HICKS' MARCH FORECASTS.

March as a Whole Will Be Rough and Stormy Above the Average.

The disturbing causes bearing on the last days of February will continue into the opening days of March. In fact, the culminating days of a regular storm period fall from Thursday the 1st to Sunday the 4th of March. A regular Vulcan storm period is central on the 1st. On and touching the 2nd and 3rd look for much higher temperature and attended by threatening fall of the barometer, ending in heavy to violent storms. In most parts these storms will at first be tropical in character—heavy rain and hail with with lightning, thunder, and local floods; but sudden and extreme change to colder will follow, bring high barometer, snow squalls and fierce, cold winds from the northwest.

A reactionary storm period centers on the 6th, 7th and 8th. At this time the sharp cold that followed the previous period will relax, the barometer will fall and renewed storms of rain and wind, turning to snow in nothern and central regions, may be expected. Very warm, humid weather, with low and falling barometer, and restless, electrical clouds, at such a period as this, and other periods next following, should put every one on the watch for storms of possible danger. A short, sharp cold wave may possibly come from the northwest behind these storms; if so it will soon break down in the on-coming of the period just ahead.

A regular storm period is central on the 12th covering the 8th to the 15th. This promises to be "one of the most tempestuous and violent periods of the month."

As early as the 10th a marked change to warmer will be spreading from west to east, threatening clouds will gather, general storms of rain, thunder and wind will take up their march eastwardly across the country. From about Saturday the 10th, to Wednesday the 14th, these storms will make their transit from western to eastern extremes, bringing torrential rainfall to many localities, especially in southern to central parts of the country. Severe lightning, thunder and hail will visit many places, with great probability of violent, tornadic storms. Meantime boreal conditions will appear, advancing from the northwest, in the form of rising barometer, blizzards and tempestuous gales. These boreal storms will finally gain the ascendancy over the entire country, bringing a decided cold wave for the season, which will make itself felt far into the south. In all probability heavy snow blockades will result in many parts of the west, north and northeast during this period.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 17th, 18th and 19th. At this period look for return of falling barometer, higher temperature and more rain and snow—rain southward, turning to snow in middle to northern states. The inevitable rise of the barometer and change to colder from the northwest will follow in the immediate wake of these storms, bringing cold, raw weather generally from about the 19th to 22nd.

A regular storm period is central with the new moon on the 24th. By the 23 almost a phenomenal change to warmer will be noted in western sections. On and next to Friday, the 23rd, to Tuesday, the 27th, storms of marked intensity and violence will visit most parts of the country, moving from west to east. Severe March blizzards and a fullgrown cold wave for the season will wind up this period from the northwest.

A reactionary storm period covers the last three days of the month. On these days there will be a general reaction to warmer weather, falling barometer, cloudiness and return of rain, with possibly snow squalls in many sections.

The outlook is for heavy rain and snow, causing floods and dangerous ice gorges, and impeding outdoor and agricultural work over most parts of the country.

The Road Drag.—Mr. D. Ward King writes us of the passage of the following law by the Iowa General Assembly, which he says is "the greatest compliment yet given the split-log-drag:"

The trustees or supervisors of roads of each township in the state of Iowa shall be authorizd by this act to have the public highways under their control and supervision worked by using the split-log or other road drag. Said trustees or supervisors of roads shall have the said road drag used on the public highways under their control not less than ten times for each mile of road of said highways during any one year, and at a cost for such work not to exceed 50 cents per mile for each time so dragged. Said trustees or supervisors of roads shall see in working the public highways under this act that the preference shall be given to the person near and adjacent to the public highways throughout the different townships. This act, being of immediate importance, shall be in force from and after its publication.

A full description of this now noted implement, with diagrams showing how to construct it, appeared on p. 787 of the last volume of the Country Gentleman. —From the Country Gentleman Feb. 22nd, 1906.
