THE number of candidates for the Democratic Senatorial nomination in Maryland seems to be increasing day by day, according to the number of announcements received by us from prospective candidates from various parts of the State. It is evident that there are many who are anxious to oppose Senator France or any other nominee of the Republican party.

The fact that President Harding has accepted an invitation to be the guest of Senator France following the Francis Scott Key unveiling ceremonies next Wednesday, is taken by some as an indication that the candidacy of Senator France will be agreeable to the Harding administration. According to recent results in other states, this will not add greatly to the chances of Senator France in Maryland.

Mr. William P. Jackson, Republican National Committeeman for Maryland, is still on the fence regarding the Senatorial situation.

THE Republican administration received another shock this week. Mr. Brookhart, an out-and-out opponent of the Harding administration, was nominated by the Republicans in the Republican Senatorial primaries in Iowa. The old guard forces did evrything in their power to defeat Mr. Brookhart, but without success. This nomination, following close on the victories of Beveridge in Indiana and Pinchot in Pennsylvania, seems to echo the general dissatisfaction of the people of the country with the Harding administration.

The Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, which the Republican Congress is trying to pass, is an indication of the desire of the present administration to protect the big business interests at the expense of the American consumer.
