THE FACTS ABOUT WHEAT

New wheat crop will begin to be available as flour about the end of August.

Before then 30,000,000 bushels must be shipped at least.

There are only 55,000,000 bushels in our whole supply, leaving for home use 26,000,000 bushels.

Our normal consumption would be over 80,000,000 bushels.

The U. S. A. must cut its ration to one-third of normal. Those who can do so should forego all wheat until harvest time.

BEER YIELDS TO BREAD

No spirits for human consumption are now made in Great Britain. The amount of material used for beer has been cut since the war from 1,856,000 to 512,000 tons. Of that one-third could not be used for food and another third is recovered as cattle-feed, yeast, etc.

"No unmalted barley is now in the hands of the brewers or maltsters," declares an official statement. "The whole of the existing stocks of unmalted grain has been requisitioned for breadstuffs."

Joseph had a dream and prepared in seven fat years for seven lean years. Herbert Hoover has an imagination and warns us to prepare against a bad crop next year, even if the 1918 yield turns out to be a record-breaker.

FIGHTING WITH POTATOES

Over one-third of the world's total crop of seven billion bushels of potatoes this year be produced in Germany, for the enemy is fully alive to the big part food will play in deciding the war. The average crop per acre there is two hundred bushels, as against only ninety bushels in the U. S. A.

The potato is not only used as a substitute for wheat flour and other foods for humans, but is turned into cubes and flakes for animals. It also produces alcohol and a substitute for kerosene. Where there were only a dozen factories in Germany turning the potato to various uses when the war started, there are now upwards of one thousand.

To those who complain of high prices the following figures from Petrograd may be comforting: Hams 4.75, Butter at $10 a pound, Eggs 75c a dozen at $1.50 a pound. Eggs 75c a dozen.

The use of butter or margarine in Great Britain is restricted to four ounces per person per week. Money can't buy more.

Every housewife is urged by the War Department to help build up the food resources by substituting home-grown produce for as far as possible from her own garden.

Dehydration reduces the volume of potatoes three rounds of drying to make one-third the weight. It is a simple thing to put back on the water when the kitchen tap when the vegetable is needed for cooking.

SWEETBREAD SALAD

(Special recipe)

Peel medium-sized potatoes, cook until a portion from the center will break with soft and moist on the inside. Cut into small cubes, and mix with a mayonnaise dressing and add into the tomato cubes. Let each be a part of lettuce leaves, pack with little additional dressing, and garnish with capers and sliced stuffed olives.

The figures of surplus yield submitted to the local judges in the Maryland Produce Contest will show how well the war-gardeners of this State are rising to Mr. Hoover's appeal for the production of foodstuffs for home consumption. The grand total of vegetables grown by contestants in the Food Administration's Competition will be the only official record of what this State has done. Is your Garden Entry in?

Camels from the Hagenbeck menagerie have been sold as food in Saxony. Dog meat is sold at seven cents a pound, while horse meat fetches 45 cents. Moral—Food will win.

Cabbage is 93 per cent. water. What's the use of hauling that water around? Dry it out. Dehydration.

Scarcity of rice kept Japan from going after the Hun in Siberia. Armies must have food. Our armies must have food. Our armies must have food.
