation. As recreation is made more delightful, so work is made easier and sleep more restful.

The best kind of recreation is music—not instrumental music alone, but songs; not catchy music alone, but stirring marches or beautiful ballads—just the music your mood demands.

It is possible to have this kind of diversion in your home—to bring the concert hall, the grand opera, the theatre or the vaudeville stage, the orchestra or the band to your center table.

It it possible to relieve monotony, shorten long evenings, amuse the children, entertain friends and liven up social gatherings.

The Edison Phonograph will do it. This wonderful entertainer possesses in itself the combined musical talent of the world. It sings, plays, and talks. Its fund of classical music, ragtime, songs, marches, dance music, grand opera and humorous dialogues is never failing and never tiring.

It is a friend that is ever ready to amuse, cheer, console or enthuse you according to your mood. It asks nothing but to be listened to and enjoyed—no effort, no skill.

Come in and hear one of these wonderful instruments. We sell these machines on small weekly or monthly payments.

DOING THEIR DUTY.

Scores of Chestertown Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow;

Urinary trouble, diabetes.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all.

Mrs. Mary J. Wilbur, of 608 N. Bond St., Baltimore, Md., says: "I had suffered from kidney complaint for a number of years. My back ached constantly and the sharp shooting pains across my loins and kidneys caused me to suffer severely. I had a dull and languid feeling during the day, was restless at night and would rise in the morning feeling lame and stiff. Headaches were of common occurrence and I suffered nearly all the accompanying symptoms of a bad case of kidney complaint. I tried a number of remedies but not one gave me relief until I was finally advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box. I used them according to directions with the result of a complete cure. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many of my friends and will continue to do so."

A LIVE CONVENTION.

Republican Gathering Next June Likely To Be Interesting.

[From the New York Sun.]

It looks as if the Republican National Convention to assemble in Chicago on June 16, 1908, is to be the first real live convention of that party held in 20 years. In the Republican National Convention held in Chicago on June 19, 1888, were rivalries not overcome for a week. On the first ballot there were 14 candidates—Russell A. Alger, of Michigan; Wm. B. Allison, of Iowa; Chauncey M. Depew, of New York; Edwin H. Fitler, of Pennsylvania; Walter Q. Gresham, and Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana; Joseph R. Hawley, of Connecticut; John Sherman, of Ohio, and Jeremiah M. Rusk, of Wisconsin—all of whom have been formally presented to the convention, and John J. Ingalls, of Kansas; William Walter Phelps, of New Jersey; James G. Blaine, of Maine; Robert T. Lincoln, of Illinois, and Wm. McKinley, of Ohio, for whom scattering votes were cast.

In the seven succeeding ballots other notable Republicans got scattering support, and the dramatic and highly honorable incident came on the seventh day of the convention. McKinley would not have a repetition of the Garfield-Sherman Incident of 1880. He climbed upon his chair, and in his ever-memorable speech forbade all votes for himself:

"I am here as one of the chosen representatives of my State. I am here by resolution of the Republican State Convention of Ohio commanding me to vote for John Sherman and to use every worthy endeavor to accomplish his nomination. I accepted the trust because my heart and my judgment approved of the letter and spirit of the purpose of that resolution. Some of the delegates in this convention have been pleased to give me their votes. I am not insensible of the honor which they would do me of the confidence which their action implies, but I cannot with honor remain longer silent. I cannot gentlemen of this convention, consistently, with the credit of the State whose credentials I bear and which has trusted me; I cannot consistently with honorable fidelity to John Sherman, who has trusted me in his cause with his confidence, and above all, I cannot with any sense of personal integrity permit my name to be used in this convention. I would not respect myself if I could find it in my heart to say or do or permit anyone else to say or do that which would give currency even to a suspicion that I was disloyal to the State which I love or wavered in my devotion to the chief of her choice and to the chief of mine. I do request. gentlemen of this convention—aye, I demand—that no delegate in this convention who does not want to cast reflection upon me shall cast a further ballot for me."

Harrison was nominated on the eighth ballot.

The Republican National Conventions of 1892, 1896, 1900 and 1904 were little more than indorsing bodies called together to register the will of Republican party sentiment.

At Chicago, in June, 1908, there are indications of something like a repetition of the scenes of 1888. This approaching convention is likely to be of intense interest and the following notable Republican will have votes on the first ballot: Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois; Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana; William H. Taft and Joseph Benson Foraker, of Ohio; Philander C. Knox, of Pennsylvania; Charles E. Hughes and George B. Courtelyou, of New York, and Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin.

And there are still six months in which to add to the list.

BRYAN HEADED THE LIST.

One of the local papers of Washington has recently completed a poll of the Democratic members of the House of Representatives, with interesting results. The question was put to each, "What candidate do you individually prefer today as the Democratic nominee for Presidency?" Of the one hundred and sixty-seven, one hundred and fifty-one answered the question, and of the remainder sixteen were absent or ill and two were noncommittal. The Bryan men were for the most part willing to have their names published, but the others asked that their individual preferences should not be made public. Bryan heads the list with 98 votes, followed by Johnson with 31, Gray 10, Harmon 4, and Hoke Smith, White Williams and Tom Johnson, each one. Mr. Bryan failed to be the preference of a majority from either Florida, Kentucky, Louisana, Maryland or Virginia, although throughout the South he has been considered stronger than any other candidate.

FOR GUNNING LAWS.

Protective Association Tells of Upland Game.

SOME QUESTIONS OF LICENSE.

Uniformity is the Keynote of Action—Nov. 1 to Dec. 24 Recommended—A Legal Bag.

The executive committee of the Maryland State Game and Fish Protective Association met Friday night at the Eutaw House, Baltimore. Nearly every member of the committee attended to hear the report of the subcommittee on upland game, whose report was adopted as a recommendation to the General Assembly of Maryland, and it was the sense of the assemblage that the suggestions uttered should be enacted into law for the good of the game situation of the State. The following report was unanimously adopted:

The Committee on Upland Game Laws after careful consideration has decided to recommend the following to be embodied in a bill for presentation to the Legislature of Maryland for the good of game and to the end that uniform laws for the State be put into force.

We believe that the chaotic condition of the present laws make it difficult for sportsmen to understand them and for the game wardens to enforce, and we are positive that uniformity throughout the State would be beneficial.

The different laws of each county, with different open seasons, different rules regulating license—some permitting tax-paying nonresidents to hunt within the county borders, others allowing nonresident relatives to hunt or nonresidents accompanied by land owner or with written permission of land owner—are deeply deplored as well as the condition which makes this state of affairs possible, as they are confusing, causing lack of respect for the law and very difficult therefore to enforce.

First--We therefore recommend that the laws of the counties should be uniform and that the open season for partridges, rabbits and woodcock should be November 1 to December 24 throughout the State.

Second—We recommend a resident and nonresident hunter's license. A resident license of $1 is suggested, to be paid by all persons hunting, except a man hunting on his own property; suitable provisions to be made for the issuance of said license by the county clerk and someone in the city by mail; a part of said license fee to go to the clerk for issuing same and the balance to be turned over to proper parties for the purpose of restocking the State with game.

We call your attention to a similar law which has been in force is Illinois for several years. The charge residents a fee of 75 cents and nonresidents $15.50. In the year 1906, your committee is informed, they realized more than $100,000, and now not only purchase game for restocking the State, but have purchased property on which to raise game for distribution.

Teach the Negro to Work.

The State Board of Education has issued a booklet bearing on the education of the negro children in the counties of the State. This booklet will be mailed direct to each of the negro teachers in the State in the hope of aiding them in their work. It contains, among other things, some advice from M. Bates Stephens, State Superintendent of public education, and a report on the question of the practical things to do in the education of the negro children, which says "That the surest means of improving and advancing the negro race is to teach it to perform faithful and efficient service in some industrial occupation, such as agriculture, domestic service and the mechanic arts." The words of a negro teacher are quoted, saying: "Work is not only a necessity, but a blessing. Only the idler feels it to be a curse; hence, I do not like the doctrine taught by these critics. To these evil teachings we can trace nearly all the turmoils, strifes and suffering of the negro. As a weak race, let us elevate and better our condition by personal effort. Do not ask for sympathy, but by our honest and reliable service demand justice! Cultivate the farm, exalt the plow, lift up the dishcloth, magnify the power of the broom, and do not betray our trust."

Get Their Living by Dying.

"In China, dear friends," said the absent-minded missionary, "human life is regarded as of but slight value. Indeed, if a wealthy Chinese is condemned to death he can easily hire another to die for him; and I believe many poor fellows get their living by thus acting as substitutes."

"Pennsy" to Arbitrate With Fruit Growers.

The great body of fruit growers and and producers of the Maryland-Delaware peninsula and the Pennsylvania Railroad will hereafter settle their differences by arbitration. The company, one night last week, through its heads of traffic departments, met and named a permanent committee, and James T. Shallcross president of the Peninsula Horticultural Society, together with W. F. Allen, the retiring president, of Salisbury, will within a few days appoint a standing transportation committee of three. The horticulturists' committee will have access to the home of the company, at Broad Street station, whenever there is a matter important enough to require adjustment. The railroad company would probably have gone further and even suggested that each agree upon a man whose duty it should be to travel up and through the peninsula ascertaining precisely what the producers and shippers had to ship and what concessions or special aid they desired from the carrying company. The Horticultural Society, however, thought that a committee of trusted and well-posted men would meet the emergency better than a paid agent. Colonel William Bender Wilson, representing the directorate of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, paid a high tribute to the peninsula just before the adjournment of the the Salisbury convention Peninsula Horticultural Society.

Oysters are One of the Purest Water Foods.

The National Oyster Growers and Dealers' Association has been incorporated in Connecticut with its office in New Haven. The membership is expected to include about 15,000 retail and wholesale dealers who are combining in this way to conduct a campaign of education as to the wholesome and nutritious character of this sea food and to reply to reports which attack the conditions under which oysters are prepared for and distributed to the markets of the country. The association requests the federal government to appoint a commission to investigate the industry and to reply to Dr. Wiley. The association has prepared a statement to the effect that it is ready to prove by experts that the oyster is one of the purest foods taken in from the sea; that oysters will destroy typhoid germs, and that physicians generally recommend this delicacy for convalescing patients.

Delaware Local Option Law to Stand.

The constitutionality of the so-called local option law in Delaware was upheld in an opinion handed dewn in General Sessions Court, Wilmington, on Thursday morning, Chief Judge Lore and Associate Judges Pennewill and Grubb sitting. Judge Pennewill read the opinion. It was the unanimous opinion of the court. It was a masterful opinion, covered every question raised by the attorneys interested and was clear in its interpretations and conclusions. It was the opinion of the court that the so-called local option law was not obnoxious to the constitution of the United States; that it was in conformity with the State constitution; that the Legislature had the power to submit the question to the voters of the State at a special election, and that the constitutional convention did not intend that the question should be submitted at the general election only. Then the court upheld the constitutionality of the law and overruled the demurrers filed.
