NIAGARA FALLS.

At One Time the Mecca of American Brides and Grooms.

Niagara is the spectacular center of the whole great system of fresh waters flowing toward the Gulf of St. Lawrence. It was for a century the country's one great sight. No visiting foreigner dreamed of missing it; no American in foreign parts would have dared call himself an American unless he could tell how he had seen his land's greatest wonder toss its iridescent spray on high.

"See Niagara first" was the unformulated maxim of those earlier days—the writer himself, as a boy, heard a briskly patriotic lady refuse a trip abroad solely on the plea that she had never seen Niagara Falls.

There was something almost sacramental in the trip. Marriage, indeed, was scarcely legal or binding unless the visit to the altar was immediately supplemented by a trip to Niagara.

Those were the days when the honeymoon was "what it used to be." Over Niagara's gorge and rushing waters it hung benignantly, always at its full. And in the corridors of the falls hotels the miserable unmarried forever bruised their feet upon hymeneal rice.

The "funny columns" of the newspapers could not have existed without the Niagara wedding trip.

GRITTING THE TEETH.

Pressure the Operation Exerts and the Damage It May Do.

"Probably you don't know that there is a pressure of 250 pounds to the square inch on the teeth when the average citizen grits his molars together at a ball game or because rent day comes so often," said a dentist. "The pressure may be less or it may be greater, but 250 pounds is the average.

"And think of the damage that may be done. One of my customers cracked off a porcelain tooth in his sleep one night when he crunched his teeth together, probably dreaming about a business deal. What did he do? He came around the next day and told me I was an all around no good dentist and that the tooth which I had put in a short time before was a fake.

"I told him all about the 250 pounds pressure and that probably no artificial tooth would stand such a strain. But I don't think he believed a word of it, because he went away angry, and I have not seen him since. I had figured out that that particular tooth was a rather artistic piece of work too."—New York Sun.

First American Dreadnought.

In 1791 the seventy-four gun line of battle ship America was launched at Portsmouth, N. H. If the word had been in use this battleship would have been known as America's first Dreadnought. It was built under the direction of Paul Jones, the famous naval hero of the Revolution. When Jones returned from Europe in 1781 after his battle on the Bonhomme Richard with the Serapis congress tendered him a vote of thanks and authorized him to go ahead and build the America to drive the British from our waters. But it took time then as well as now to build a battleship, and before the America was finished the war had ended. Congress presented the ship to France to offset the loss of the seventy-four gun French ship Magnifique, which had been destroyed in Boston harbor. So the first line of battle ship the United States ever built never had a chance to show its fighting strength under the American flag.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Grabbed His Opportunity.

The pavement artist had departed earlier than usual, and apparently in a hurry, for he had not rubbed out his glaring efforts. I was speculating as to why he should have decamped so suddenly, when I saw a ragged and very dirty boy stealthily take up the artist's position. After a careful look round he took off his cap and held it out in the true professional manner. He had, in fact, to the uninitiated, become the pavement artist. I never saw a smarter or more impudent trick. Two pennies (neither was mine) were dropped into his cap, and then the authentic artist was observed to be returning to his own. The boy was off like a shot, and as he passed me he winked.—London Chronicle.

Special Lines.

A corps of doctors ought to charge well.

A corps of dentists should be good at digging in.

A corps of gardeners should be able to rake the enemy.

A corps of stokers should not mind advancing under a hot fire.

A corps of artists should always enjoy a brush with the foe.—Boston Transcript.

Marbles of Greece.

Among other minerals the marbles of Greece must be placed in the front rank, no country being so rich in this product as the Hellenic kingdom. Seemingly inexhaustible beds are to be found in Attica, Euboea and the Peloponnesos.

Pluck.

Grange Notes.

Chestertown Grange No. 248 has had several very interesting, entertaining and profitable meetings of late at which various subjects of interest have been discussed. Those who attended have developed a lively interest in its welfare and well-being, and the advantages to be derived from the social and financial feature of its success. Next Wednesday we hope to have a full attendance, as an election of officers for the ensuing year will be held, and it is desired that all the members will be present.

Worton Grange held a very interesting and inspiring meeting last Monday night. General routine business was of course first attended to. The badges and regalia of the order having arrived the officers looked "fit" in them, and one member remarked that they were the prettiest he had ever seen. They are open for inspection every Monday night, however, to all grangers. More song books are soon to be purchased and the music committee is working for the means to buy an instrument, which is now a "sure thing." In the meantime we are having splendid times. The literary program of last Monday night was hard to beat, interspersed as it was with choruses and a trio, accompanied by Brothers Ralph Williams and Theo. Jewell on the violin.

The program in part was as follows: Chorus; reading, Sister Blanche Loller; Bro. Meyers and Sister Rash told which they preferred, a shiftless wife or a lazy husband; reading, Sister Florence Jewell; trio, Brother and Sister Lester Carter and Sister Katie Cooper.

The "good roads" question was discussed to a lively extent, and we surely have them now in this neighborhood. Then Sisters Annie Sheats, Sara Williams, Katie Cooper and Bertie Jewell, told us of their model husbands. And if any doubt Worton's ability to have a good grange, they at least know what model husbands are. All were so good that it seems hardly fair not to publish all, but we were only able to obtain two of them. So I am enclosing these, hoping they will find a place, not in the waste basket, but in the columns of your paper.

[Lack of space prevents us from publishing the article referred to above in this issue, but we hope to do so later.—EDS.

After discussing the clover seed question it was decided to hold that matter over until next Monday night, when an order will undoubtedly be given.

The regular meeting of Still Pond Grange was held in their room on Saturday afternoon. During the business meeting plans were made for the "Short Course" work to be held at Still Pond next week, and which will be held under the supervision of the Grange. The following program rendered under the management of the Worthy Lecturer Lillie, D. Kelley:

Music.....Grange
Roll-call, responded to by quotations.
Paper.....How to secure New Members for the Grange.....Mrs. Kelley
General discussion on buying and Selling.
Current Events.....Mrs. Moore
Cross Questions.

NUPTIAL EVENTS.

HELEN—VANSANT.

After an acquaintance of less than a year, Miss Miriam Van Sant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Van Sant, of Kent county, Md., and Columbus J. Hellen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Hellen, of Baltimore, were quietly married Tuesday afternoon at the Walbrook Methodist Episcopal Church. Rev. J. R. Edwards, pastor of the church, officiated. Walter K. Hoffman was the best man. The bride wore a traveling suit of dark blue with hat to match. She wore a corsage bouquet of violets and white roses. The groom is an assistant engineer of the Sewerage Commission. The bride taught school several years at Catonsville. Following a trip to New York the couple will reside at 2203 Roslyn avenue, Walbrook.

WALKER—BECK.

The marriage of Miss Sophia Beck, daughter of Mrs. Alverta Beck, to Mr. Edward A. Walker, a member of the well-known firm of Jordan, Stabler & Co., Baltimore, was quietly solemnized on Wednesday at high noon, at the country home of the bride's mother, near Tolchester. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Adelbert McGinnis, of St. Paul's Church, in the presence of only the immediate families. The bride was becomingly attired in a going-away gown of seal brown broadcloth and carried a large bouquet of Parma violets. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate families, after which Mr. and Mrs. Walker left for an extended wedding trip North. They will be at home after February 24th, at 611 St. Paul street, Baltimore.

Rock Hall Items.

The Enterprise has circulated notices to all the school pupils of the county for news items. The pupil who sends in the best item receives one dollar for their trouble. In this way they expect to get news of the county. This is no new idea. The Easton Gazette has been using this plan for a long time.

The young ladies of this town have organized an embroidery club. They call it the Meramaha club.

Mrs. Charley Ayres has returned from a visit to Charlie Brown's home. Mr. Brown's wife has been very ill, she is better at this writing.

The school board has received plans for the new high school building for this town.

The minister for the Adventist church will occupy the Sewell house on Main street. He expects to move in as soon as possible.

Fish are being caught in greater numbers for the past two weeks.

It is reported that several railroad men have been in town this week looking over the prospects of a line from the Delaware road somewhere near Townsend, hitting Worton, Still Pond, Fairlee and Rock Hall. Let it be soon.
