Rock Hall Items.

The commission for the erection of the new High School building secured a site in the third block on Sharp street. They will take the whole block which is three hundred by five hundred and twelve feet. One of the prettiest locations that could have been selected with the future growth of the town into consideration.

Mr. Punk Willson and bride left Rock Hall last Wednesday for their future home in Baltimore, after a short visit at the home of Mr. Willson's parents.

Boys are flying kites and frogs are singing. A good sign of spring.

Mr. Henry Urie made a short visit to Baltimore this week.

Mrs. Benj. Ashley wishes to state that they have not sold out their grocery business to Mr. Russel Downey as was reported last week. This rumor was the talk of the town and was supposed to have started from good authority, but at this time there has been no sale. Mr. Ashley says his old customers will find him still at the store and ready to take care of their orders.

S. B. Maslin made a short trip to Chestertown this week to visit his brother.

The English classes at the Rock Hall High School have received a beautiful picture of the old "Riley Swimming Hole" and a handsome bust of Riley for selling anniversary buttons. The picture is in oil and painted by one of our leading artists. The primary pupils are working for a flexible bound library suitable to the lower grades, by the same method.

Candidate for Clerk of Circuit Court

TREAT CANCER QUICKLY.

"It Is Not Surgery, but Delayed Surgery, That Fails to Cure."

That cancer is at first a local growth and not a general disease of the system is now clearly established. This fact is of the utmost importance, since in holds out a high hope of cure if the malignant growth is removed before it has time to spread to other parts of the body. Cancer beginning in one spot later appears elsewhere, because small particles or cells are carried away from the first site and start other growths, not because there exists previously some poison in the blood which causes the disease to break out in different parts of the body. The great hope of cure, therefore, lies in removing cancer entirely from the system before it has a chance to spread from its first foothold.

The reason why so many people came to believe that cancer was a blood disease is doubtless because it was observed to come again in the same or other parts of the body after having been apparently cut out. It was natural to assume that when the disease kept coming back in this manner there must be some cause or taint in the blood which led to its breaking out in different places much like certain skin diseases.

The trouble which started this fallacious reasoning was that in those earlier days cancer was not so well understood as it now is. Surgeons then did the best they knew how, but without the advantages of modern methods they were unable successfully to exterminate the disease. The microscope has now shown us the paths by which cancer cells start their invasion of the body if the first and local appearance is neglected. Modern surgeons are, therefore, repeatedly successful in removing the disease once for all. As an eminent American doctor has well said, "It is not surgery, but delayed surgery, that fails to cure."

OUR CALENDAR IMPERFECT.

Under the Present System a Day Is Lost Every 2,500 Years.

Many people are dissatisfied with the calendar. They propose to take it back and change it. They would have to go back to an act of the British parliament in 1751—that is, English speaking folk would—and then still farther into the recesses of time. It was that statute which later led American schoolboys into doubt as to whether George Washington was born on Feb. 22 or Feb. 11. Eleven days were lost between Julius Caesar and George Washington, but that hardly seems appalling enough after all to justify so many preachments on the subject of lost time, does it? The way things are arranged now it will be 2,500 years or more before we lose another day.

The scientist, however, is never satisfied with anything less than accuracy, and he wants a perfect calendar. He has taken his ideas of reform into the legislatures of several nations, but nothing has happened yet. Reform is sure to get into trouble, anyway, when it gets into politics. But truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again, and maybe the dream of the scientist will come true. The first day of every month will fall on the first day of the week, and so forth. The printed calendar which comes from the insurance company or the grocery store will be just as good one year as another, and the months will be all alike. Probably a more durable form will be invented, so that it will last a lifetime, be moved from house to house with the rest of the furniture and be handed down to future generations as an heirloom. Time, with such a calendar, wouldn't seem so flighty.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Wisdom Teeth.

The so called wisdom teeth are the two last molars to grow and they have no real connection with the possesson of wisdom. They take their name from the time of their arrival, from twenty to twenty-five years, at which age the average person is supposed to have reached years of discretion. Cutting one's wisdom teeth means simply arriving at the point of completeness in physical equipment and has no direct relation to mental equipment. The possession of these teeth is no guarantee of wisdom. They grow at about the same age in people whether they are wise or not.

The Prussian Versailles.

Potsdam is the Prussian Versailles and contains four palaces. It was founded by the great elector of Brandenburg, but owes most of its splendor to Frederick the Great, whose apartments, which are shown to visitors, remain almost exactly as they were when he was alive. Among the most interesting treasures is a copy of Frederick's works annotated in the handwriting of Voltaire.

A Prudent Provision.

"Jones is nothing if not thorough. No matter how he starts out he always gets to the very bottom of things."

"Then it is very lucky for him that he didn't start out as a sea captain."—Baltimore American.

The Coward.

"Has that young man given you any encouragement, daughter?"

"Oh, yes, mother."

"What did he say?"

"He asked me to tell him what sort of a disposition father had."—Yonkers Statesman.

SAVED A FOOT

January 11th, 1915.

WHITE FOOT REMEDY CO.,
Centreville, Md.

Dear Sir: Please send me by Parcels Post a large size can of White Foot Oil. I have been crippled for 15 years, had a bad running sore on my foot, and had decided, on the advice of physicians, to have it amputated. I heard so much about your oil that I thought I would try it, and it has done the work, it has saved my foot. It is the greatest healer I ever saw for a sore, whether on man or beast.
