Weather Reports by Telephone

One of the features of the Bell Telephone service in addition to many others, which is especially valuable to rural subscribers, is the "weather report."

By arrangement with the U. S. Weather Bureau at Washington, D. C., each subscriber to the "Bell Telephone Service" is supplied not later than ten o'clock each morning with the weather forecast for the next twenty four hours, so that it is only necessary for the farmer to step to his "Rural Bell Telephone" to secure up-to-the-minute weather reports, storm warnings, etc. As every farmer, as well as those in other pursuits that may be influenced by the weather, realize the advantage of these forecasts, this feature of the "Bell Telephone Service" is much appreciated.
