LOCAL MATTERS

Clocks Back One Week From Tomorrow.—According to the daylight saving law, the clocks go back one hour on the morning of Sunday, Oct. 26, at 2 o'clock. This will be the last act in the daylight saving drama, which was one of the war emergency measures enacted by Congress.

Indian Relic At Blackbird.—While G. W. Burris, employed in he saw mill of William Fortner, Blackbird, Del., was sawing a white oak log four feet in diameter, they saw a brass bullet in the heart of the log. It was in good condition and as no hole was found in the wood it is supposed that the bullet entered the tree when it was a sapling many years ago.

The First Telephone Message.—The telephone has become an important and useful part of the life and progress of Kent county. The first message to be carried by a length of wire with the human voice as a medium was in 1876. From his room in the upper story of a boarding house at Boston, Alexander Graham Bell telephoned his assistant, T. F. Watson, on the floor below, "Mr. Watson, come here, I want you."

Still Pond Grange Meets.—Still Pond Grange held its first fall meeting Saturday evening in the grange hall. A delightful supper was served at 6.30. At 7.30 the grange was called to order with the master, Mr. J. L. Price, in the chair. Delegates were appointed to the Pomona Grange which meets in Galena, Oct. 25, as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ford, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Harris, Mrs. Ralph Shallcross, Mr. Harvey B. Moore. Saturday, Nov. 1, will be decision day.

Sugar Famine Country Wide.—Kent county is not the only place where there is a scarcity of sugar. The sugar famine is country wide. The country is naturally astonished to find itself bereft of an everyday supply of this all-important commodity at a time when the domestic crop is being harvested. But the shortage is actual, not theoretical and when the groceryman tells his faithful customer that his stock is gone and cannot be replenished, nine times out of ten he is telling the truth.

The Largest Check.—Secretary Glass on Thursday put his name to a check for $2,648,309,177.53, said to have been the largest check ever drawn. It was made payabale to the treasurer of the United States, but did not involve a transfer of that amount of money. It was made necessary to account for redemptions of Certificates of Indebtedness and other obligations in June. The largest check ever drawn on the Treasury for outgoing money was $200,000,000, which was loaned to Great Britain.

The Brook.—The pebbled marge the streamlet laves, it's frolicsome and frisky; and people come to lap its waves who used to call for whiskey. From distant springs its waters start and flow through meadows ferny; it doesn't break a human heart throughout its whole blamed journey; by green and bosky dells it flows, where thirsty things can find it, and doesn't paint a mortal's nose, or leave bad tastes behind it. It gives refreshment, pure and clear, to tired and panting critters; and old soaks drink it, with a tear, and find it beats the bitters. From dark abandoned bars they come, and to the brook they totter; they're shut out from the Demon Rum, and so they sample water. They swear that such a drink is fierce, compared with highballs recent, but when they've drunk about a tierce they find it pretty decent. The brook is rippling as it winds to join the distant ocean, and no cheap cloves or lemon rinds disturb its sweet commotion. And poor old jaded boozy wrecks along its margin hover; they pour its waters down their necks, and self respect recover. —Walt Mason.

A Fine Record.—When the history of the war has been written it will chronicle the names of many Kent county men in the list of the nation's heroes of the late conflict. One of the names of our men who will stand out clearly is that of Captain J. Thomas Kibler, athletic instructor at Washington College. Very few people of the Eastern Shore know what a prominent and important part that Capt. Kibler actually played in the war against Germany. Captain Kibler took part in every important battle against the Germans in which the American Army participated. He was in the battle of the Aisne, the battle of Argonne Forest, the battle of the Meuse, and was in the battles of Chateau Thierry; he was also in many other battles of lesser importance but of vital interest to the allied cause. In one of these battles Captain Kibler led his men against the Germans with a display of bravery that won the hearts of his men, gained for himself and his company the plaudits of the officers higher up, drove the Germans back several miles and took from them an important strategic position, which was of great importance to the Allies. During this engagement he was gassed, but instead of going to the rear he led his men on until he was finally found unconscious and carried to the rear. For this extraordinary display of bravery, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, which writes his name indelibly upon the roll of the nation's heroes. He was recommended for a promotion to major when the war ended.
