TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

A Most Interesting and Instructive Session.

The institute for the teachers of Kent county met Monday, the 4th, in the High School, of Chestertown, Md. After music and roll call there was an address by Dr. Samuel Baer, of the Normal School, Frostburg, Md., on the methods of interesting the children in their work and making their attendance at school more regular. He was followed by Miss Nan Mildren, supervisor of the primary school in Frederick county. She gave some excellent suggestions for teaching reading, by getting the thought of each paragraph. She was followed by Miss Davis, of the Normal School, who showed many helpful methods of teaching the personal pronoun.

On Tuesday the institute was visited by Dr. Carroll, superintendent of public schools of Delaware.

He spoke of the long dispute between Penn and Lord Baltimore in regard to the boundry of Maryland and gave the teachers an interesting bit of local history. It was this—that the commissioners appointed to decide that boundary met in Chestertown somewhere between 1765 and 1767 and signed the order for Mason and Dixon to begin their celebrated line.

On Tuesday night Miss Mildren talked to the mothers and teachers about the importance of having a large store of stories on hand for the children. She spoke of the beauty and poetry of the myths and rhymes and how much they teach us. Then she told some delightful stories in her inimitable way and one could see in imagination the listening children gazing, wide-eyed into her face.

Mr. Kemp Bordley played several violin solos accompanied by Miss Louise Russell on the piano.

On Wednesday the institute was visited by the county superintendents of Queen Anne, Caroline and Talbot. They each made a short address and gave the teachers a most cordial invitation to the joint institute of the three counties in October.

Prof. Sandborn, formerly of Washington College addressed the institute on Wednesday morning on "The Co-relation of Education and Religion." He was familiar with his subject and spoke of the uplift of man by education to conscious affinity with God.

On Thursday morning Dr. Baer gave a most instructive address on Agriculture. He gave some interesting experiments and spoke of great opportunities of the farmer. He told of a boy who by using scientific farming raised 106 bushels to the acre on land which his father was accustomed to raise forty bushels.

He was followed by Miss Mildren with methods for teaching reading, language and numbers.

Miss Davis's suggestions for teaching Geography to the intermediate grade was very fine and gave the teachers many new ideas for their fall work.

The Institute has been most fortunate in the choice of instructors. Prof. Baer, with his long successful experience in teaching and wide culture, seems to know just what will help the teacher and he is ever ready to drive home his suggestion with his fund of wit and humor.

Miss Davis with her subjects of grammar and geography makes one feel that she has been through all of the experiences which her listeners have been through and with her ready sympathy and savoir faire has given many new ways of making studies useful.

And Miss Nan Mildren! Who, does not envy the children of Frederick county for having such a sun-shiny sympathetic and altogether delightful superintendent to visit them!

The institute was glad indeed to see Mr. Carroll's cherry, familiar face among them again and to hear his interesting talk.

We must not forget to speak of the sweet music furnished by the institute and of the thoughtful kindness of our beloved superintendent who has made the institute so pleasant to us all. The institute closed at noon yesterday after a most interesting and instructive five days session.

Big Camp.

The "Popularity Club" of Sassafras, accompanied by numerous friends from Pennsylvania, Delaware and other parts of Maryland, have been camping at Betterton since the 17th of August, where they have been enjoying life, as was lived in olden times, refreshing breeze, delightful bathing and pleasant smiles sent forth by the comers and goers. The camp-fires, watermelon parties, launching parties and other social functions given by the club to their friends were enjoyed more than tongue or pen can express. An evidence of the fact was that wherever the crowd was or whatever it was doing the eyes of the public was centered upon it, and their hearts sent forth a beam of light that lighted the path back to the saying of the poet, so that each and every guest of the beach could recall the old but sweet and true saying: "Life is what we make it." The members of the club and friends are as follows: Messrs. John Ernest, Douglas Ernest, Olin Davis, Richard Tarbutton, Edward Stradley, James Davis, Jr., and Misses Helen Stradley, Mary Tarbutton, Mamie Quinn, Helen Davis, Sassafras; Mary Davis, Philadelphia; Prof. H. E. Maddox, Snow Hill; Jay McCallister, Harry Tarbutton, Wilmington; Miss Lenora Davis, Middletown, Del.; Miss Lillian Hart, Anna Vandyke, Townsend; Misses Helen and Cornelia Kielkoff, Philadelphia.

Base Ball Notes.

"Rube" Bowers did some good work against Centreville on Tuesday last. He pitched two games on that day for St. Michaels to settle the question of the championship of the Northern Eastern Shore, winning both games by scores of 4-2, and 6-1.

Bowers is well-known in Chestertown and is a top-notcher. He struck out 22 men in the two games. Two Washington College men opposed him, Metcalfe in the first game, and Jarman in the second.

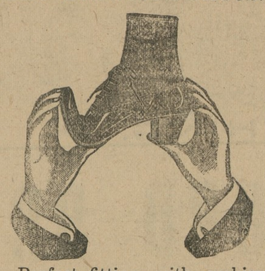

Mr. Hanson Horsey, of Galena, this county, who has been more responsible than any other man on the Reading team in landing the championship of the Tri-State league for that club has taken the eye of the big-league scouts, and next year will be seen with the Cincinnatti's of the National League. Mr. Horsey began his ball playing with the Charlotte Hall school boys, and pitched since his graduation for semi-professional teams on the Shore. Two years ago he went to Reading, and now has attained the ambition of all ball players—to play with the big leaguers. We predict success for Mr. Horsey and all Kent county now will root for the Reds.
