ELEVEN HORSES BURNED TO DEATH.

Destructive Fire Wrought Havoc on Lockwood Heirs' Farm Near Warwick.

Saturday night, on the farm of the heirs of the late Wm. K. Lockwood, about one mile below Warwick, Md., tenanted by Edward Spear, Jr., fire destroyed every building excepting the dwelling, a short wagon shed and the pens, entailing a loss to the owners and tenants of at least $8,000. The fire was discovered by Mr. Spear about 7:15 o'clock, the horse stable being ablaze. The alarm was given over the telephone and neighbors responded, but by the time they arrived all the buildings were burning and but little could be saved.

Eleven valuable horses and one small colt were burned to death in their stalls, together with the year's hay crop and all the harness used on the farm. In the granary nearby were stored 1,400 bushels of wheat and 1,300 bushels of corn, which, together with the valuable buildings, are a total loss. Luckily, the cattle, a valuable herd, were in the barn yard, and with ten head of colts and a pair of young mules were turned out in a field by Mr. Spear as soon as the fire was discovered.

The volunteer hose company of Middletown was summoned and pressing the large auto truck of The Middletown Farms in service responded. They arrived with the chemical apparatus too late to be of any service in saving the buildings, but succeeded in saving a long rick of fodder which was standing close to the burning buildings. Several times the rick caught fire but was easily extinguished by the chemical stream, under the direction of Chief S. E. Lewis of the local fire department.

The buildings on the farm were fully insured, as was the landlord's share of the wheat and corn. Mr. Spear also had ample insurance on the horses and a small insurance on feed, but the insurance on the wheat and corn he had allowed to lapse only a few days ago.

Mr. Spear was frenzied from his almost superhuman efforts to release his stock, and friends were compelled to take him to his house, after he had fainted several times from over exertion. The buildings will be rebuilt at once. A valuable horse belonging to Frank Padley, which had been loaned to Mr. Spear, also was lost in the fire.

TO ENTERTAIN STATE GRANGE.

Annual Convention Will Be Held in Salisbury December 6 to 9.

Great preparation by members of the Salisbury Grange and public spirited citizens of Wicomico county are being made for the annual convention of the Maryland State Grange, to be held in Salisbury from December 6 to 9.

The local grange expects to entertain 1,000 members from the granges throughout Maryland, and some of the most prominent agricultural experts in the country will address the meeting.

On the evening of December 6 the Salisbury Grange will hold a reception at the Armory Building to the visiting members. Mayor William F. Bounds, of Salisbury will preside. A. W. W. Woodcock is to deliver the address of welcome. Governor-elect Emerson C. Harrington will deliver the chief address.

Following is the official program for the week: Tuesday, December 6—General business meeting of all the grangers in convention. During the afternoon automobiles will be provided by the citizens and the visitors will be conducted to points of interest on the Peninsula. The chief address of the afternoon will be by State Master B. John Black, of Roslyn, Baltimore county, Md. Addresses at night by Congressman David J. Lewis and Prof. F. B. Bamberger.

Wednesday, December 7—Report of committee on Agricultural College and Experiment Station. Conferring of degrees and report of financial auditing of State grangers.

Thursday, December 8—General discussion of legislative matters. Installation of grand officers. Chief address of the evening will be by National Lecturer John W. Gaunt.

The Fairlee Grange of Kent county has been selected to administer the beautiful fifth degree during the session.

Fairlee Notes.

The illustrated lecture was very well attended and much enjoyed.

Miss Mary McKay is spending a few days at the parsonage.

Mrs. Richardson, of near Tolchester, entertained the Ladies' Aid Society of Salem M. E. Church last Thursday.

Miss Riley, of Michigan, national lecturer of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, will speak in Salem M. E. Church Sunday morning, Nov. 21st, and at Union M. E. Church, Worton, at 8 o'clock P. M.

The revival services at Worton will begin on Sunday night.

59 Fatalities Due to Base-Ball Last Summer.

Statistics compiled by a Chicago statistician show that 59 fatalities were attributed directly to base-ball in 1915. Thirty-eight of the fatalities were caused by being hit on the head by the ball direct from the hands of the pitcher; six players were killed in fights during or after games; six died from over exertion and three from collisions.

Injuries showed a slight decrease over the preceding year, 7 per cent, of the players in organized base-ball having been injured during the season.

A BIG OYSTER HARVEST AWAITS STATE.

Bottoms of Condemned Lots Covered With Bivalves.

If the State accepts the oyster lots, which are being condemned by the courts of the tidewater counties under the Shepherd planting law, a big harvest of bivalves is in sight. Since the passage of the Shepherd law in 1914 the ownership of these lots has been in dispute and hence the oysters have not been disturbed. They have been permitted to grow according to their own sweet will. As the question of this final ownership will not be settled until after several months the oysters will have greater opportunity to develop. It looks as though the whole question will pass from the Legislature to the courts.

Even with the prospective large yield of those private plantings the state will be the loser if it takes over the lots. That question will come before the next General Assembly in a bill appropriating a sum of money now estimated at $500,000 with which to pay owners whose lots have been condemned. It is argued that if the state makes no appropriation the lots will remain in the possession of the owners. As these lots, amounting to about 60,000 acres, are claimed to be natural rocks or within the legal zone of natural rocks, the oyster population will demand that owners be reimbursed by the state and the rocks thrown open to tongs and dredgers, who may even claim that the oysters now there do not belong to the state and cannot be taken up and sold by the state. They may go further and declare that the leased lots are natural rocks and that the oysters which have grown on them since their lease are common property, as are oysters on what have been conceded to be natural bottoms and open to dredging and tonging.

The whole question, leasing and condemnation of lots, as well as the disposition of oysters on the leased lots, together with other questions arising from the Shepherd law, promise to give the incoming legislature a great deal of worry.

Gets $7,000 Farm for Kindnesses Showed Owner.

This has been a good year for Martin D. Richards, a young farmer of near Kennett Square, Pa. He has acquired a $7,000 farm property, where he had lived for the past seven years. He had entertained a hope of buying the farm some day, but it came to him as a gift from the former owner, in consideration of kindnesses shown him by Mr. and Mrs. Richards the last few years of his life.

C. C. Worth was the owner of the property, on the main road near Kennett Square, Pa., and he had lived there for many years. He was a bachelor and his nearest relatives were a niece and a nephew. The house was built in 1734, according to the record, and is well known in that part of the country. Mr. Richards had farmed the property for the owner for seven years, the latter living in the house with Mr. Richards and his wife. Mr. Worth died a few weeks ago, and it developed that he had made a will a short time before, leaving the entire property to Mr. Richards and his wife.

Mr. Richards is from Middletown, Del., where his father and mother resided for many years. He left Middletown about twelve years ago and located at Newark for a while, but the appeal of the farm was strong and he finally moved to the Worth property. He was in Wilmington on Saturday and in speaking to a friend of his good fortune he said that he was never more surprised in his life than when the will was read and he realized that the property had been left to him.

Sister Sole Beneficiary.

A special dispatch to the American from Denver, Col., Friday night stated: "In a single paragraph, written in his own hand, Dr. Edmund C. Rivers, formerly of Baltimore, who was drowned October 24, in Barr Lake, drew a will that will give all his property, valued at about $300,000, to his sister, Lily R. Rivers, of Baltimore. The will was discovered yesterday when William J. Galligan, administrator of the estate, was going through the doctor's safe-deposit box. It was drawn 16 years ago and was witnessed by H. A. Johnson and S. J. Keys. The will, an unusual document for its brevity and simplicity, reads as follows:

Being in perfect health of mind and body, this tenth day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, I hereby give, leave and bequeath all my property, both real and personal, of whatsoever nature, in case of my death, to William James Rivers, of Baltimore, or in case he should die before the provisions of this will can be carried out, to his wife, Maria Rivers, and in case of her death before she can legally take possession, then to Lily R. Rivers, his daughter. The first two people mentioned in the will, Dr. Rivers' father and mother, are dead.
