BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU SAY.

In speaking of a person's faults,
Pray, don't forget your own;
Remember those with homes of glass
Should seldom throw a stone.
If we have nothing else to do
Than talk of those who sin,
'Tis better to commence at home,
And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man
Until he's fairly tried,
Should we not like his company,
We know the world is wide.
Some may have faults—who have not?
The old as well as young;
Perhaps we may, for ought we know,
Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan,
And find it works full well—
To try my own defects to cure
Ere others' faults I tell:
And though I sometimes hope to be
No worse than some I know
My own shortcomings bid me let
The faults of others go.

Then let us all when we begin
To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word may do
To those we little know;
Remember, curses sometimes like
Our chickens, "roost at home;"
Don't speak of others' faults until
We have none of our own.

ANOTHER "FISH STORY."

That "fish story" which was served to the people last week, can only be equalled by one related recently by a passenger on the Gratitude. He said that some years ago being engaged in the business of cutting and mauling rails in St. Mary's county, that on a certain Saturday evening he left his iron wedges on a stump in the woods, expecting to return to the same locality the following Monday. Pecuniary inducements were offered him to go elsewhere and engage in other employment. In the hurried arrangements he had to make for his depature he omitted to mention to a friend the matter of the wedges. He engaged in other business and did not return to that locality for fifteen years. Resuming the occupation of rail splitting on the same premises, the incident in regard to the wedges was recalled to his mind. Mereby as a matter of curiosity he identified the stump, but no traces of the wedges met his vision. He was attracted by three handsome and vigorous trees growing from the stump. He determined to fell them. Upon doing so he drove his ax into one which yielded so readily that he proceeded to split it, when much to his surprise out dropped an iron wedge, which he readily identified as one of those left by himself. Upon splitting the other the same result occurred. I did net wait to hear the result of the third section, as I presume the maul was encased therein. I am not responsible for the veracity of this statement, but tell the story as it was told to me. "There are more things, Horatio, in Heaven and earth than are dreampt of in thy philosophy."

Schedule Time—The Fourth Assistant Postmaster General has issued an order whereby all Rural Carriers are required to travel on a regular schedule, as nearly as possible. The order reads :

"Postmasters will see that the rural carriers adhere strictly to their schedules as fixed by the Department, and that they so regulate their rate of travel as to reach each patron's box at or about the same hour each day. Carriers must not loiter on their routes in order to avoid returning to post offices with collections ahead of schedule, but after service has been completed will proceed immediately to the post offices and deposit their collections and equipment. When Postmasters find that carriers can serve their routes in less time than fixed in their schedules, they should so report to the Department, indicating the desired change, in order that the matte r may be considered, and if desirable the department will also consider the arrangement of a Summer and a Winter schedule."

Testing The Germination Of Seed Corn.

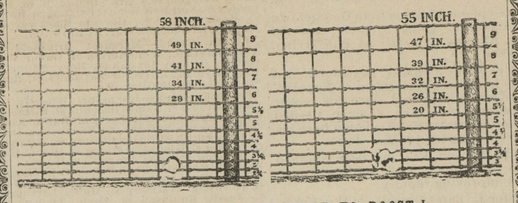

Seed corn should be so well cared for that it will contain no ears that will not germinate, and seed testing should be employed as demonstration of the fact that the seed has received proper attention, rather than as a screen to separate the worthless from the poorly preserved seed. If through accident or carelessness a supply of seed has been so damaged that a test of 100 or more representative ears proves that less than 97 kernels out of 100 germinate, and better seed can not be procured, it is certainly advisable to test the ears separately and discard the poorest.

This test can very easily be made by numbering the ears and then taking 5 (or 10) kernels from each ear and placing them in numbered rows in shallow boxes of moist sand, arranging them so that the kernels from ear No. 1 are in row No. 1, etc. If the boxes used are 2 or 2½ inches deep and a damp cloth is spread over the top after the kernels are placed in the sand, no further attention will be necessary for six days, when the results of test can be recorded. The box should be kept in a warm place where the temperature does not fall lower than 50° F.
