We have this 20th day of June in the year 1922 (nineteen hundred and twenty-two) examined the aforegoing statement and find it correct, and have ordered it published in the Kent News, Chestertown Transcript and The Enterprise.

Attest: In witness whereof we sign our names as County Commissioners of Kent County and affix the Seal thereto.

ARTHUR H. BRICE,
N. V. WALTERS,
JESSE H. USILTON,
Commissioners of Kent County, Md.

STATE OF MD., KENT CO., SCT.:

I hereby certify that the within statement of expenses for Kent County is correct as per books of County Commissioners office for fiscal year ending June 15th, 1922 (nineteen hundrend and twenty-two).

In testimony whereto I hereby subscribe my name and affix the Seal of the County Commissioners of Kent County this 20th day of June A. D., 1922.

JOHN MEDDERS,
Clerk to the County Commissioners.

GIRLS CLOSE EYES IN MOVIES

Were Determined for Once to See a Picture From Its Beginning to Its End.

The last scenes of a film drama were flickering to their inevitable denouement. The fight between the hero and the villain was over, the chasing of automobiles had been so far exhausted that there was hardly a character who hadn't chased or been chased by every other character.

Suddeny a woman in the audience noticed two nice girls near her whose eyes were peacefully closed. Her heart went out to them in sympathy, for she assumed that they were blind and that they went to the movies just to hear the professor punch the piano, although that seemed too awful to be true.

But when the picture ended and the lights flashed on, the two girls opened four perfectly good eyes, looked at each other and smiled.

"Did you really keep your eyes shut?" demanded one. "Honest to goodness I did—but did you?" countered the other.

"Cross my heart and hope to die," averred the first, "but it took a lot of self-control. However, I was determined for once to see a picture from the beginning instead of from the middle."—New York Sun.

DESERVED HONORS PAID HIM

Monument at Washington Recalls Notable Services Rendered by Indian Chief to Young Republic.

In the old Congressional cemetery at Washington stands a monument, the subject of which is known to very few of even the well-informed citizens of this country. It commemorates Pushmataha, a Choctaw Indian chief whose remains lie underneath. The monument was erected by his brother chiefs who were associated with him in a delegation to Washington in 1824.

Pushmataha was chiefly celebrated for his unfaltering friendship for the young American republic, and throughout his life he was able to demonstrate this friendship in various valuable ways. During the War of 1812 he headed the Indians who composed a portion of Andrew Jackson's army, and his services in that conflict were so noteworthy that Jackson granted him a commission as brigadier general. He co-operated with the white authorities in the removal of the Choctaws from their original location in the Mississippi country to what was later Indian territory. He died in 1824 while on a visit to Washington in connection with this removal.

"MARVELS" THAT ARE REAL

Surely Ben Franklin Started Something When He Began His Experiments With Lightning.

What a marvel it is! Our modern miracles are so much more unbelievable than the wonders of old. Radio concerts cover thousands of square miles, the human voice carrying around the world, and one after another of the plagues of men falling before serums. A great French scientist declares that discarnate spirits are physically ponderable. Possibly he is wrong. But why not?

With the air about us filled with sounds we cannot hear until science opens our ears; with a printed page radiating music that gives forth words and from the succession of words, thoughts, and from the thoughts full fellowship with all aspiring minds, what is not impossible? If the air is full of things unheard, why may not space be filled with things unseen, and why may not "the forms of the departed" "enter through the open door" when science has pried it open?

What a show it is, the phantasmagoria that the curious mind of man has made out of a rather simple old world that our grandfathers knew. When we can call old Ben Franklin up on the phone, how we shall jolly the old man for sending that key up on the kite to bring down the lightning from the clouds! He surely unlocked Pandora's box of grief and trouble and amazement with that old key!—William Allen White, in Judge.

REVEALED BY "LIFE TABLES"

Census Bureau Statistics Show That Women May Expect to Have Longer Lives Than Men.

According to the new "life tables" about to be published by the census bureau, residents of rural districts in this country live longer than city folks. Their death rate is much lower.

People of all classes and both sexes live longer than they did in 1900. That is to say, they live to an older average age. The limit of human life does not seem to have advanced.

Women live longer than men. The average white female, at birth, may be expected to live three years longer than the average male. There are more very old women than very old men, because, when it is a question of survival, the former hold on to life with greater tenacity.

Even the boy babies have not nearly so good a grip on life as the girl babies. Of 1,000 white male infants born, 127 die in the first year. Of 1,000 females, only 105 succumb during the first twelve months.

Notwithstanding hospitals and high-priced doctors, the death rate among babies in the cities is higher than in the rural districts. One reason for this is doubtless bottle feeding. The public health service says that during the first week of life more than four times as many bottle-fed babies die as breast-fed babies.

Safe and Short.

Copperish as to complexion, monosyllabic as to conversation, emphatic as to clothes, he stood before the savings wicket of a Kansas City bank a few minutes after 9 o'clock in the morning.

"Keep money here?"

"Yes," said the clerk.

The Indian fished out a roll big enough to choke the proverbial cow. "Twelve hundred dollars," he counted. "You keep."

"One of those rich Osages," thought the clerk, filling out the little book and handing it to the new savings depositor.

In the afternoon a few minutes before 3 the Oklahoma Redskin returned. "Want money now," he announced.

"What's the matter?"

"Want money."

"But this is the savings department. You put it in only this morning."

"Sure," said the Indian. "Safe here. Came town 'smorning. Leave town 'safternoon. Need money now."

And, of course, the flabbergasted clerk had to give it back.

Trout Fishing.

All the joy of trout fishing is not found on the streams. Along about this time of the year, with the wind blowing cold outside and the rain battering at the windows, the real trout fisherman is sitting before his grate fire getting ready his book of flies for the next campaign. With feathers and silks he is as happy as mortal can be. There's never a bright lure passes through his fingers but what in fancy he is giving battle to some speckled beauty. The fun of trout fishing is in the anticipatory delights of getting ready. In that field of happiness there is no such thing as bad weather.

"Slang Based on Humor."

Slang is hot stuff; it is accepted in the best circles of England and the United States. These assurances of the respectability of "the vernacular" come from Pelham Granville Wodehouse, English writer, known to the United States and England as the master of slang.

"Humor is the basis of all slang," declared Mr. Wodehouse."That is why this country excels in the invention of clever words and phrases. America laughs and smiles perpetually, and her colloquial expressions bear witness to that fact."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Modest Suggestion.
