In Easy Going Trinidad.

The hotel in Trinidad is the antithesis of the bustle of the port and the delirium of the drive. An old darky in faded livery, "Methuselah," totters out and looks at you. Coolly clad figures in rocking chairs on the porch meditatively absorb their drinks without even doing that. After a time a clerk appears and you sign the register. A while later a black boy comes and lifts your luggage from the motor. After a little longer interval the manager has reached the point of taking you for a long, slow, rambling walk, which ends at length to the room that is reserved.

It is a huge chamber, half as large as a tennis court. A wicker couch, two big cane arm chairs, two tables, a gigantic bed and a chest of drawers constitute the furniture. The doors, the window shades and the walls for two feet down from the ceiling are lattice work, open to all the winds that blow. A door in front opens into the garden facing the savanna. In the courtyard behind tame white aigrets scramble among the palms, and a parrot and a toucan screech to each other from adjoining cages. On one side is a row of sheds containing huge bathtubs.—From "The Path of the Conquistadores," by Lincoln Bates, Jr.

Barnum's First Show Venture.

P. T. Barnum launched his career in the show business by exhibiting a remarkable negro woman, believed to be 160 years old and said to have been a nurse to George Washington. A bill of sale was exhibited properly dated, concerning Joyce Heth, the aged fifty-four years, and evidence was also furnished that she was nurse to George Washington. Everything seemed so straightforward to the young man that he was eager to become the proprietor of this novel exhibition, which he purchased for $1,000, $500 of which he paid down, selling out his interest in the grocery business, and the other $500 he borrowed. He saw that the thing to do was to make people talk and become curious and excited over rare spectacles. Regardless of expense he advertised in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, and the halls were thronged until Joyce Heth died.—National Magazine.

The Best Security.

What security is there best suited to "the average man" possessing (1) safety, (2) stability, (3) profit and (4) convertibility? Traveling in a circle, we come back to our original point of departure—real estate. First mortgage bonds based on the highest class of improved, income producing real estate in a large city with a large margin of safety and an absolute first lien returning 5, 5½ and 6 per cent on the investment are to my mind the ideal investment for "the average man" and indeed for all others. A century or two ago real estate first mortgages were the only safe investment. The first mortgage real estate bond is simply the modern form of the real estate mortgage, equally safe and far more convenient and convertible. If one cannot or does not wish to own real estate he may at least own bonds based on it. —S. W. Straus in Leslie's.

The Savage Club's Founder.

Sir John Hare in a diverting speech at the Savage club told this reminiscence:

Of Andrew Halliday, the founder of this club, perhaps I may be forgiven if I tell you a little anecdote, which may or may not be known to you. Andrew Halliday was an author, not a very distinguished author, but an extremely nice, charming fellow. At dinner one night at the club a stranger was present, and Harry Leigh asked who was the gentleman at the head of the table. "That is Colonel Duff." "Oh!" "Yes, that is Halliday's brother." "I thought his name was Halliday." "He took the name of Halliday as a nom de plume." "Oh! I see—positive Duff, comparative Duffer, superlative Halliday."—London Standard.

A Comb In the Claw.

Many birds possess a useful comb in the claw of the middle toe of the foot. This has been noticed in owls, nightjars, herons, bitterns, cormorants, gannets, etc. It has been explained as a means of holding the prey securely. The comb is sometimes replaced by a curved blade with teeth, which run along the inner side of the claw. Such a blade is found in razorbills, wild ducks, gulls, starlings and many other birds. Where a comb is required the inner edge of this blade becomes divided into teeth. Young nightjars or goatsuckers have only the blade, but old ones have a well developed comb.

The Intelligent Bohemian Life.

Corot, the French landscape painter, was a model of consistent bohemianism of the best kind. When his father said, "You shall have £80 a year, your plate at my table and be a painter or you shall have £4,000 to start with if you will be a shopkeeper," his choice was made at once. He remained always faithful to true bohemian principles, fully understanding the value of leisure.

Doing Him a Favor.

Perturbed Diner—What on earth is the matter with you this evening, waiter? First you give me the fish and now after the fish you give me the soup. Waiter (confidentially)—Well, to tell the truth, sir, it was 'igh time you 'ad that fish.—London Sketch.

He Does, He Does.

A man tells a girl he would give all he has in the world to make her happy, and then he growls when she marries him and holds him strictly to his word.—New York Tribune.

An angry man opens his mouth and shuts his eyes.—Cato.

Poor Mrs. Youngbride.

"I don't believe the story, do you?"

"What story?"

"About Mrs. Youngbride. They say that she went into a butcher's shop the other day and, seeing a side of spareribs on the counter, she remarked, 'Why, I didn't know you kept xylophones here!'"—Boston Transcript.

The Soft Answer.

"Father, do all angels have wings?"

"No, my son; your mother has none." And then she said sweetly that he might go to the club if he wouldn't —Atlanta Conatitution.

John M. South, photographer, Imperial Hotel, Chestertown, Md., says: "I suffered a great deal from my back and kidneys. The passages of the kidney secretions were irregular and I had pains through my sides and back. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a supply at Toulson's Drug store. They gave me relief. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills worthy of the strongest praise."
