Washington College Loses To Mt. St. Mary's—Harvard and Princeton Meet Today—Other Notes Of The Gridiron

Harvard and Princeton meet today, Saturday, in the biggest gridron battle of the year. Harvard is about the only big team that has a record of undefeated games this year, while the record of Princeton is somewhat poor, that usually sterling football machine having suffered two shutouts by inferior teams. We look for Harvard to win easily.

Washington College football squad was unable to elude the jinx that has been on their trail all the year on last Saturday and Mt. St. Mary's defeated them by the score of 13 to 0. Although unable to score, Washington made ten first downs to Mt. St. Mary's two. W. C., as the above shows, gained consistently throughout the contest, while the only way that Mt. St. Mary's was able to score was by taking advantage of Washington College's lack of knowledge of the game. Mt. St. Mary's made their touchdowns when Washington's ends were drawn in, leaving the Mountaineers almost clear fields to the goal line. Although defeated, Washington put up a good game and showed the effects of the coaching that Coach Kibler has been giving them since the season opened with a full team of absolutely green men.

The Chestertown High School football team played the Centreville High School team yesterday on Washington Field. We went to press before the game, but Coach Joseph Wheatley's aggregation were in good shape for the fray and the game was, no doubt, a hard-fought contest.

The Washington College vs. Polytechnic Institute game, scheduled for today, Saturday, has been called off, due to the City College vs. Polytechnic game being on the 12th. The Polytechnic manager said in his letter that he wanted his team to be in shape for the City College game. That being the case he showed good judgment, as Washington College was prepared to give them a hard game and many of them would, no doubt, have been in poor shape for the above contest. Washington would have defeated them easily.

Penn State's defeat of the University of Pennsylvania on Saturday and the defeat of Princeton by the University of Virginia were the biggest upsets of football "dope" of the season. Maryland State made a good showing against Yale, while St. John's defeated Western Maryland by the score of 12 to 0.

Gallaudet and Washington College will meet Saturday, November 15, in a big game on Washington Field. The Gallaudet team has a fast aggregation and Washington College will be in fine shape to give them a good battle. Gallaudet has a pretty good team and a big crowd is expected to see the game.

Hunting Season Opens Monday.—The hunting season opens in Kent Co. next Monday. Game is fairly plentiful and should be so nearly all the season if the gunners will not try to kill them all every time they go out. From all the districts comes the cheering intelligence that partridges are more numerous than for many seasons past. Rabbits are about as plentiful as for the past four or five years.

Russet and Gold

These are the valleys that once were spring,
These are the hills that were summertime;
Over these meadows the bluebird's wing
Flashed and the rivers were warm with rhyme.
These are the vales that were beautiful dreams,
Springtime dream of the lilac land,
Where love danced down by her songsweet dreams,
With lips of rose and a lily hand.

These are the valleys, I know them well,
These are the valleys, I know them well,
These are the beautiful hills and tall;
But the days have changed and the spirit-spell
Is on them now of the mystic fall.
Spring's forgotten, her roses dead,
The royal raiments of summer fade,
And autumn comes where the bloom-ghosts tread
In russet garments and gold arrayed.

In russet raiment and gold she comes,
And flashing ribbons of scarlet leaf,
And purple pageants, whose unheard drum
Dreams down to the music of muffled grief.
The friendly fields of the old delight,
The comrade meadows of bloom and dew,
At morn they lie 'neath a robe of white
And the dusk brings stars in a sky of blue.

These are the valleys that once were sweet
With April music of finch and wren;
And hope still toils on her weary feet
Till the spring comes Aprilling back again.
Gum and maple and oak and elm,
Russet pageants and golden gleams
The hills of green are a fairy realm,
And the days go by in a gust of dreams.

Fountain Case To Be Retried in Easton.—Retrial of the case of Isaiah Fountain, colored, convicted before the Circuit Court for Talbot Caunty in April, 1919, of statutory assault, must take place in that jurisdiction. This is the effect of a decision handed down in the Maryland Court of Appeals by Judge John R. Pattison last week. The decision denies the application for a removal of the case. This is the second time that the Appellate Court has been called upon to pass a ruling in this case, but on different grounds.
