WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

George H. Gardner, living on Front street, Chestertown, Md., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have proven very beneficial to me and I heartily recommend them to other sufferers of kidney complaints. For several years I endured a great deal of misery from a distressing aching across my back and had pains through my loins, so severe that it really felt as if a knife were being thrust into my back. Noticing that the secretions were disorded, and deciding to try a kidney remedy, I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at M. A. Toulson's drug store. I began using them as directed, they gave me relief from the first, and at last affected a complete cure. I do not hesitate to recommend them as a good medicine for the kidneys."

For sale by all dealers, Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Entertainment for Every Home.

THE one great craving in human nature is to be entertained. Life is divided into work, sleep and recreation. As recreation is made more delightful, so work is made easier and sleep more restful.

The best kind of recreation is music—not instrumental music alone, but songs; not catchy music alone, but stirring marches or beautiful ballads—just the music your mood demands.

It is possible to have this kind of diversion in your home—to bring the concert hall, the grand opera, the theatre or the vaudeville stage, the orchestra or the band to your center table.

It it possible to relieve monotony, shorten long evenings, amuse the children, entertain friends and liven up social gatherings.

The Edison Phonograph will do it. This wonderful entertainer possesses in itself the combined musical talent of the world. It sings, plays, and talks. Its fund of classical music, ragtime, songs, marches, dance music, grand opera and humorous dialogues is never failing and never tiring.

It is a friend that is ever ready to amuse, cheer, console or enthuse you according to your mood. It asks nothing but to be listened to and enjoyed—no effort, no skill.

Come in and hear one of these wonderful instruments. We sell these machines on small weekly or monthly payments.

SURGEONS' CHARGES.

Method by Which, It Is Said, the Fees Are Regulated.

Frequently laymen who have had occasion to settle the bills of surgeons upon whom they have called in extremities to use the knife are heard to complain against what they call "the exorbitant charges of surgeons."

A skilled surgeon may charge $250 for a simple appendicitis operation. The patient, who never thinks of complaining until he is convalescent, objects oftentimes to paying the bill. He says, "It is outrageous for a surgeon to charge $250 for half an hour's work."

The question of surgeons' fees often puzzles a patient. He knows of one man upon whom a surgeon of wide reputation has operated and charged only $75. He may know of another who has paid $1,000 for the same operation. He cannot figure it out.

Yet surgeons of known ability and national, perhaps international, fame have a general plan in charging for operations. Their prices range from nothing to $5,000. They will operate without any question of willingness or ability to pay in any case where the situation is imperative. Afterward they will present the bill. The general public does not understand how a surgeon will charge one man $50, another $250 and another $5,000.

Surgeons have a fixed price scheme. They aim to charge the patient about one month's income. They figure that any person who is in such bad condition as to be forced to submit to a surgical operation surely can afford to give one month's income. They ascertain roughly what a man makes per month and send in a bill for that amount. The man whose income is but $50 a month pays $50. The man who gets $5,000 is asked to pay $5,000—and generally objects, even though he should know that his life is worth as much proportionately as that of his poorer fellow.—Chicago Tribune.

THE SHIPS OF TYRE.

Types of These Vessels Still In Use In the Far East.

Away back, even when Solomon was king in Israel, the ships of Tyre, manned by brave Phoenician sailors, went through the prehistoric canal where the Suez channel is now and navigated from China clear around to England.

Their ships were the models for Greece and Rome and later for Venice, the Spaniards and the Portuguese. Only the Englishman improved on shipbuilding, and from him all modern models have dated.

In the old Trye models the waist of the ship was low, so the oars could get good play on the surface of the ocean, and the sterns were lofty, so as to give room for stowing cargoes and to provide dry quarters for the upper mariners.

As wind power came into use the waist grew higher and the poop deck disappeared. Step by step from galley to caravel, from caravel to frigate, the British shipwrights improved on the ships of Tyre.

But in the far east the models have remained much the same, and the ship makers of Persia and India have stuck to the old Tyrian models to the present day.

Today their high square sterns recall the ships of Columbus. The mariners still have to get out of sight of land and steer by stars and the feel of the wind on cloudy nights. They sail around Trinidad and carry pilgrims to Mecca.

These vessels, on which the queen of Sheba might have traveled to visit Solomon, are used by native Hindoos, Arabs and by the peoples of Indo-China.

On board the captain, his men, the cargoes, pilgrims and sheep, asses and other live stock live in a proximity that would stir an American's stomach to immediate rebellion.—Nashville American.

A Metaphor With a History.

To "know a hawk from a hernshaw" is a metaphor with a curious history. It is a comparison drawn from falconry. "Hernshaw" is a corruption of "heronshaw," or young heron, a bird which was a common prey of the falcons. To know a hawk from a hernshaw is therefore to be able to distinguish the falcon from its prey. A further colloquial corruption crept into the phrase, "to know a hawk from a handsaw," a form used by Hamlet in one place. Possibly the distinction between a hawk and a hernshaw was found not to be strong enough for the purposes of the proverb.—Manchester Guardian.

No Death Penalty.

European countries which inflict no death penalty, however brutal or premeditated the crime, are Italy, Holland, Norway, Switzerland, Portugal and Russia, save where the lives of the emperor, the empress or the heir to the throne are concerned. The canton of Zug, in Switzerland, imposes the lowest minimum penalty in the world—three years' imprisonment for willful homicide, the maximum punishment being imprisonment for life.—London Chronicle.

An Inconsiderate System.

"Why don't we take an express train?" asked the sweet young thing of her escort at a subway station.

"This isn't an express station," explained her escort kindly.

"How tiresome!" exclaimed the s. y. t. "They ought to have express trains at every station!"—New York Press.

For himself doth a man work evil in working evil for another.—Hesiod.

McCLURE'S FOR 1908.

Plans for McCLURE'S for the coming year have just been announced. The magazine, judging from its prospectus, will continue to deal with great and important subjects. The first of these began in the November number. It is a series of articles on Great American Fortunes.

This series of articles by Burton J. Hendrick will tell the story of the most wonderful era of fortune building in history. The development of a virgin continent of boundless wealth within the memory of men now living is an industrial feat unparalled in the history of the world. The record of this development is the history of a great political, financial, and industrial struggle. But added to the absorbing historical interest of these articles is a spice of romance and adventure which makes fiction seem flat. Here are Arabian Nights dreams come true. Girdling a great continent from sea to sea with iron rails, stringing it with lights, taking from the heart of it thousands of tons of precious metal, gourd-like growth of a great nation, are the facts in the backgrouud of fabulous American fortunes ranging from twenty-five millions upward. It is a story of extraodinary personalities, of great games of chance, of industrial warfare, political and incredible fact.

Carl Schurz Reminiscences

The extraordinary popular interest aroused by the two series already published has decided the editors to add several other articles during 1908. At the close of the war Mr. Schurz' acquaintances included nearly all the political leaders of the day. His estimates and descriptions of these men are invaluable for their remarkakle vividness and the freshnes of first-hand impressions. In these later articles, Mr. Schurz tells of his services as a United States Senator, of his career as an editor, of his activities as a man of letters and a public-spirited citizen.

Ellen Terry Memoirs

It would be difficult to overstate the importance of Ellen Terry's Memoirs—they are a chronicle of the literary and artistic development of the last half-century. They present the impressions of a woman, who during her extraordinary experience came into contact with nearly all the foremost personages of her time. They tell the story of a gifted artist and a lovable woman, and in a way that displays to a peculiar degree the wonderful charm of her personality.

The Life of Mary Baker G. Eddy

The articles on the "History of Christian Science and the Life of Mary Baker G. Eddy," by Georgine Milmine, have been recognized the country over as the most important series of the year. In the closing chapters will be found an account of "Conspiracy and Rebellion," the second rupture of Mrs. Eddy's ranks and ths secessions of thirty-six of the leaders of her church; "War in Heaven," the story of the Eddy-Woodbury feud, and some of the grotesque extravagances which lay behind it.

George Kibbe Turner

and George Kennan are gathering facts for series of articles dealing with perhaps the two most momentous questions which confront the American people. One is largely economic in its nature; the other is not only economic, but it touches almost every home in the country in a vital way. Definite announcements of these two series will be made later in the year. In Europe, Mr. Cleveland Moffett is gathering material for a study for the Hamburg filter plant and the remarkable wild animal farm in Germany.

The Serial of the Year.

Those who enjoy a good serial will do well not to miss "The Wayfarers," by Mary Stewart Cutting, which begins in the December number. It is one of the rarest things in modern literature—a real love story—and the author of "Little Stories of Married Life" has her own fresh and delightful way of telling. "Romance is a flowering weed that grows in any soil," she declares in the opening chapter, and Mrs. Cutting takes her characters, average men and women of modern means—the representative class of the country—through a most interesting series of business and domestic adventures.

Stories of Adventure.

Then, there are to come many good old-fashioned thrilling tales of adventure, both fiction and authentic narratives of personal experience. A series of adventures in the South Seas by a new writer, stories of the early days of the west, when herds of cattle ran wild and hostile Indians lay in wait for the dauntless pioneer. But most thrilling of all is a series giving the actual experiences of a detective who was involved in the wilder life of the west. Seldom has any magazine offered such an abundance and variety as McCLURE'S will puolish during 1908.

Subscription to the Transcript $1.00 per annum.
