WHAT THEY HAVE DONE.

With no desire whatever to exaggerate real conditions, but with a determination to be fair and impartial in this article, we give herewith a summary of the work of the Kent county representatives in the Maryland Legislature, whose memorable session closed Monday night at midnight. A representative of the people in the true acceptation of the term, is one whose action is based upon the wishes of his constituents. It is not for him to prejudge the people's wishes in matters of legislation, nor is it his business to presume that certain legislation will be good for his constituents, and then seek to pass such legislation without seeking first to learn whether or not the people desire such legislation. Nor is it his business to be a factionalist, or to seek to advance the political interests of one faction of the party which elected him to office above another. He should be the representative of the people, whose business he is to transact, and whose financial and moral interests he should seek to promote. Measured in the above terms, which we do not think is an overdrawn picture of the true representative of the people, what results do the labors of our representatives in the Legislature just closed show?

Do they show the passage of a single law that will relieve the burden of taxation under which the tax-payers of Kent county have been struggling for the past 19 years?

Do they show the passage of a single law that will reduce lawlessness?

Do they show the passage of a single law that will promote civic betterment, and whose effect would place Kent county among the foremost and most progressive sections of the State?

These are the questions for the people whose interests will be affected by the passage of such laws as were enacted by their representatives at the session just closed, to consider seriously, and the result of their serious reflection must be either commendation or censure.

With but one or two exceptions, there was not a bill passed by the Kent county representatives that does not call for the expenditure of large sums of the tax-payers' money. Was there a popular demand for the passage of these laws, and were the interests of the tax-payers considered by their passage?

Here is the list:

25,000 dollar bond issue for Chestertown streets and sewers.

A law to authorize the County Commissioners to appropriate $720 for demonstration work.

To bond Kent county for $48,000 for school buildings in Chestertown, Rock Hall, Millington and Betterton.

To bond Kent county for $6,000 for a schcol building at Kennedyville.

To require the Board of County Commissioners to pay H. W. Vickers, State's Attorney, for expenses in Elkton in the Coleman murder case, and other items of expense.

To reduce the Board of County Commissioners from five to three members, and to appoint in their stead three road directors, at an annual salary of $300 each, and to retain the road engineer at an annual salary of $1600, and maybe to compel the commissioners to expend more money on the roads than they are now levying—some $21,000.

To bond the town of Rock Hall for $10,000 for an electric lighting system.

To change the method of electing members of the Water Board in Chestertown.

To refund to the School Commissioners of Kent county $2,446 paid in error on tongers licenses.

These are the bills affecting the tax-payers' interests.

FISH, GAME, ETC.

Here is what was done to the fish and game interests of the county:

Mr. Beck introduced and fought for the passage of a bill to open the whole of the Chesapeake bay as far up as Poole's Island to purse and buck net fishing from June to November. In our judgment this is one of the most unjust laws that could have been thought of. It will in a few years destroy the fishing industry in the Chesapeake bay, and the very people who are now gloating over their victory will be damning the man who has virtually deprived our fishermen of a means a making a living.

When the State-wide game bill came before the Senate, Mr. Beck moved that Kent county be exempted from its provisions, notwithstanding many of our sportsmen desired the passage of the law as a protection to our game.

Delegate Shallcross introduced a bill relating to shooting wild fowl, and also to the method of taking oysters.

TEMPERANCE.

Early in the session Mr. Beck introduced the famous Vickers-Beck Anti-Soliciting bill which Dr. Barrett and other speakers at a public meeting in the court house condemned as not worth the snap of a finger.

Forced by public sentiment, after a public meeting had been held in the court house, and then only after the gallon-a-month bill had been agreed upon by all the Eastern Shore counties, Kent was included in the Anti-Shipping bill, which is being severely condemned by both the temperance and the liquor interests. When Delegate Dawkins, of Baltimore city, offered an amendment to the Anti-Shipping bill providing for absolute prohibition on the Eastern Shore, both Mr. Turner and Mr. Shallcross voted against the amendment.

When the Anti-Saloon League's bill providing for State-wide prohibition came before the House, Mr. Turner voted for prohibition and Mr. Shallcross voted against it.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mr. Beck's bill relating to stallions and jackasses got through without a kick. So much for local legislation.

STATE LEGISLATION.

The Kent delegation voted for the Shepperd Oyster bill.

They voted for the bill to create a State Tax Commission at an annual expense to the tax-payers of $50,000.

When the State road loan bill came up, Mr. Beck allowed Kent county to be put off with a paltry $95,000 for road building, notwithstanding Cecil and Caroline counties receive over $300,000 and Queen Annes county $150,000.

The Kent delegation voted right on the race-track bill.

They voted for the Home Rule bill.

They had 12 employes on the "Economy" Pay Roll at Annapolis.

This is the record. Mr. Tax-Payer, Mr. Fisherman, Mr. Temperance Man, if you can find in this record anything that redounds to your financial, agricultural, civic or moral welfare, it is for you to accord to the representatives from Kent county that commendation which such action would merit. If you feel that you have been made the goat for the bolstering up of the political fortunes of a faction, you have the remedy, and if you fail to apply that remedy when the time comes, you will be unjust both to yourself and to your posterity.
