Sugar Famine Over

Kent county people will be glad to know that the sugar famine is practically broken. About 50,000,000 pounds of Louisiana sugar sent by the refiners from the surplus in the Middle Western States, arrived in New York on Tuesday. The sugar should reach the retail dealers for distribution at once and much of it is probably on sale now. There will be steady arrivals of sugar at weekly intervals hereafter.

Arthur Williams, the Federal Food Administrator, sounds a warning to dealers who expected to reap great profits from hoarded sugar after the government relinquishes control of the price of sugar January 1.

In a statement the U. S. Sugar Equalization Board denied reports which have been current for some months to the effect that heavy shipments of sugar were being sent abroad by American refiners while the American market suffered from a sugar famine.

The first cargo of the new crop of sugar from Santo Domingo arrived on Monday on the Clyde Line steamship Inca in Brooklyn.
